ROBINSON'S RAP BOOSTS HOPE TO STOP FURLOUGH

Indianan Also Hurls Fire at Proposals to Cut Veterans' Costs.

ECONOMY MEMBERS MEET THIS MORNING

Bingham to Seek Repeal of Married Worker Clause at Conference.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

New hope was held out to economy-harassed Government employes yesterday as the Senate economy committee prepared to right some wrongs of last session's retrenchment legislation, and a new champion arose in the Senate to espouse repeal of the furlough.

Ranks thinned by the death of one member and absence from the city of two others, the Senate economy group will meet for the first time at 11 a. m. today with Director of the Budget J. Clawson Roop. They will consider possible economy-act modifications and new paths to economy.

Meantime, another postponement was dealt the organization meeting of the special joint committee on review of veterans' benefits. The meeting had been tentatively scheduled for today. Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Republican), Indiana, ranking Senate member of the veterans' committee, and Representative John McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, ranking House member, agreed there should be no meeting this week.

Favored by Robinson.

It was Senator Robinson who loosed the shaft at the Government furlough. In the same stroke he spilled a bucket of cold water on prospects of sweeping cuts in veterans' appropriations at this session. Either Senator Robinson or Representative McDuffie will be chairman of the special veterans' committee.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, who for the time being will succeed the late Senator Wesley L. Jones as Senate economy chairman, will lay several proposals

Pupil, 7, Is Dragged 40 Feet by Vehicle

Dranesville Youth Struck by Car After Leaving School Bus.

Seven-year-old Billy Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond, of Dranesville, Va., was in a critical condition last night at Emergency Hospital with a fractured skull and right leg suffered yesterday afternoon when he was struck and dragged 40 feet by an automobile. The accident occurred just after the boy alighted from a school bus in front of his home.

Charles Merchant, of Waterford, Va., the operator of the car, was held by Fairfax County police pending outcome of the child's injuries.

Dr. E. C. Shull, of Herndon, who examined the child, ordered him to Emergency for treatment. Merchant said he did not see the boy, who apparently stepped out into the road from behind the bus.

Spanish Treasure Believed Located

Debris Off Cape Henlopen May Be Gold Sloop Lost in 1789.

Lewes, Del., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Treasure hunters who for months have been seeking a cargo of $10,000,000 in Spanish gold, reputed to have sunk with the British sloop of war De Braake in 1789, expressed belief tonight they had found their prize.

Representatives of the Baltimore Derrick & Salvage Co., which has been seeking the vessel off Cape Henlopen since July, said pieces of wreckage brought to the surface from the superstructure of an old vessel led them to believe they had succeeded.

The location of the vessel is clearly defined, they asserted, although about half the ship is buried beneath the floor of the bay. Clarence A. Jackson, manager of the company, and George Tyzack, deep-sea diver, have spent many hours under the surface and have sent various parts of the vessel to the surface.

Arrested in New York after being trailed by Detective Sergt. Thomas Bragg, Kronick, who has many aliases, admitted a few of the housebreakings, but not all of which he is suspected.

ROOSEVELT HOLDS FARM AID PARLEY

Discusses Mortgage Relief With Steagall and Meets With Other Leaders.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Refinancing farm mortgages as a part of his general farm program was discussed by Franklin D. Roosevelt today shortly after a proposal for reducing taxes and using the Federal borrowing power had been presented to him.

The farm mortgage problem formed one of the points of Mr. Roosevelt's farm relief program as outlined by him in the campaign. He proposed that farm credits be so liberalized as to help farmers to keep their homes.

He discussed the question today with Representative Steagall, of Alabama, chairman of the House banking committee. The tax suggestion came from Senator Connally, of Texas, who said that many members of Congress probably would go back to Washington for the short session with the conviction that taxes should be cut down. He proposed the reduction and borrowing money as a

BRITISH APPEAL TO U. S. PUBLIC IN DEBTS ISSUE

Message Will Be Handed to Stimson Today by Lindsay.

LONDON CONFIDENT OF RECONSIDERATION

Action Halts Drop of Pound; France Due to Insist on Postponement.

London, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The new British note on the war debt issue, which replied to the refusal of the United States to postpone the $95,550,000 payment due December 15, was dispatched tonight by cable to Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador at Washington, for presentation to Secretary of State Stimson tomorrow.

The contents of the note were not divulged, but it was understood on good authority that Britain had presented a simplified explanation of its case for an extension of the moratorium rather than a formal diplomatic thesis.

In official circles it was said the purpose of the memorandum was to reach beyond President Hoover and Congress and to present arguments that would affect the great mass of the American people.

Pound's Drop Halted.

The feeling in government circles has been that in certain parts of the United States there was a considerable opinion in favor of postponement of the December installment and of revision of the entire war-debt structure.

The House of Commons was notified that the note was being dispatched by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, after the finishing touches had been put on the document at a two-hour cabinet session.

The government's action lessened some of the "debt uncertainty" which had been pushing down the pound sterling for several days, with a result that covering operations were started by bearish interests and the pound, which had touched $3.15½, rose to $3.21 at the close. On the Stock Exchange gilt-edged issues showed advances of 1 to 2 points.

Europe's Unity Cited.

The debt question was touched upon tonight by Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party and a member of the cabinet, in an address at Glasgow.

"Europe," he said, "has achieved a unity in her conception of how those problems (war debts and reparations) should be met along the long road

Prisoners Stop Killer Of Six From Suicide

Seattle, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Julian Marcelino, 30-year-old Filipino who killed six persons and wounded thirteen others Thanksgiving Day, was given a black eye in the county jail today by three fellow prisoners, all held for murder, who were delegated by authorities to prevent him from committing suicide.

Capt. Silas E. Bunker, jailer, said the guardians were compelled to use force to restrain Marcelino, who apparently is suffering from remorse, from taking his own life.

Leading Wheat Grower Offers Plan for Big Farm Profit Gain.

(Editor's note—Mr. Campbell produces more wheat than any other individual in the world.)

By THOMAS D. CAMPBELL.

We have a duty of 42 cents a bushel on wheat, and wheat is selling as low as 10 cents a bushel; a duty of 25 cents on corn, and corn is selling for 8 cents; a duty of 23 cents on wool and wool is selling for 7 cents a pound; and thus throughout the entire tariff scale. It is obvious that our tariffs are high enough, the need being to make them effective.

Our average annual production of wheat is about 800,000,00 bushels, of which we export about 25 per cent. The selling price of this 25 per cent of our crop offered in foreign markets determines the price of our entire crop. There is a duty of 42 cents per bushel against foreign wheat, nevertheless Canadian wheat is shipped into the United States in bond, milled in bond and exported and 40 cents per bushel rebated. GERMAN WAR LOOMS IF PRESIDENT QUITS

Hindenburg Reported to Be Disgusted at Row Over Cabinet Formation.

Berlin, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—If Germany's political chiefs do not watch their step they may find the Fatherland without a president as a result of the possible resignation in disgust of the aged Paul Von Hindenburg.

For several days there have been whispers in political circles that the president was sick and tired of party bickerings over the formation of the next cabinet—that he was disgusted at the inability of the rightist parties to form a "ministry of national concentration."

These whispers were boldly reported today by Der Deutsche, official daily organ of the Christian trade unions, representing 500,000 workers. Asserting that the president had seriously considered resigning, the paper said that was exactly what the monarchists desired, for it would open the way for a vice regency.

Despite official assertions to the contrary, there was a widespread belief in Berlin tonight that unless the cabinet crisis was solved soon the president might lose his patience and retire.

Press comment on this possibility emphasized that the resignation of the venerable head of the Reich might open the doors to every kind of political experiment and perhaps even to civil war. Monarchist restoration, general strike, Nazi Putsch—all these were mentioned in the newspapers as possibilities.

Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists, had been expected in Berlin today to discuss the cabinet crisis with Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, defense minister in the Von Papen min-

JAPANESE RAIDERS FIRED ON BY FRENCH

Men Enter Concession and Kidnap Korean; Two of Them Are Arrested.

Shanghai (Thursday), Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Annamite police of the French Concession in Shanghai fired today on seven Japanese while the latter were kidnaping a Korean, allegedly an anti-Japanese propagandist, who was within the borders of the French concession. It was reported the Japanese were acting without knowledge of the French authorities.

The Annamites' aim proved poor. None of the Japanese was injured. Five of them escaped with the Korean and the French police arrested the other two. They were held despite Japanese efforts to obtain their release.

French Concession authorities demanded an explanation of the Japanese raid in the concession. The Japanese were reported holding the Korean in the Japanese consulate.

Marine Corps Cut Hit

Anger Is Noted Among Officers Here as Recruiting Is Ordered Stopped; Proposed Personnel Slash of 1,700 Men Scored by Two Representatives.

(Associated Press.)

The fighting marines were fighting mad yesterday, but said little about it.

News that the enlisted personnel of the Marine Corps was due to be reduced 1,700 in the interest of economy created a stir throughout marine headquarters as orders went out, reluctantly, canceling any further enlistment at the various camps.

Although there was little open criticism, facial expressions and brusque replies to inquiries told clearly what the officers here thought of the move. The personnel reduction, the third in almost two years, was almost the only topic of conversation throughout the day.

Parris Island, S. C., will be hardest hit by the cut. Many officers thought the Budget Bureau's recommendations to Congress designed to save the Government about $1,500,000 so far as the marines were concerned, would mean the finish of the island station, which heretofore has been used chiefly as a recruiting depot and training post. The island's complement is 962.

The Marine forces both at Quantico, Va., the Atlantic base, and at San Diego, Calif., the West Coast base, will, of necessity, be reduced to meet the new requirements.

In view of the previous reductions and the present status of the Marine Corps of 16,398 enlisted men, the cut was considered in Marine circles as rather drastic. Officers, however, felt there was little they could do to remedy the situation.

The reduction also will affect the force scheduled to be stationed early next year at the Air Field at Sunnyvale, Calif., where original plans called for 300 men.

For the present at least reenlistments will be continued, but at headquarters it was said indications were that it would be a good, long time before the Marines would be out again advertising and hustling for rookies.

Opposition was expressed on Capitol Hill to any attempt to abandon the Parris Island station.

Representative McMillan (Democrat), South Dakota, said he was sure the congressional delegation from his State would "fight to the last ditch."

"It's about the only Marine station of any particular use on the Atlantic Coast, and we can't abandon it," he said.

Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, called Parris Island the "best training camp any branch of the service—and that includes the Army and Navy too—ever had."

"It's in a secluded spot and when a man puts in three months training there he comes out the finest type of young soldier," he said.

"If the House appropriations committee brings out a bill that doesn't allow enough money to continue Parris Island, we'll amend it on the floor.

"That station is necessary to sustain the morale and insure the proper upbuilding of the Marine Corps."

Colpoys to Lead Movement For Capital's Share in Beer

Will Appear Before House Committees and Insist on District Being Included; Woll to Offer Labor's Modification Demand.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The National Capital must be given the benefit of whatever modification of the Volstead law is voted by the approaching session of Congress, and John B. Colpoys, chairman of the Democratic central committee of the District, is going to lead whatever fight is necessary to see that that is done.

Although he declared it is impossible to bring back the old-fashioned saloon under any possible constitutional modification of the Volstead law, Mr. Colpoys believes that Washington must have some decent place where a decent citizen can go and get a glass of good beer and drink it.

As secretary of the American Federation of Labor's national committee for modification of the Volstead act, Mr. Colpoys will appear before House committees primarily as the representative of the people of the District and insist that adequate legislation to meet District needs be made an integral part of the modification program.

Matthew Woll, head of the labor modification committee, will speak for the labor movement in demanding modification of Volsteadism. The American Federation of Labor has gone on record as favoring 2.75 per cent beer.

Disclosure of the Democratic leader's purpose came as the wet tide in Congress was gathering such additional force that Speaker Garner appeared confident that enough Democratic and Republican votes could be mustered to pass on the opening day of the session a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution.

Leaders of both parties in the House are actively at work canvassing the sentiment of their members on the question, and, although none

U. S. TROOPS READY TO ANSWER ANY CALL

Ohio Gives Cold Reception to Caravans; New York Unit Progressing.

With three days intervening before the advent of the hunger marcher onslaught on the Capital, District authorities last night laid down strict enforcement of all regulations and laws of this jurisdiction as their defense against possible rioting.

At least 100 Metropolitan policemen were asked of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday by the Capitol Police Board to reinforce the regular guard at the Capitol during the presence of the hunger army.

Federal troops are ready at a moment's notice at several nearby Army posts, it was learned, to take the field in the District in the event police are not able to cope with any situation created.

Police Plan Is Ready.

Maj. Brown declared yesterday that the police plan of handling the marchers was ready. No requests for parading have been received or for public meetings on the part of the hunger marchers. In the absence of such, he said, police would promptly disperse any parades or meetings.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the District Board of Commissioners, last night would neither affirm nor deny reports that the Federal Government stood ready to aid District authorities in the event of rioting.

The oft-reiterated statement of District officials was repeated last night: "All constitutional rights will be preserved."

In Long Session.

The Capitol Police Board, which, according to members of its personnel, has had Army and Navy advice in prospect of the hunger marchers' appearance here, held a long session yesterday.

Besides its regular members, among which are David Barry, sergeant at arms of the Senate, and David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, Maj. Brown was in attendance.

This morning Maj. Brown will confer with Herbert Benjamin, advance agent of the hunger marchers. No concessions are planned by officials, Maj. Brown said, the purpose of the conference being to ascertain from Benjamin just what the marchers expect to do here.

Portland, Oreg., Water Free as Rates Expire

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Water will be free to Portlanders after the clock strikes 12 tonight. At that hour the present water rates expire. Through the objection of one councilman, a new rate ordinance was killed at the council session today and the old ordinance lapsed.

The loss, a councilman said, will cost the city about $5,000 a day. It was expected, however, a special session of the council will be called tomorrow to remedy the situation.

U. S. Arms Delegates Plan For Temporary Agreement

Gains Made Toward Hoover Proposal for One-third Reduction Will Be Consolidated in "Interlocutory Treaty" as Work Enters Final Phase.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

American negotiations for international disarmament and participation in the World Economic Conference have entered their final phase, it became known here last night. Preparations are going forward in Geneva to wind up the work of the American delegations that have been in conversations on these two problems for the past twelve months.

Secretary Stimson has been notified by Norman H. Davis and Hugh Gibson, the two members of the original delegation of five that went to Geneva in hopes of effecting a reduction in world armaments last spring, that they are going to consolidate the gains that have already been made toward the one-third reduction plan of President Hoover in an "interlocutory treaty" or temporary agreement.

Yesterday afternoon the members of the American delegation on the committee of experts handed in their report on the proceedings of the experts in Geneva last month. They were heard by an imposing group consisting of Secretary Stimson, Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Secretary Mills said:

"We just listened to what was done at Geneva. There was no discussion on war debts. No decision was reached toward setting a definite date for the convocation of the conference."

The disarmament negotiations have been going on at a constantly diminished pace ever since the proposal of President Hoover last summer. At that time the American chairman, Hugh Gibson, made the proposition advanced by the President to reduce the armaments of all nations by an approximately one-third cut and the

NEW TAX PROGRAM VIRTUALLY ASSURED

Treasury Prepared to Give Plan to Congress; Added Sales Levies Seen.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Tax revision in the short session of Congress appeared virtually assured yesterday by advices to members of the House ways and means committee that the Treasury is prepared to submit a detailed revenue program early in the session.

Committee members who have studied the Federal budget during the last month expressed the view that the Treasury proposals would involve a more general application of the manufacturers' sales tax as the most likely revenue producer.

White House officials declined to comment on reports that President Hoover would urge new revenues in his annual budget message next week, but Republican leaders in both the House and Senate anticipate such recommendations in general terms, with the details to be submitted by Secretary Mills when the House ways and means committee calls for them.

Democrats and Republicans in the House committee acknowledged yesterday that the need for additional

2 IN TEA HOUSE CASE GUILTY IN SECOND DEGREE

Zalenski and Wallace Are Heavily Guarded; Plans of Defense in Doubt.

While their sisters' screams shrilled through the crowded, dark courtroom in La Plata, Md., last night, James Zalenski and John Wallace were found guilty of second degree murder in the fatal Bladensburg tea house shooting a year and eight days ago.

Zalenski and Wallace, both of Baltimore, are liable to a sentence of from 2 to 18 years for their complicity in the tea house holdup which ended in the death of Grover Amick, of Washington. Their conviction was brought in by a circuit court jury, which had deliberated less than an hour.

The verdict of guilty in Zalenski's case was pronounced first. Francis V. Wheatley, foreman of the jury, stood in a hushed courtroom while the clerk of the court asked him: "What is your verdict?"

Sister Is Hysterical.

"Not guilty of murder in the first degree, but guilty of murder in the second degree," Wheatley answered. There was a further moment of silence, broken by a woman's scream, as Zalenski's sister lapsed into hysteria.

Wallace's sister, Agnes, seated beside her, got up and ran toward the door of the courtroom. In front of the jury she threw her hands high in the air, screamed once, and fainted. Meanwhile Zalenski's sister was crying out wildly: "They're going to take James away—they're going to take James away. Oh, leave me alone—leave me alone." Wallace's wife, who sat near her, began to sob loudly. A friend took Wallace's 6-month-old baby from her arms, and the wife staggered from the courtroom, weeping, her arm thrown across her eyes.

In the confusion the court was unable to hear the verdict in Wallace's case and asked that it be repeated. Both men heard the jury's decision without apparent emotion, Zalenski with his arms folded. Wallace's eyes flickered about the courtroom as they had all through the trial, but he gripped the lapels of his coat in silence.

Prisoners Heavily Guarded.

The pair were handcuffed and taken to the office of Sheriff Robert V. Cooksey while he scouted outside to make sure the pathway to the jail across the courthouse yard was clear. Eight policemen and deputy sheriffs then escorted the prisoners the 150 feet to the jail, and two extra guards were ordered to remain on duty tonight, in fear that attempts might be made to liberate the prisoners.

Meanwhile Zalenski's sister ran around the courthouse yard in the darkness, crying out that they would not let her see her brother. Sheriff Cooksey told her she could see him in the morning, but she was not mollified. Wallace's sister, revived from her faint in an anteroom of the court, in the meantime sobbed:

"My brother's not bad—he only got in bad company—he's not a bad boy—ours is a good family."

The case went to the jury at 5:58 yesterday afternoon, after the defense had spent a day in building up an alibi for Wallace and the State had introduced evidence to show that

FARMERS' OUTLOOK BRIGHT, SAYS HYDE

Reports to Hoover He Sees Material Improvement in Income.

Reporting to President Hoover on the present status of the American farmer, Secretary Hyde said yesterday there are many indications that material improvement in the income from agriculture will occur within the next few years.

Hyde said in his annual report that agriculture "felt the shock of this depression earlier and harder than other industries and it may lead in the recovery." He warned, however, that "temporary setbacks are to be expected."

Citing the difficulties in which the farmers have been enmeshed, the Agriculture Department head advocated additional action toward relieving the burden of farm mortgages and of taxation on farm lands.

In addition, he explained that the $306,400,098 expended and obligated by the department during the last fiscal year ended June 30, was an abnormal amount. Eighty-one per cent of the total, he added, went to the general public through roads funds and otherwise for emergency relief action.

Rise Held Significant.

"In any period of deep and prolonged depression," Hyde said, "it is difficult to recognize exactly the first signs of improvement. Nevertheless, it is significant that after a ruinous three-year decline, agricultural prices rose materially during July, August and September of 1932.

"In October they receded somewhat, but not to the lows registered in midsummer. * * * Farm commodity prices rose from 52 per cent of the prewar level in June, 1932, to 59 per cent of that level in September; in the succeeding month they fell off three points to 56 per cent. * * *

"Considered merely as net gain, that was not much. But the change was encouraging. It was the first substantial improvement in agricultural prices since the onset of the depression in 1929."

"To some slight extent," he continued, "this improvement in prices reflected a reduction in the supply of farm commodities. It resulted mostly, however, from many fundamental readjustments in the financial and business world.

Decline in Bank Failures.

"As the year advanced bank failures declined. Easier credit conditions and lower interest rates furnished a basis for renewed enterprise. Confidence in the business outlook increased. This was shown by a considerable recovery in the bond and stock markets. Stronger markets seemed to mark the end of uncertainty and the return of confidence.

"This renewed confidence is not confined to the United States. Gold is again coming into this country, indicating restored world confidence in the American dollar. In Europe the Lausanne agreement, the firmer tendency of prices of many products and the rise in the American stock market favorably influenced foreign business sentiment.

"These readjustments and the changing outlook are providing a basis for an improvement in the demand for agricultural products.

"While unemployment and reduced wages of urban consumers are still a great handicap in the marketing of farm products, the upturns in the financial situation in the past few months, if sustained, will be a stimulus to increased employment and will thus increase the purchasing power of urban consumers.

"Furthermore, the improvement in the prices of agricultural products will increase the demand for manufactured goods and thus give further impetus to a general revival in business activity. This in turn will add further strength to the market for agricultural products."

Asserting that foreclosures on farm mortgages are "all too prevalent," Hyde added that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other legislation had aided in relieving the problem, but that more needs to be done.

Broadening of Powers.

"The powers of our credit institutions," he said, "must be broadened and legal restrictions relaxed so that in an emergency like the present one efficient farmers can be given a fighting chance to hold their homes."

Hyde said that with gross farm incomes down to prewar level, the tax load is "extremely onerous" and "simple justice requires both economy in public expenditure and drastic revision of the revenue system." He added that farm-property taxes had "remained practically unchanged during the depression."

"The tax that discriminates against the farmer," he explained, "is the so-called general property tax. It is not part of the Federal revenue system."

He suggested income and excise taxes as the "leading alternatives."

$212,421,775 for Roads.

Discussing expenditures during the year, Hyde said $212,421,775 went for road construction, $10,806,829 for emergency relief loans, $16,040,465 for payments to States for support of agricultural experiment stations, extension work and cooperative forestry activities, including fire prevention, and $67,131,029 for ordinary activities to the department.

On the latter amount, the Secretary said $36,372,082 was for activities of general public interest, including the Weather Service, forest and game conservation and maintenance of the healthfulness of the food supply.

The remainder, described as amounting to 10 per cent of the total expenditures of the department and about 0.5 per cent of the total cost of the Federal Government, was used for primarily agricultural purposes.

Washington Girl Among Trio Held at Charlotte

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Three girls were being detained by police here today as efforts were being made to communicate with their families.

The girls said they were Merl Lowrimore, 17, of 100 East Fourth street, Thomaston, Ga.; Helen Self, 15, living in the country near Thomaston, and Marie Davis, 17, of Washington, D. C. All three said they had run away from home and their relatives did not know where they are.

Marie Davis lived at the Salvation Home, Fifth and G streets northwest, while in Washington. She came here about a year ago. Her parents in Texas were said to have been estranged when she came here.

FIXING OF PRICE ON CROPS CONSUMED IN U. S. URGED

which he would have for his own wheat in the form of flour, and reduces the demand for spring wheat of high protein value, which is raised in the Northwest.

This matter, however, is not particularly serious, and could be ignored if our American farmers could have the 42 cents per bushel protection on the 75 per cent of their crop which is consumed in the United States.

Equal Treatment Urged.

This must appeal to any reader, whether free trader or protectionist, on the theory that if the manufacturer is entitled to protection in what he sells at home, it is manifestly fair that the same treatment be given to the farmer. I have had fair-minded, intelligent businessmen who have a tremendous export business say to me that the trouble with the farmer is that he produces a surplus. The same criticism might apply to the manufacturer.

What reason can be advanced which would prevent the farmer from selling his surplus abroad at a reduced price and getting his protection on what he sells in his local market to the same extent as is granted to the manufacturer? Certainly none. The chief difficulty is to provide ways and means to do it.

I think this result can be accomplished, as far as wheat is concerned, by:

(1) Creating an act of Congress which will authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a daily price of wheat, based on the world's price plus 42 cents a bushel tariff, less freight, throughout the United States each day, the same as the daily price is now established by the future sales price in all of our terminal markets. Each day at the close of the market the purchase price of wheat throughout the United States is determined by the close, and the farmers have nothing whatever to say about it. Surely the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, representing the Government and the millions of farmers who compose part of our Government, has the same right to establish a price on part of the farmer's grain as determined by the close of the world's market price each day, plus the tariff.

Based on Production.

(2) This act should provide that the price established daily by the Secretary of Agriculture would apply to three-fourths of the wheat delivered by the farmer at any station in the United States, and the other one-fourth of his crop would be sold at the world's price, as now established by the daily card price, which is wired to the buyers each day, this ratio to change in accordance with production.

The elevator man or grain buyer would be required by law to buy the farmer's wheat at these established prices only, and any variation from the price set by the Government would subject the buyer to a fine of at least $10,000 and one year in prison. It would not in any way interfere with hedging or for that matter with speculation on any of the grain exchanges. Dealers and speculators would trade in two kinds of grains.

(3) In order to prevent overproduction, such as the McNary-Haugen bill, or the debenture plan, would stimulate, William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, has suggested to me that the Secretary of Agriculture should be authorized and empowered in the same act to vary the duty on wheat each year in accordance with the production. He could determine from present methods of report and estimating, what the yield would be, or he could use the previous year's actual results, and if the farmers increased their production in excess of normal conditions the tariff would be reduced accordingly, or the farmer would get the advantage of the tariff on a less percentage of his crop.

This would prevent overproduction in the only way by which it can ever be prevented, namely, by actual cost in dollars and cents to the producer if he refuses to restrict production. This arrangement would make the 42 cents a bushel effective on about 600,000,000 bushels of wheat each year, or, in round numbers, increased return to the farmer of approximately $250,000,000 more each year over the present system of determining the price of wheat.

Present Price-Fixing Cited.

There can not be any opposition on the grounds of price-fixing, as the price of wheat, cotton, corn and other farm products are determined each day now by the Chicago Board of Trade and other exchanges, and 32,000,000 people in the United States have to sell their commodity at a price determined by a limited number of people who trade in these commodities.

Surely, if these exchanges can determine the price of our farm products daily, our Government can determine them also, based on a world's price plus the tariff on the portion which is sold in the United States to the same extent as the tariff is effective today on manufactured products which are sold in the United States. Give the farmer the same equality and he will not need further legislation of any kind, and furthermore, he is not entitled to it.

We export about one-half of our cotton and a similar arrangement could be made whereby there would be a duty of 10 cents per pound effective on the cotton sold within the United States. We could greatly increase the market for cotton in the United States by restricting the importation of jute, sisal and other products which take from the American cotton farmer a market which is logically his. All grain, particularly Federal Farm Board grain, should be shipped in cotton sacks. A burlap sack has very little value after used once. A cotton sack can be used many times and costs only a few cents more. I estimate that if we use cotton sacks in all of our grain business and low-grade cotton wrappers to cover our cotton bales, that it would at least increase our home consumption by 1,000,000 bales. It seems absurd that we should cover cotton bales with jute.

We produce approximately 16,000,000 bales of cotton in the United States each year; 10 cents per pound would mean $50 more a bale, which would increase the return to our cotton farmers of $400,000,000 over and above the price which they would get by selling all of their cotton at a world's price. These two items alone would increase the purchasing power of the farmer $650,000,000, and every one knows that the farmer is the best buyer we have when he has the money to spend.

Other Crops Included.

This same argument applies to the producer of corn, tobacco, sugar, meat or wool, and there is no reason why it can not be done with these products as well as wheat and cotton, although it is a little difficult to determine what the price would be when we do not have an exportable surplus. There is no reason why we should let commodities, from other countries, which we can produce ourselves, come into our country when it can only be done by reducing our standards of living and our national income. Is it not better to raise the standard of living in other countries, thereby increasing the cost to them, than to try to bring our people down to the standards of other countries in order to compete?

There are, of course, other important things which can effect our present condition, such as foreign trade, reduction of debts and so forth. But the all-important thing today is to take care of our own condition and the above suggestions can be carried out without the expenditure of money or a great deal of new legislation. It can not be done, however, without the support of the business men. It is time for our businessmen to take up this problem and give it real thought, rather than to oppose every kind of legislation which has been advanced for the relief or improvement of agriculture.

The attitude of the United States Chamber of Commerce to the Federal Farm Board and the activity with which it and certain other business interests have opposed the Farm Board have led the farmer to believe that business as a whole is unfriendly to agriculture. This I know, from personal contact with many of our best-known business men, is not true. I can say from the same personal contact that business as a whole is very friendly to agriculture, but it has been inactive and negligent in regard to the farmer's problem. It is evident now that the business man must make the farm problem his own problem.

ROBINSON'S ATTACK BOOSTS HOPE OF FOES OF FURLOUGH

before his colleagues at this morning's economy committee session.

First, he will propose that hearings of the body, kept strictly executive last session, be thrown open to representatives of the Federal workers' cause in the future.

Second, he will suggest that recommendations of the various department heads, assembled during the summer for the information of committee members, be made public. A confidential committee print already is off the press.

Third, he will actively seek repeal of at least two economy act provisions —the clause requiring dismissal of workers whose husbands or wives also are employed, and the requirement that superannuated workers be retired.

Besides Senator Bingham, present at this morning's meeting probably will be Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, and Senator L. F. Dickinson (Republican), Iowa.

Senator Robinson yesterday, in assailing the Government furlough, declared savings already effected are inconsequential when compared with the total Federal budget and the disorganization that has resulted. He favored its outright repeal.

Attack Is Significant.

His further assault on proposals to curtail veterans' compensation and hospitalization is significant in view of the fact that he and five other members of the special veterans' committee, comprising a majority of the whole, are veterans.

He said he regards the Nation's annual $1,000,000,000 veterans' bill as a fixed charge, that can no more be reduced than the national debt, approximating $1,250,000,000 a year, or the combined cost of the Army and Navy, approximating $1,000,000,000.

Frankly, he said he saw small possibility of any great reduction in Federal expenditures. So far as the veterans are concerned, he favors increased benefits and the payment of the bonus, he said.

House opinion on the prospect of shaving veterans' costs varied yesterday. Business interests are seeking cuts as high as $400,000,000. The House economy committee last year proposed a $48,000,000 slash, but did not get it through the House. Some leaders think a $90,000,000 saving might be effected this session if agreement can be had on centralization of veterans' offices in Washington, and elimination of nonservice connected benefits.

Legion Group Meets.

Meantime a special committee of the American Legion, created at the Legion's Portland convention, met here yesterday to conduct an inquiry of its own into the effect of World War veterans' laws and their administration.

Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the Legion, said machinery was set in motion for examining into injustices and inequalities in veterans' laws and to suggest remedies for any abuses that might be found.

He said the Legion, as sponsor for much of the existing veterans' legislation, "is the most appropriate and best qualified organization to make recommendations for consideration of Congress as regards veterans' laws."

If statutory provisions or administrative practices are found which "impose on the Government and its nonveteran population," the Legion, he said, will move to correct them."

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, Democratic member, last night suggested cuts of approximately $400,000,000 could be made by eliminating both air mail and ocean subsidies, amounting to some $75,000,000; Shipping Board building construction fund, $35,000,000; magazines, some $25,000,000; Army and Navy items together, $150,000,000; building operations, $75,000,000; useless bureaus, $25,000,000.

Enraged Farmers Force Calling Off of Tax Sale

Winnipeg, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Municipal offices in the Town of Arborg, Manitoba, were stormed, clothes torn from the reeve, who was later forced to resign, and files of records, including assessment sheets, scattered to the winds today by a force of 500 farmers protesting against sale of farms for taxes.

Clothes were stripped from the reeve's back and his face was slapped. Irate demonstrators jumped on his toes. Then he was forced to sign a letter of resignation and call off a tax sale.

HAWAIIAN AUTONOMY FOES MAY DROP IDEA

Houston Informed House Bill to Change Home Rule Will Not Be Pushed.

(Associated Press.)

Victor S. K. Houston, Hawaiian delegate, said yesterday he had been informed by Chairman Williams, of the House territories committee, that the latter would not press his bill for changes in the government of the Territory.

Meanwhile, whether the Senate territories committee takes up in December the so-called Richardson bills for changing the form of Hawaii's government, depended on the arrival date of an Hawaiian commission.

Chairman Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, said that the committee was ready to hold hearings whenever the commission appeared. His impression was the group would arrive within three weeks.

Early Action Unlikely.

Otherwise, he said, the committee would work on the bills at its own convenience, indicating that because of the usual pressure of opening business no action could be taken until January.

The committee, Bingham said, would suit its labors to the expected commission's convenience, and if that group arrived in mid-December, hearings would be held immediately.

The Richardson bills, which carry out the recommendations of Seth Richardson, Assistant Attorney General, following an investigation after the Massie incident, were introduced by Bingham.

Would End Home Rule.

The Williams bill sharply curtailed the power of the Hawaiian residents to choose their officials and vested most territorial executive jurisdiction in a series of department officers to be appointed by the President.

Houston said indications were that the attitude of Chairman Williams meant the end in the House of attempts to take away self-governing authority from the Territory, but that he would not predict this was so until he had observed other developments.

Houston said he hoped for action at this session on the proposal to place the care of lepers in Hawaii under the Federal Government. The Territory bears the expense at the present time.

Bond Is Set for 11 After Gaming Raids

Arrested in surprise raids by police on alleged gambling places Tuesday night, eleven men were released on $1,000 bonds each yesterday when they were arraigned in Police Court before Judge Ralph Given.

Twenty-five other persons, among several hundred taken in the raids, were booked as witnesses and were released on their personal bonds to appear when the cases are called for trial. Six others, held as material witnesses, were held under bonds of $100 each to insure their presence at the trials.

Those bonded yesterday were Sylvester R. Proctor, Andrew F. Steward, Meyer Sussman, Allen Sussman, Fred Woods, Henry A. Ryan, Madelin Page, Lee H. Smith, William Simpson, Seymour J. Jones and Dorothy Williams. The charge against the eleven is that they permitted gaming.

would say that the resolution would muster two-thirds of the House membership, they were counting on having enough votes allowing for absentees. Estimates of the number of votes ranged from 240 to 274 or 275.

Adequate Legislation.

The repeal resolution, however, is not the subject with which Mr. Colpoys and District wets are primarily concerned at the moment. They are looking at the prospective Volstead modification law. Speaker Garner predicts that the House will pass a modification bill some time before the first of the year. District leaders are anxious that adequate legislation dealing with the District shall be made a part of that modification program.

There is a difference of opinion as to just what has been the status of the Sheppard law since enactment of the superseding Volstead law. Some contend that the Volstead law repealed the Sheppard law by sufficiently definite implication to make the latter inoperative and ineffective.

Corporation Counsel McBride is of this opinion about most of the Sheppard law provisions at least. Mr. Colpoys is dubious about the matter. The question never has been brought to decision in the courts.

Important for District.

Assuming enactment of a beer bill, the question which would confront District officials is as to what was to be done about it. Congress could leave the matter of local regulation to the States, but because of its position as town council of the National Capital, it must itself act specifically for the District.

The program which will be urged by Mr. Colpoys provides for specific repeal of the Sheppard law and enactment of an entirely new local law setting up machinery and prescribing the manner in which beer may be made and sold locally.

"This is a very important thing for the people of the District," Mr. Colpoys said. "The consensus here is against prohibition and is overwhelmingly in favor of an outright repeal of the prohibition amendment. We want to eliminate the scores on scores of speakeasies which are spread through the city and take the sale of beer out of the hands of law violators and put its handling in charge of decent, law-respecting and law-abiding citizens.

Local Control Needed.

"To accomplish this we will need a new law regulating the sale and transportation in the District. We want a reasonable law which law-abiding and self-respecting citizens can and will live up to. Control must be put under our local authorities.

"It is impossible to bring back the old-fashioned saloon, but we should have some place where a decent citizen can decently go and get a decent glass of beer. I am convinced of this after a study of the situation, and, I might add, I am not speaking for myself, for I am a total abstainer.

"Another factor to be considered is the additional and desired revenue which the District could derive from properly regulated manufacture and sale of beer here under local authority."

Estate Sold

Matthew Trimble, Jr., Buys Historic Stratton on Chesapeake.

A most interesting transaction was announced yesterday by the local real estate firm of Sandoz, Inc., through its vice president, Harvey L. Jones. It is the purchase at an unreported consideration by Matthew Trimble, jr., retired business man, of Kensington, Md., of Stratton, historic old southern Maryland estate, from Mrs. Frank Letts, of this city. The estate is situated on Chesapeake Bay, a mile below the mouth of the Patuxent River, adjoining Cedar Point.

The original manor house on the estate, still in fine condition, is of "brick-nogg" construction, uniquely covered with weatherboards, hand cut and fitted together with beading. It is thought to have been built in 1690 by one of the early settlers to whom the land was patented by Lord Baltimore. Later the property is said to have been in the possession of the Key family, close friends and neighbors of the Carrolls and Sewalls.

The house is surrounded by beautiful old trees and shrubs, with its lawn extending down to the beach. At this point the bay is very wide and at times quite a surf breaks on the sandy shore. The farm now comprises approximately 300 acres and there is a mile of beach front. There are two fresh-water lakes on the property, a popular haven for wild fowl because of the wild rice growing in them.

HOOVER 'BLANKETED' EMPLOYES, IS CLAIM

McKellar Charges President Is Making Civil Service 'G. O. P. Aid Society.'

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was said yesterday by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, to have "blanketed" into the civil service nearly as many persons as Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge combined.

The senator issued his statement in stepping into the controversy that started after Representative McClintic (Democrat), Oklahoma, proposed examinations for the hundreds placed under civil service to determine whether they were qualified.

Commenting on a statement by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, terming McClintic's proposal the height of "rapacity of the new majority party," McKellar said:

"If these people who are being blanketed in by Mr. Hoover can stand the competitive examination, all well and good; but to put them in by a political machine is contrary to every principle of real civil service."

The Tennesseean listed Hoover transfers to the civil service without examination at 2,717, including 1,635 employes of Soldiers' Home; Wilson's, 1,276; Harding's, 79, and Coolidge's, 1,744.

McKellar said the Civil Service Commission "either knowingly or inadvertently has lent itself to aiding in getting Republicans in and keeping them in the civil service."

He added if the commission's recommendations in its annual report that first, second and third class postmasters, collectors of internal revenue and customs, marshals and attorneys be placed under civil service, is adopted, the commission should change its name to "Republican Aid Society."

"There is not a semblance of real civil service in these proposals," he said. "Why do they not also recommend putting members of the President's Cabinet and all under them under civil service? That would limit Democratic office holders to the President and members of the House and Senate."

TWO FOUND GUILTY IN TEA HOUSE DEATH

Zalenski drove a car of the sort used in the holdup.

"Doggy" Leavitt, manager of the tea house in which one man was killed and four others wounded, was the first witness yesterday after the State had unexpectedly rested its case at 9:55. Leavitt said he knew both of the defendants, but was unable to identify them among the holdup men. He revealed that attempts had been made, supposedly by Baltimore detectives, to get him to give evidence against the men on trial. He was followed by a number of character witnesses for Wallace and then by Zalenski.

Zalenski denied all knowledge of the shooting of Thomas Simone, who yesterday turned State's evidence because he said he had been promised immunity on a murder charge in the same case.

Denies Knowledge of Case.

Talking of the tea house, he was asked:

"Do you know anything that happened there on November 23"

A. What I read in the paper.

Q. When did you have any knowledge of it, either by the papers or otherwise?

A. Well, I seen it in the papers when the extras were out.

Q. Do you know Simone?

A. I do not.

Q. Did you ever see him prior to this tea house affair?

A. I never seen him until he came to the Marlboro Jail.

Wallace also testified that he had nothing to do with the shooting, although he admitted he had been to the house.

Defense lawyers last night were not sure whether they would ask for an appeal or a new trial in the case, which was removed from Prince Georges County on a change of venue. It was intimated the sentence on Wallace and Zalenski would be pronounced in about three days.

HOUSE BOARD FINDS 326 DOUBLE TAXES

Vinson Cites Gasoline as an Example of Federal and State Levy.

(Associated Press.)

A special House committee which investigated double taxation yesterday reported that it had found 326 cases where both Federal and State governments asked the citizen to pay on the same object.

An incident cited in the statement issued by Representative Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, chairman of the committee, was gasoline taxes. Each State collects on the sale of gasoline. So does the Government and the District of Columbia.

In addition to listing instances of double taxation, a preliminary report soon to be issued will discuss the taxing powers, the Federal tax system and that of the States and subdivisions. Expenditures also will be gone into.

Public hearings are planned later, using the report as a basis, and a final report probably will recommend changes in the present taxing systems.

Vinson said the committee had determined that the taxing power of the Government and the States was very broad and that there was no legal bar to double taxation, although there were limitations in some cases.

The total per capita tax burden in the United States on the basis of data gathered by the committee, the statement said, was $77.53 for 1931, as against $68.27 for 1922.

"There has been a decrease in the Federal tax burden since 1922," it continued, "but this has been more than offset by the increase in the case of local taxes. The city per capita tax burden in 1922 was approximately $14.97 as against $24.26 for 1931, an increase of over 62 per cent."

In addition to Vinson, the committee is composed of Representatives Cullen of New York, and Lewis, of Maryland, Democrats, and Chindblom, of Illinois, and Crowther, of New York, Republicans.

duit road, Mrs. Brown drove the machine into a driveway between two stores and parked. With little Louise, the shopping was soon finished and they returned to the car. Mrs. Brown resumed the driver's seat and Louise climbed in beside her.

Turning her head to watch in the rear, Mrs. Brown started to back from the driveway. She turned the machine's wheels sharply to the left and began to move in reverse.

Suddenly she heard a scream and felt the front wheels roll over an object "like a big stone." She jammed on the brakes, turned her head, and horror-stricken, saw that Louise was not beside her. The door of the machine was swinging open.

As Mrs. Brown jumped from the car, bystanders hurried to pick up little Louise. She was lying semiconscious in the driveway. Witness said she toppled from the machine and a front wheel passed across the middle of her body.

At the hospital it was found the child suffered ruptures of the spleen and liver. The results of X-rays were awaited to determine other possible injuries.

way of avoiding a general revenue revision.

Steagall, after talking over the range of the farm mortgage question with Mr. Roosevelt, agreed to meet the President-elect later in New York to discuss the matter again. No conclusion came out of today's discussion. There are about $900,000,000 of farm mortgages outstanding.

The two discussions came during a series of conferences Mr. Roosevelt held with various members of Congress who came to Warm Springs during the day, including Senator Long, of Louisiana, and Bennett C. Clark, senator-elect from Missouri.

Steagall said he believed general banking legislation was too difficult a task for Congress to attempt in the restricted time of the short session. He added he still favored enactment of the Steagall bank deposit insurance measure and the Goldsborough money stabilization bill, both of which are pending in the Senate, but said he did not expect them to be enacted at the coming session.

Long said the enactment of legislation balancing the budget, dealing with the farm problem and legalizing the sale of beer should be enacted at the regular short session if an extra meeting were to be avoided. He expressed fear that all of these could not be done at the short session, although, he added, the President-elect was giving intensive thought to the farm question.

The Louisiana senator said he had already brought to Mr. Roosevelt a recommendation that James M. Thompson, publisher of the New Orleans Item, be made Secretary of War in the new Cabinet. Clark, a brother-in-law of Thompson, came to Warm Springs with Long.

For farm relief he asserted, there must be controlled production. He said he intended to press for action on his proposal for limiting incomes to $1,000,000 a year and inheritances to $5,000,000 yearly.

For the first time since the President-elect has been in Warm Springs, State matters intruded upon him today with the transmission of a request from the New York City board of estimate for a special session of the Legislature to be called so that the city may cut the salaries of city employes. He planned to discuss the matter with Lieut. Gov. Lehman over the long distance telephone.

Mr. Roosevelt had no comment to make on the request, but he recently expressed the opinion no advantage would be served in calling a special meeting of the Legislature.

Hunger Marchers Plan Trek to Warm Springs

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 30 (U.P.).—Hunger marchers held the first of three mass meetings tonight prior to leaving Saturday for Warm Springs and a planned demonstration at the cottage where President-elect Roosevelt is vacationing.

George W. Christians, of Chattanooga, Tenn., president of the Crusaders for Economic Liberty, said that 2,000 persons would leave here Saturday morning to demand of Roosevelt "that money be based on human effort and not on metals" and that he "carry out the Democratic creed of economic liberty for all."

LINER NEEDS STORM TO TEST STABILIZERS

Conte di Savoia on Maiden Voyage With Observers to Study Device.

S. S. Conte di Savoia, en route to New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The officers and many of the passengers aboard this new Italian liner were hoping for rough, instead of calm, weather today as ship pulled out of Genoa on her maiden voyage to New York.

They were curious about the performance of the gyroscopic stabilizers, which are expected to permit the vessel to ride the heaviest sea on level keel, thus eliminating the possibility of seasickness and generally reducing the discomforts of ocean travel.

Dr. Herbert Lee Seward, professor of mechanical engineering at Yale, was perhaps the most curious of all. He is acting as impartial observer on behalf of the Italian Line and of the Sperry Co., American makers of the stabilizer, invented by the late Dr. Elmer Sperry, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The whole world of engineering is keenly interested in the test of the "roll-proof" machinery, Dr. Seward said.

Other technical observers aboard include Dr. A. L. Rawlings, of London; P. R. Bassett, chief engineer of the Sperry Co.; F. P. Hodgkinson, engineer, who installed the gyroscopes, and Commandante Carlo Pfaister, former naval attache at the Italian Embassy, in Washington, and now technical adviser of the Italian Line.

Among the American passengers who embarked at Genoa are Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, of New York, with his wife and daughters; former Representative and Mrs. George Loft; Gurney Munn, of Washington, and Jackson Chambers, of the Bronxville (N. Y.) National Bank.

Ford Speedometer Inventor Is Upheld

Stewart-Warner Company Ordered to Pay 3 3-4 Cents Royalty.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The Stewart-Warner Corporation was directed by Judge Robert N. Pollard, in law and equity court today, to pay to Marvin Smithey, Mecklenburg County lawyer, a royalty of 3¾ cents on each of the speedometers manufactured or delivered by the corporation and used on Ford automobiles since 1924. Unofficial estimates of the amount involved aggregated several hundred thousand dollars.

Thomas B. Gay, counsel for the defendant, noted an appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. The case had been pending in law and equity court since 1927.

Judge Pollard held the license agreement signed between Smithey, who invented the device several years ago, and Stewart-Warner in 1921 to be legal, as well as the supplementary agreement signed in 1924. Both, the court ruled, are "in full force and effect."

OCEAN AIRLINE PLAN BARED BY LINDBERGH

Fleet of "Clipper Ships" to Cross Seas Regularly Within 2 Years.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with officials of the Pan-American Airways, unfolded plans today for development of transoceanic aviation by which they hope to dominate intercontinental air transportation.

Within two years, this airline plans to set out upon oceanic schedules a fleet of four-motored, all metal monoplane "clipper ships."

As were the "clipper ships" of sailing days, these airliners, built for efficiency rather that for size, will be sent into the trade routes to gain for American aviation the supremacy in passenger and pay load traffic.

Their design contemplates use on all the present ocean routes: America to Europe via Newfoundland-to-Ireland and Bermuda-to-Azores; and across the Pacific with a stop in Hawaii.

Sitting cross-legged on an office table near Trippe, Col. Lindbergh amplified the announcement with a discussion on the design of the airships.

This was the flier's first meeting with newspapermen in more than six months.

From these officials, it was learned:

The ships will be built to cover a distance up to 2,400 miles at one hop—this being the longest jump in the transpacific travel.

They will be of the "flying boat" type, smaller in size than the DO-X, but larger than any fleet of ships now in commercial schedules.

The Pan-American refused to disclose technical details of engineering. It was said, however, that the ocean travelers would carry more passengers, attain a greater cruising speed and be larger overall than the trio of "Clipper" type planes now flying the Caribbean route of this line.

Daughter of Adm. Moffett Offers Services in Toy Fund

Other Contributions Swell Amount to $147.25; Aid Is Urged.

The Post Toy and Doll Fund recruited a notable Santa Claus aid yesterday for its mission of making certain that no needy child in Washington is without a merry Christmas in 1932.

It was Miss Beverly Moffett, the school girl daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. William A. Moffett, who from the time she was 3 years old has been an ardent worker for the annual roll call of the District chapter of the American Red Cross.

Miss Moffett visited the Post Toy and Doll Fund headquarters yesterday to offer her services to the fund and to match Ding-How of Hydegree with three dimes on behalf of her own pets, Patrick, Irish wolf hound, who has taken a number of blue ribbons in local shows; Aviatrix, wire-haired terrier, and Gigilo, also a wire-haired terrier.

Raising funds for worthy causes is no novelty to this young Navy girl. Through her personal efforts in the Red Cross roll calls she has raised hundreds of dollars, securing many of her contributions from national notables, including Cabinet members, high ranking officers of the Army and Navy and other official and social celebrities.

Miss Moffett said she was going to enlist her classmates in the Eastman School for Girls in the task of collecting toys and books for The Post Toy and Doll Fund.

Yesterday was a red-letter day for Ding-How of Hydegree, anyway, in his activities for The Post Toy and Doll Fund.

The first thing in the morning a letter was brought to him from Mrs. Maude McLaughlin with a check for $5 inclosed, given in memory of Mah Jongg, a Pekingese dog, a close friend of Ding-How's, who died several years ago.

Ding-How had other pleasant surprises during the day, one when Bunky Miller, pet of Wilbur Miller, circulation manager of The Washington Post and practically all of Wynnewood Park, Md., where the Millers live, matched him with a crisp dollar bill.

Another dollar came to Ding-How from Mickey and Sister Boyce, two dogs, who sent their picture along with their contribution. Sister Boyce is a member of Ding-How's Pekingese family. He was much gratified by the support from one of his own cousins, so The Post Toy and Doll Fund snowball is getting larger and larger. Last night it had $147.25 on hand, a promise that before the end of the week the second $100 in the fund would be reached soon.

To the cashier of The Washington Post, who is in charge of the Fund, a welcome letter came yesterday bearing $17.75, the gift of The Washington Post Composing Room Chapel for the fund. And then came a second gift of $2.30 from The Washington Post Circulation Department, which has been entered under the title of "Inasmuch As" in the printed list of yesterday's receipts.

The Santa Claus Lady in The Post Library received a number of toys yesterday. The library looks so much like Santa Claus' workship now that, if he should stumble into it by accident, he would imagine that he were back in his North Pole home. The Christmas cheer that starts from that magic spot has spread to every nook and corner of The Washington Post, the Capital's Greatest Newspaper.

At Christmas time The Post wants to do its full share to see that Santa Claus does not miss any child in Washington.

KRONICK CONFESSES BIGAMY AND ESCAPE FROM CHAIN GANG

New York, where Kronick was captured, stood in New York police headquarters yesterday and heard him admit he had a wife and three children living in the Bronx.

In 1921 Kronick was convicted here of grand larceny under the name of James Rawlins and was sentenced to jail. When police learned of the aliases he had used, they found the fingerprints of James Rawlins and they tallied with a print found on the paneling of a door of an apartment at 3817 Thirty-sixth street northwest he is suspected of having robbed.

In this apartment, after it had been robbed, the detectives found a pasteboard box which had been taken from an apartment at 3625 Sixteenth street northwest that had been victimized.

Hasn't Seen Youngest Child.

Detainers for Kronick and his allegedly bigamous wife have been sent to New York by local police, although he and his wife have insisted that she is innocent of any knowledge of his thefts.

Mrs. Lillian Kronick, his first wife, who lives in the Bronx, said today she had seen her husband but once in there years, and then he was in jail. She said she had three children and her husband had never seen the youngest child.

Besides telling of his wife and children in the Bronx, Kronick also said he had kept from the second woman he married all knowledge that he had escaped from jail in Lexington, Ky., and from a prison camp in Georgia, and that he had jumped bail in Mount Vernon, N. Y., in 1929.

Held in $5,000 Bail.

Detective Bragg, said the second Mrs. Kronick, who was a dental hygienist before she married, was held in high esteem in Washington, Questioned in the line-up she said she knew nothing of his criminal career and believed him to be a construction engineer.

Police said he came to New York after eluding Baltimore police in a mad race for liberty during which he lost his hat, which led to his eventual arrest and identification. The hat bore a Washington label through which Washington police traced its ownership. They then placed the woman under surveillance, which resulted in the arrests when she went to New York and was met by Kronick.

Kronick told police the burglaries in Washington and Baltimore were all committed this month, but that he could not remember any addresses.

In admitting the burglaries, he was emphatic in his declarations that the woman had not taken part in them and that she knew nothing about them. He said various articles of jewelry he had given her were stolen. The woman told police she believed he had bought them for her.

Arraigned before Magistrate Adolph Stern in Jefferson Market court, in New York, they were held in $5,000 bail each as fugitives from justice for a hearing Friday. In addition, Kronick was held without bail for hearing on the same date on a charge of violation of the Sullivan act.

Baltimore, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Four warrants, obtained today against Kenneth M. Hundred and a woman arrested with him, who gave the name of Frances L. Hundred, 26, were sent to New York, where the two are held.

One warrant charged the woman with receiving stolen goods, two others charged Hundred with stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $800, and the fourth with assault on James Clark, a wealthy utility company employe, in whose automobile the prisoner recently made his escape from Baltimore detectives.

Randle Highlands Society Is Told Subversive Groups Backing Invasion.

The "hunger marchers" now converging in the Capital were described by Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke, in an address last night before the Randle Highlands Citizens Association at a meeting in the Benjamin G. Orr School.

The detective chief told the group that information which he had obtained indicated that the marchers have been prompted in their movement by subversive organizations.

He also suggested that the citizens were not taking the advantage of the police radio system which they might take. He urged that if they became suspicious of any one to communicate with police and the person would be investigated.

His address dwelt principally with the story of the making of a policeman and emphasized the intensive training that is given a rookie policeman before he is placed on the street. Adelbert W. Lee presided.

Yeggs Get $1,200 Loot And Overlook $30,000

Yeggman forced open two safes and a vault in the offices of J. C. Weedon Co., 1727 K street northwest, before the premises were opened yesterday morning, and escaped with $200 in cash and $1,000 in jewelry. Securities valued at about $30,000 were overlooked by the thieves.

Two strong boxes, each weighing 300 pounds, were removed from the building, but it was said that securities contained in them were not negotiable. The robbers had evidently carted their loot away in a waiting truck.

Comdr. Tardy, 57, Dies in Annapolis

Tardy (retired), 57 years old, died in the Naval Hospital following an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Evelina Frances Delano, 86, widow of Rear Admiral Francis H. Delano, died in Emergency Hospital, of pneumonia.

ers on the Capitol Plaza will not be permitted, the Capitol Police Board decided. Display of banners will be prohibited, under recommendations to be made to the Speaker and Vice President.

A committee, headed by William Reynolds, national chairman of the Unemployed Councils of America, today will seek audience with the Speaker and Vice President. A further demand that food and housing be provided and that the hunger marchers be allowed to demonstrate at the Capitol is expected to be presented.

Group Reaches Scranton.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Riding in sedans and trucks, more than 100 self-styled "hunger marchers," on their way to Washington, D. C., from Western States, arrived here late today for an overnight stop.

The group, including a number of women, said they would start early tomorrow on the next leg of their trip.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Groups of persons from New England, New York and New Jersey straggled into Trenton tonight on their way to Washington.

Four truck loads of them held a meeting on the steps of City Hall, which was guarded by more than 20 policemen. There was no disorder.

The travelers were to spend the night in a rented hall, Gov. A. Harry Moore having refused use of State armories, which had been requested. Mayor George B. La Barre in a statement said the trip to Washington was for the "sole purpose of harassing the President, Congress, and interfering with the orderly conduct of the Federal Government."

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Two columns of "marchers," traveling in battered trucks and automobiles to Washington, made themselves uninvited guests of more Ohio cities today and officially received only cold receptions.

Fed by Communists.

The largest group, 600 strong, moved from Cleveland to Akron, where Communist leaders gave them lunch, and then to Youngstown, where they had to shift for themselves.

Mayor Marke Moore, of Youngstown, canceled previously made arrangements for food and lodging with the statement: "We are trying to raise money to take care of our own. We should not give aid or comfort to any communistic groups trying to increase discontent."

A second group of about 160 left Columbus for Steubenville, where Mayor J. C. McMaster deputized 50 extra policemen to keep them moving through the city. An "advance guard" demanded food a place to sleep and gasoline for their trucks, but the mayor warned them they would not be allowed to stop in that city.

Won't Give Transportation.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.). Informed by Ohio authorities that about 150 hunger marchers en route to Washington left Columbus today for Wheeling, Adjt. Gen. Carleton C. Pierce said the State of West Virginia would not furnish transportation across the northern Panhandle.

Pierce said a detachment of State troopers would be asked to watch the marchers on their way across the State, but otherwise no official aid would be extended to them.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 30 (U.P.). Six hunger marchers, who admitted they were communistic, were released today, after being arrested in a vagrancy roundup, when they promised City Judge Martin Fleming they would leave town at once.

Broken Into Small Units.

March leaders said the total column, about 100, had been separated into small units to prevent failure of the march by detention of any one body.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Twenty truckloads of marchers en route from New York to Washington for a demonstration arrived in this city under police escort today at noon.

After a brief rest the marchers started out again, under the eyes of a police escort which accompanied them to the city line. They were headed for Elizabeth, N. J.

Klan Rally to Protest Hunger Marches Called

Signs, lettered in red ink and attached to trees and poles along highways in Arlington County, Va., last night, brought notice of a mammoth rally of the Ku Klux Klan, to be staged tomorrow night as a protest against the coming invasion of "hunger marchers."

The first signs to appear read: "Call of the Klan. Report to your exalted cyclops." Others, scattered along the roads at various intervals, informed readers that "Communism will not be tolerated. The Ku Klux Klan rides again."

A parade of the Klansmen will start from the Ku Klux Klan Field, Clements and Wilson avenues, in Ballston, Va., shortly after dark tomorrow. Led by the Ballston Klan Band, the march will circle the county and return to the field to burn the fiery cross and hear an address by the grand dragon of the State of Virginia.

Farmers' Group Reaches Iowa on Way to Capital

Marshalltown, Iowa, Nov. 30 (A.P.). Eighty representatives of the "United Farmers League" resumed their trip to Washington today after spending the night in the Coliseum here.

The group, which claimed to represent farm organizations in Nebraska, Montana and the Dakotas, hoped to reach Washington for the national farm relief conference December 7.

Resolution Fights Feeding Marchers

Rhode Island Citizens Refer Plan to Committee on Legislation.

A resolution asking the District authorities to refrain from feeding any "hunger marchers" was referred to the legislative committee for consideration after it had been offered from the floor at last night's meeting of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association.

Thirty-five persons were admitted to membership. Prizes were awarded to A. W. Culverwell, M. C. Wilson, J. A. Durksen, L. W. Goodman, A. G. Davis and R. L. Ross for their efforts in the association's current membership drive under the chairmanship of Ora T. Haines.

A resolution which asked that District smoke laws be amended to include railway locomotives was adopted. Speakers at the meeting were A. J. Driscoll, president of the Midcity Citizens Association, and W. I. Cleveland, president of the Kensington (Md.) Chamber of Commerce.

GARI MELCHERS, 72, FAMED ARTIST, DIES

Was Recipient of Numerous World Honors; Expires at Fredericksburg.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.). Gari Melchers, 72, world-famed artist, died here at 9:30 a. m. today of heart trouble.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Melchers studied in Germany and France. In addition to his creative work he took an active interest in matters connected with art, being a member of the Virginia Fine Arts Commission, a trustee of the Corcoran Art Gallery, of Washington, D. C. His work had received official recognition in Europe and in America.

Formerly a resident of New York, Mr. Melchers had made his home in Fredericksburg for the past twelve years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Corinne L. Melchers.

Mr. Melchers inherited his love of art from his father, Julius Theodore Melchers, a sculptor, who came to America from Westphalia, Germany. The son, after studying for three years at the Academy of Fine Arts, Dusseldorf, Germany, became a pupil of Boulanger and Lefevre at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris.

His first painting to be exhibited was "The Letter," placed at the Paris Salon in 1882. Four years later his "The Sermon," now hanging in the Corcoran Gallery, received honorable mention at the Paris Salon and since then his awards have been numerous. He received recognition from salons in Amsterdam, Munich, Berlin, Antwerp and Vienna, won a grand prize at the Paris Exposition and gold medals at the Pan-American, St. Louis and Sesquicentennial Expositions in this country.

Funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

GERMAN WAR LOOMS IF HINDENBURG QUITS

istry, who is seeking to establish a political truce for the winter. But Hitler did not show up.

Boarding a Berlin train at Munich, he left it at Jena and went to Weimar. There he conferred with four of his lieutenants—Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Joseph Goebbels and Gregor Strasser. At the conclusion of the conference all information was denied to the press. Hitler declined to say whether he would proceed to Berlin to meet Gen. von Schleicher.

According to a source usually most reliable, Hitler has been asked to reply point blank to a question about his plans for tomorrow, as President von Hindenburg insists that the future of Germany must be decided before tomorrow is over.

Broadly speaking, the middle and moderate left newspapers favor Gen. von Schleicher as chancellor, and the rightist Nationalist papers support Franz von Papen, now the acting chancellor.

The Allgemeine Zeitung, which still advocates Hitler, printed on its front page rumors that Baron Konstantin von Neurath, the foreign minister, was opposed to Gen. von Schleicher because he feared the effect the general's name might have on the foreign policy. The government press department hastened to deny this rumor. A semiofficial source said the chances were about 8 to 10 that Gen von Schleicher would get the chancellorship.

The report of President von Hindenburg's possible resignation, printed in Der Deutsche, said the Hohenzollern family was not agreed about who should be the vice regent. The former crown prince would like the post, as he hoped it would lead to his becoming emperor, the newspaper said, but Princess Hermine, wife of the Kaiser, recently came from Doorn with news that his imperial father objected. It was reported that Crown Princess Cecilie was advocating her eldest son, Wilhelm.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN BASIC CONDITIONS

Fifth Federal Reserve Area Reports More Money Now in Circulation.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Evidences of "improved basic conditions" in the Fifth Federal Reserve District were reported today by the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank.

In its monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions, the bank said there were seasonal increases in trade in some lines in October and the first half of November, as well as a fundamental improvement.

In banking, developments indicated that some money has returned to circulation from hoards. This, the review said, was indicated by increased demand deposits in reporting member banks in spite of a decline in loans. Further, the actual circulation of Federal Reserve notes of the Richmond bank declined, while ordinarily at the period under review circulation rises several million dollars. Therefore, nine other indicators show a seasonal expansion of trade with a resultant need for more money with which to transact business. The increased deposits and decreased circulation shows that additional funds are coming into trade channels from sources outside the banks.

Savings deposits in mutual savings banks increased in October, the report showed, and time deposits in reporting member banks remained practically unchanged.

The district's commercial failure record in October was said to be about in line with the record of other recent months, but worse than the national record for the month. No improvement in unemployment conditions was reported, but rather some seasonal increase in the number of unemployed.

Coal production improved seasonally, but less than in October last year. In the textile field, mills continued operations on full daylight shifts, with increased pay rolls reflected in improved trade in mill centers.

Cotton prices were lower than last year, but domestic consumption and exports improved over October, 1931. Tobacco manufactures declined in October, as against October, 1931. Auction tobacco markets sold much less tobacco than in October last year, and this year's prices, while higher than last year, were low in view of the short crop due to carry over.

Two Women Injured By Fan in Tax Office

Two women were slightly injured yesterday afternoon in the District tax collector's office, when a fan was dislodged by workmen.

Miss Elmerdean Bailey, 28, of 1306 Park road, was hit on the foot, and Mrs. Emory Barlow, 52, of 1737 Riggs road northwest, was struck on the head. Both went home after receiving first aid treatment.

LOTTERY TRIAL CASE IS NOW 3-CORNERED

Mann and Hering Attorneys Say Clients Unaware of Details.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Trial of Conrad H. Mann, Kansas City business leader; Frank E. Hering, Eagles Magazine editor, and Bernard C. McGuire and Raymond Walsh, promoters, of Federal lottery charges became a three-cornered conflict today as the Government neared the end of its case.

Attempt by attorneys for Mann and Hering to show their clients were unaware of the details of the alleged lottery when Mann entered into contract with McGuire, brought Max D. Steuer, attorney for the promoters, to his feet.

Joseph R. Kelley, Kansas City attorney, while cross-examining Eugene J. Balsiger, auditor for the Fraternal Order of Eagles, asked him if McGuire had not told Mann that the plan he had for making awards in an enterprise known as the "Charity Frolic and Dance" had the approval of United States Senator James J. Davis.

The witness answered in the affirmative, and added that McGuire thought Mann ought to be satisfied with Davis' approval. Prosecutor Louis Mead Treadwell told the court he could not see the propriety of this line of cross-examination.

"I am trying to show," Kelley told the court, "that the defendants Mann and Hering did not know what the plan was."

With this Steuer stepped forth, indicating for the first time that the two sets of defendants, Mann and Hering on the one hand and McGuire and Walsh on the other, were without common defense.

Balsiger has thus far been the only witness in the case. Through him the Government introduced most of its physical evidence. He testified, with his books at hand, that a total of $1,759,273.69 was taken in on the "charity frolic and dance" enterprise, in which local aeries sold tickets for dances, the holders of the tickets participating in a grand distribution of prizes.

BRITAIN SENDS U. S. NEW NOTE ON DEBTS

they must travel before they can see daylight again in the matter of international financial obligations."

Mr. Bldwin pleaded that discretion and restraint be exercised by the British press and by individuals in discussions growing out of the war debts negotiations.

"Any unwise words," he said, "may do a great deal of harm to relations between our two countries."

King Receives Simon.

The impression that King George might be taking a hand in developments, or at least that he was keeping in close touch with them, was deepened today when he accorded an audience to Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary. In the last few days Prime Minister MacDonald and Mr. Chamberlain also discussed developments with the king.

The new note, it was understood, runs about 6,000 words. Mr. MacDonald and his foreign secretary are leaving tomorrow for Geneva to participate in disarmament negotiations.

Paris, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—France will insist in a new war debt memorandum to the United States that the $20,000,000 payment due December 15 must be postponed, it was learned today on high authority.

The note, which will present France's reasons for this contention, was definitely outlined at a meeting of the cabinet presided over by Premier Edouard Herriot. The text still must be approved by the cabinet council, with President Albert Lebrun in the chair, which probably will be called into session tomorrow.

Position on Reparations.

One of the points inculcated in the memorandum, an authoritative source asserted, is that France has served as the monetary and financial supporter of many European countries and that in consequence payment of the December installment would provoke general difficulties.

The government also will outline to Washington the French conception of the consequences of the Hoover moratorium on the payment of reparations by Germany, and will describe the state of the French budget and treasury. Members of the Chamber of Deputies opposed to making the December payment have taken the position that France should remit to the United States no more than she receives from Germany.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Glory guards with solemn round
—O'Hara.

TRITE lines by now, perhaps, but America does herself proud in guarding the resting place of the Unknown Dead.

From 7:30 a. m. t i l 6 p. m., weather c o m e what may, a Fort Myer soldier is the sentry who adds the final touch of fitting dignity, the silent guardian against vandalism.

Take your stop-watch along on the next visit to Arlington. Notice the sentry goes through h i s paces as though timed. Twenty-eight steps, right-face, no more, no less.

John T. Dooner, Company D; Frank J. Gallagher, Company D, and Howard A. Ellinger, Company F, all Thirteenth Engineers, bore the honor Armistice Day on two-hour shifts.

Old Swarmi Fedd,
He left Port Said
To read from crystal balls.
He packed his grips,
Pressed tight his lips
Till he received some calls.

Said he, "I'l wage
I'll tell girls' age
And how they spend their time.
I'll peer and cheer
The folks, all dear,
And thus complete this rhyme."

And so, at great expense, Swarmi Fedd has come to Washington all the way from Guilford, Me., via Port Said. Knows all, sees all—and MIGHT tell all—under certain conditions.

THIS morning we see Swarmi Fedd, eyes fixed on the big ball, dictating these lines:

There is something about the words "Internal Revenue" that draws us—or is it that charming smile of Nina Burns? We do all right in the summer time when Nina dons that abbreviated blue bathing suit at the Airport Pool, but who is that fellow with the big, yellow roadster, radio-equipped and everything, who is monopolizing Nina's time? The only thing we know about this guy—or dare tell—is that he is left-handed and plays a rotten game of golf on the East Potomac course, at least . . .

And while we're in one of Uncle Samuel's most modern buildings, let's pause by Margaret Colpoys' desk. John Colpoys, Margaret's father, has become quite prominently mentioned as a result of his efforts in behalf of Franklin D. Roosevelt during the recent presidential campaign, but the only thing we could get Margaret to tell about was the law studies in which she is indulging some time between 4:30 p. m. and the following 9 a. m. . . .

We wonder if Agnes Golden, also of Internal Revenue, was ever late in arriving at her desk? We happen to know that it takes only about fifteen minutes for her to get from home to the office, yet she invariably leaves home at approximately 8 a. m. Is that a complex or an inhibition, or just plain ambition?

Let's get a new focus on the crystal ball. . . . For no reason at all, that reminds us of Fred Lyons, Internal Revenue—yes, they do have a large number of employes there—who at present is "somewhere on a boat." No one was able definitely to tell us whether it was on an ocean liner or a "drive-it-yourself" in the Tidal Basin, but it was the consensus that he is bound on a Panama Canal cruise. Until the picture postcards begin to come in we'll have to let it go at that.

All the deer in Maine hereby are warned to crawl into a hole—and pull the hole in after them—because Wesley L. Huntress, Airways Division, is somewhere in the Pinetree State with a gun—maybe two guns—and it will mean stark tragedy for our antlered friends and their orphans if he fulfills half of the promises to provide venison steak dinners for fellow employes.

Which reminds us that Edgar R. Ryan, of the same office, also has nimrodic aspirations and murderous intentions on the feathered population in the vicinity of Parris Island, S. C., where he is visiting.

In our most peering and prying mood we attempted to look into the private life of the stars—and we don't mean the motion picture stars—but found the instruments of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, which are used for observation of celestial bodies to correct navigation instruments, carefully locked away in the garret section of the southeast corner of the big Department of Commerce Building.

Going and coming, we passed through an office section on the seventh floor of the building, which for quiet, concentrated industry we have never seen paralleled. Some day we will gain courage enough to interrupt some one just long enough to find out what weighty affairs are handled in this busy department * * * It might be some branch of the Weights and Measures Bureau, also of the Commerce Department—but it isn't * * * Then down, but never out, to the Patent Office, where we were greatly intrigued by a new boon to the motoring public—the double footfeed accelerator pedal, serial No. 587361 * * * When your car is equiped with this interesting device and your right foot gets cramped, just press your left foot on a duplicate pedal at the other side of the clutch and brake pedals. Ah, just what the world has been waiting for. Let us be the first to acclaim a new Edison!

Roy Chapin, the big boss of the Commerce Department, has just returned from several days' trip to Florida by airplane. We understand that Mrs. Chapin went along. Time was when she used to think airplanes were a dangerous method of transportation for the father of six children. Probably the system of airways radio beacons and other improvements fostered by the Commerce Department has merited this evident approval of aerial travel by Mrs. Chapin.

What a tragedy that we had another engagement Monday evening when we encountered Hilda (Mrs. Bill) Ring, Iron and Steel Division, and found that she was bound for the bowling alleys with a strong determination to vanquish all of the other members of the Commerce Girls Bowling League, which gives us the idea of seeing Mrs. Lena Miller for further "dope" on this league. . . . And don't you just love those big blue eyes? If we were a duckpin we would just have to fall when they flashed their brilliance in our direction!

IT'S all in a day's work for Miss Charlotte Crabb, secretary to J. Leland Acuff, chief of Coordination and Special Agency, Prohibition Bureau. And so it was when George Barrows introduced me to Friend Acuff.

"Just tell him a couple of bootleggers are calling," suggested George.

"Yes; what names shall I tell him?"

"Tell him we don't go by name—just phone numbers," I suggested.

And so, smiling, we walked through the doorway of Mr. Acuff's office. If she suspects us, she hasn't said so.

Have you sent your contributory paragraphs to the Federal Diary?

"I think the column for Government workers is especially good." This is the comment from George C. Billard, chief clerk, administrative division, Prohibition Bureau.

C. T. TAYLOR, guardian of the $250,000 rock crystal globe in the National Museum, seldom gets farther than whisper range from his prized charge. Perched beneath its glass case atop a pedestal midway of the room in the center of the areaway, the ball forms a magnet for visiting eyes. "They value the crystal at $250,000," said Mr. Taylor, "but if I had my choice between the crystal and the money, I'd——." And the sentence went unfinished.

"If there is anything I dislike it is to try to play bridge with some one who insists upon carrying on a conversation across the board during the game." This is the view of Miss Frances Skelley, room 534, Prohibition Bureau. Miss Skelley hails from Missouri—Mexico, Mo., to be exact.

Federal workers eat more during rainy or cold weather, or at least more Federal workers eat in the department cafeterias, if the business noted by Miss R. B. Barnes, manager of the Interior Department Building cafeteria, is an index.

THIS is the bicentennial of another event aside from George Washington's birth. In 1732 A. DeBalz, a Frenchman, artistically inclined, drew sketches of a village of the Acolapissa Indians in Louisiana. They were the forerunners of the Choctaws. The drawings, in French archives these 200 years, have just been brought to light and are the guide for William H. Egberts, chief preparator in anthropology, Smithsonian, who is restoring the village in miniature for the institution. Asparagus ferns will supply the "pine trees."

Twenty thousand visitors inspected the recent chrysanthemum show at the Department of Agriculture greenhouses, J. Wise Byrnes, superintendent, finds after a check-up of his records on attendance. The greenhouses produced "mums" as large as 10 inches this year. As a matter of information, Mr. Byrnes adds there are 200 varieties of the large chrysanthemums and 500 of the small. Attendance this year was somewhat in excess of that for last season.

Fred G. Orsinger, aquarium director, Bureau of Fisheries, says he expects a shipment of white fish eggs soon from Lake Erie. They will be displayed and hatched in the Aquarium lobby. The Chinook salmon hatching display has been the chief attraction of the aquarium the last two weeks.

The Smithsonian Red Cross Auxiliary recently completed and sent to the District of Columbia twelve girls' dresses and twelve boys' shirts made from cotton donated to the Red Cross by the Government. Miss H. Munroe, Smithsonian, and M. B. C. Shuman, Natural History Museum, are receiving Red Cross subscriptions.

Congratulations to H. I. Rothrock, radio division, airways, Department of Commerce. The bride formerly was Miss Evelyn Folsom. When? Thanksgiving Day.

"IT may be of interest to know," says W. M. Hiley, personnel office, Panama Canal, "to know that our office is numbered among those having representation in the newly organized American Federation of Government Employes, sponsored by the American Federation of Labor. About 36 members are enrolled, or about 50 per cent of the personnel of this office. The constitution of this local lodge was adopted at a meeting Monday."

No, Oswald, they still don't give away samples at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

SIMS AND KARN HOLD TO LEAD IN TOURNEY

Ely Culbertson Is Far Ahead in Foursome Section With 36 Match Points.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—P. Hal Sims and Willard S. Karn showed no disposition to give up their national pair championship at the second session of the American Bridge League tournament tonight.

They led their section, one of six in the huge field of 188 players doing a four-day marathon for the Cavendish Club Trophy Sims and Karn won at Philadelphia last year.

The only out-of-town twosomes among the other section leaders were O. S. Emrich and E. M. Baker, and Maurice Maschke and Samuel Rockwell, both of Cleveland, and R. E. Horner, of Ottawa, and Mrs. Louise Bright, of Detroit.

Ely Culbertson's team, composed of himself, Oswald Jacoby, Theodore A. Lightner and Michael T. Gottlieb, maintained its lead in its section at the end of the second session tonight with 36 match points on 56 boards. Hugh W. Jackson substituted for Culbertson in the first session yesterday, but Culbertson played today and will continue throughout the tournament.

In the other section of the team championship, which has played 52 boards, a foursome composed of H. P. Jaeger and E. C. Wolfe, of Cleveland, and W. J. Pray and Joseph E. Cain, of Indianapolis, took the lead with 30 points.

Twenty-one teams are playing in this tournament for the Chicago trophy now held by Commander Winfield Liggett, jr., Mrs. Norman N. Newman, George Unger and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Banfield, all of New York. The event will end after a third session tomorrow. The pair tournament runs through Friday.

Horner and Mrs. Bright confessed that their lead might partly be accounted for by a top on one hand which they won on a fluke—Mrs. Bright failed to hear a bid.

Hoax Bared

"Substitute" Defendant in Gaming Case Freed on $1,000 Bond.

Alleged to have attempted to impersonate a man who was to have been tried on a gaming charge, Stanley Herbert Ball, of 1316 Park road northwest, yesterday was released on a $1,000 bond after the alleged attempted substitution was discovered by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon.

Two men, William Sachs and Richard Allen, were to be tried on a gaming charge, and when the case was called Sachs and Ball appeared before the bench. The officers in the case, Detectives C. D. Schamp and Kenneth Pratt, identified Sachs, but they declared the man who was supposed to be Allen was not the man they arrested under that name.

Judge McMahon immediately ordered Ball arrested, and, after a conference between Frank Adams, assistant United States attorney, and Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, it was decided to book Ball for trial on a charge of false personation with the intent to defraud.

A bond of $500 that had been posted by Edward Buckley for the appearance of Allen, was ordered forfeited by Judge McMahon. Meanwhile, the trial of Sachs and Allen was postponed indefinitely when police were unable to locate the latter.

Seals Sale Nets $6,000 During First Three Days

More than 600,000 Christmas seals, representing $6,000, have been sold in the first three days of the sale by the Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, president of the organization, announced last night.

Mrs. Grant said the result was up to the records of previous years and a splendid start on the goal of $50,000 with which the association will finance its protective health work during the coming year.

A.F.L. NOW INDORSES IDLENESS INSURANCE

Former Stands Reversed; Convention Also Asks for Early Repeal.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Completely reversing its former stands, the American Federation of Labor today declared its support of a system of unemployment insurance.

It accepted its executive council's plan for compulsory unemployment insurance, paid for by industry and administered by the State.

As they did in calling for the six-hour day and five-day week, delegates backed their plans with threats of strikes and boycotts.

"We will go out and fight for our program," President William Green had declared, and other speakers had urged that "just as our president threatened 'force' in gaining our other 'demands,' so we can resort to force in the interest of unemployment relief."

Green had explained in referring to his threat of "force," that he meant "economic force"—strikes, boycotts and picketing.

In Favor of Repeal.

The federation convention then supported "immediate modification of the Volstead act" and "repeal of the eighteenth amendment as rapidly as that can be brought about."

Just one year ago the federation threw out three resolutions for unemployment insurance.

Today, motivated by what leaders called "Needs of the hour," it rallied to fight along a national front for such a plan.

But its recommendation was not expressed unanimously. In lengthy and often heated debate, several delegates declared the costs would only ultimately fall on labor, and some preferred to "use economic power (strikes and boycotts) to make industry furnish jobs, rather than to have it provide insurance." William Green, president of the federation, defended the plan but agreed "employment would be better."

Will Work in States.

"But," he shouted, "if denied the opportunity to work, from a social point of view, what are we going to do with the unemployed? Unemployment insurance is the answer."

Labor now is to work in every State for unemployment insurance legislation. Its ideal plan would be compulsory; would create reserves from assessments on employers, suggesting a minimum of 3 per cent of annual pay rolls; have those funds administered by State commissions, and would pay benefits to all unemployed even granting partial benefits to those not working at full time.

Reaffirming its nonpartisan political stand, the convention rejected without opposition a resolution for a "labor" party.

Four resolutions concerning banks, all declaring for closer Government supervision and one proposing "Government ownership of banking institutions," were referred to the executive council.

Uniter States offered to take the first step.

The gesture of the American delegation has not been taken up. Some improvement has been noted in the general atmosphere and it was authoritatively stated in high official quarters yesterday that "some things have been already agreed upon—and they seem to be quite a number and quite important ones."

However, the hopes for effecting anything like the President's proposition are believed still remote of accomplishment, despite the heroic work of Norman H. Davis, who has been in almost constant communication with the Italians, the French and the Germans on the problems that more acutely concern them.

Franco-Italian Progress.

Secretary Stimson did, however, disclose what "encouraging progress" has been reported to him by Mr. Davis on the Franco-Italian naval agreement as well as on the participation of Germany in the disarmament conversations.

Germany left the conference in a dramatic door-slamming exit last summer because of the opposition of the French delegation to the claims of the Germans for armament equality. In this the French thesis was somewhat supported by Sir John Simon, but subsequently there was a reversal of British public opinion, and this fact is believed to have aided considerably in the bridge-mending activities of Mr. Davis. Germany is now believed ready to cooperate on some basis yet to be announced, and the hopes for eventual success are based on that fact.

The disarmament delegates will meet next week to consolidate the gains they have already made in the shape of arms reductions. As a prominent official of the State Department expressed it yesterday:

"Every one will keep their original stake and whatever they have won in the arms poker game."

Negotiations to Continue.

This does not mean, however, that all negotiations will cease until the Roosevelt administration takes up the matter of disarmament where President Hoover has let it down. In the interim diplomatic negotiations will be continued on the basis of the gains already made and when the subject is again formally brought forward it is hoped that important gains that have been quietly achieved behind the scenes will then be announced.

The original delegation of disarmament delegates consisted of Hugh Gibson and Norman H. Davis who are still in Europe, and Secretary Stimson, Miss Mary Woolley and Senator Claude Swanson now in this country.

The experts to the preliminary meeting of the world economic conference included John H. Williams, Edmund E. Day and Herbert Feis, the economist of the Department of State. They have returned from their meetings in Geneva and yesterday gave a report of their findings to the three Cabinet officers and Allen T. Klotz, Assistant Secretaries of State H. V. Bundy and James Grafton Rogers, and E. A. Goldenweiser, economist, of the Federal Reserve Board.

They first explained at great length the technical results of their explanations with the delegates of the other nations and emphasized the inability of reaching any agreement on any definite agenda in the face of the international uncertainty in almost every country. Certain technical points were developed, such as the gold exchange standard, exchange itself, tariff quotas, embargoes, gold shipments, but no definite result could be achieved in the reluctance of any delegation to commit itself to a program which was not assured of governmental support.

Uncertainty Delays Accord.

No formal statement of the result of this conference was made available, but it disclosed the inability of the American delegates, and indeed the delegates of Great Britain, France and Germany to mention only four, to arrive at any definite understanding in the face of the general international situation.

It is believed that the experts will reconvene some time again after the first of the year to draw up the definite agenda. At that time the date will be fixed for calling the plenary conference itself. The date and the place have not yet been fixed, although for some time it has been tentatively suggested that the economic meeting be held in London. The experts met in Geneva and broke up without having made any definite plans for getting together again. It is believed in authoritative circles that there is small hope of the world conference being called before the middle of next year when the administration policy of the United States, France and Great Britain will be more amply developed with regard to all international cooperation.

It is understood that one of the great obstacles that the delegates encountered in their exploration of the subject at Geneva was the matter of war debts. From all discussion on this point the members of the American delegation were expressly enjoined and the total effect on the conference was decidedly pessimistic. When the delegates meet again, it is believed that the new administrations in this country and others will be able to give a more ample mandate to the delegates for discussion and inclusion in the agenda.

U. S. Will Propose End Of Conference on Arms

Paris, No. 30 (A.P.).—A scheme to dissolve the present disarmament conference, replace it with a permanent arm commission, and afford the nations of the world a "breathing spell" in which the existing armament problems may be given rational consideration, will be put forward by the United States this week.

Norman H. Davis, American banker and diplomat, who has been prominently mentioned as the next Secretary of State, will advance the plan when representatives of five powers gather Saturday at Geneva for disarmament discussions.

The project is of his own creation and has been approved both by President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson. One of its aims, it is understood, is to get control of world problems back into the hands of the great powers. Davis believes that any attempts to settle world questions in a conference where dozens of powers are represented are futile.

Assistant Janitor Held For Jury in Fire Death

A coroner's jury held James T. Nesbit, colored assistant janitor at the Alzarado Apartments, for grand jury action at an inquest yesterday in the death of William M. Scott, colored, who lost his life in the five-alarm blaze at the apartment building Sunday.

Testifying at the inquest, Nesbit said that he had been drinking with Scott before the fire started. The jury ordered police to make a further investigation of the events leading up to the fire that left 40 families homeless. Scott's body was discovered in a dumb-waiter shaft which had been covered up by debris, after police had searched several days for him.

NEW TAX PROGRAM AT SHORT SESSION VIRTUALLY ASSURED

revenues will be determined almost entirely by the extent of the economies realized under the President's budget recommendations. For this reason, there is a general expectation that tax legislation will be passed over until after the Christmas holidays. In the first weeks of the session leaders will be able to determine the extent of the 1934 budget reductions, after which the first accurate estimate of new revenues to balance the budget will be possible.

Meanwhile, Treasury experts have indicated to House committee members that additional sales taxes offer the only possible source of new revenues, and that such recommendations will be inescapable unless drastic budget slashing is realized from the outset.

President Hoover has indicated a prospective reduction of $550,000,000 in the 1934 budget as compared with 1933, but House and Senate leaders frankly question whether any such curtailment will survive the legislative mill.

Organized opposition to reduction in nonservice connected allowances to veterans is developing among both Democrats and Republicans. An effort to end the furlough pay-cut for Federal employes also has gained headway in the Senate during the last week. A third attack on the projected balanced budget has come from the House postoffice committee, which will meet later this week to consider a measure repealing the 3-cent postage.

Secretary Mills recently estimated a fiscal deficit of $500,000,000 for the 1933 fiscal year. The deficit to date aggregates some $725,000,000, but the income tax returns to be filed after January 1 are expected to reduce this figure appreciably by next July.

On the other hand, more recent surveys by House committee members have described the prospective income tax yield as "shocking" and have placed the 1933 deficit at approximately $700,000,000. These surveys point out that the Treasury estimates last December were based on an assumed business activity this year at an average 75 per cent of normal. Instead, the actual rate of activity has averaged only a little better than 55 per cent. It is this consideration which has caused the revenue experts to abandon all hope of additional funds from income taxes in the revision scheme.

Nor, have recent developments in the prohibition discussion on Capitol Hill enhanced prospects for an immediate beer tax. With the repeal measure now slated for first consideration, beer is regarded as perhaps definitely sidetracked until the first Roosevelt Congress, at least so far as possible revenues are concerned.

Thus, even the most optimistic budget slashers do not anticipate that sufficient savings can be realized in the short session to pull Federal operations out of the red in 1934.

Confronted by this situation, the Treasury will be ready with its recommendations for new revenues on 24 hours' notice from the House ways and means committee.

Commissioners Abolish Post Maj. Brown Held

The rank formerly held by the present superintendent of police, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, when he headed the Traffic Bureau, was abolished yesterday by the District Commissioners. The position will henceforth be under direction of an inspector instead of an assistant superintendent.

The change will save the District Government $500 a year, the respective salaries of an assistant superintendent and an inspector being $5,000 and $4,500. B. A. Lamb, who succeeded Maj. Brown as head of the Traffic Bureau, becomes an inspector under the new setup.

JOEL McCREA SEES NEW DODGE SIX IN PRE-VIEW

Hollywood, Cal.—Joel McCrea, youthful talking picture star, whose performance in Radio Picture's feature, "Bird of Paradise," was a nation-wide sensation, attended an advance showing here today of the new Dodge Six car.

"Since this great car hasn't yet made its public appearance," said the popular young actor, "I suppose I can say I was among those present when the new Dodge Six was born.

"Let me say that it's a pretty husky baby. It's about the prettiest one you've ever seen. This big new Dodge Six is a new kind of car, with a new kind of smart, sporty good looks.

"It has a personality all its own. In beauty, in comfort, in performance, in luxury, and in features, it will blaze a new trail so dazzling that others will have a hard time following."

JOEL McCREA

No official details concerning the new Dodge Six car have as yet been made by the Dodge organization. It is evident, however, that the new Dodge marks revolutionary progress in the automobile world, at a low price level which will establish it as the great value for 1933.

JAPANESE RAIDERS FIRED ON BY FRENCH

of cavalry and motorized infantry began Tuesday. Striking overland north of the Chinese Eastern Railway, by way of Kannan, the Japanese vanguard surprised forces of Gen. Chang Tien-Chu, Gen. Su's lieutenant, in the rear. This facilitated the main infantry advance.

The Japanese claimed that wherever encounters occurred the enemy retreated. The frozen snow-covered plains facilitated the rapid sweep of the cavalry and motor trucks, although subzero weather intensified the hardships.

Although Gen. Su recently released a third group of the Japanese hostages he was holding at Manchuli, this time about 50, it was estimated that nearly 150 Japanese were still in his hands. Gen. Su recently agreed to meet negotiators from the Manchukuo government, but the Japanese command announced that the rebel leader's attitude, which they described as stubborn, compelled them to take steps to punish him even though endangering the lives of his Japanese hostages.

Gen. Su Ping-Wen is leading a revolt in northwest Manchuria against the new Manchukuo government. He had been holding several hundred Japanese and Koreans as hostages at Manchuli, near the Soviet border. In behalf of Japan, the Soviet government negotiated for release of women and children, but Gen. Su refused to release the men prisoners and to negotiate directly with Japan.

The Japanese military attempts to crush his revolt had been held back for three reasons—damage to their prestige in case they should fail, fear for the fate of the prisoners, and danger of friction with Russia.

On the day the League of Nations resumed its most recent debate on the Manchurian question, dispatches from Mukden said Japanese troops and air forces were flowing northward, preparing to attack Gen. Su's well-armed forces, estimated to total 5,000 men. Under winter conditions, the insurgents were expected to enjoy great tactical advantages.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES CATHEDRAL PLANS

Bishop Freeman Addresses Gathering; Reports on Progress Heard.

The story that the Washington Cathedral is to tell through its architecture, stained glass and iconography was the chief topic of discussion at the autumn meeting of the Council of the Cathedral held yesterday at Mount St. Alban under the chairmanship of Bishop James E. Freeman.

Bishop Freeman expressed the key note of the gathering in his introductory address when he said: "We are seeking to build in the Capital of the Nation the most beautiful cathedral which human devotion can erect to the glory of God in our day and generation."

Reports were heard from Lawrence B. Saint, director of the Cathedral stained glass studio; Philip Hubert Frohman, representing the Cathedral architects, and Earl Edward Sanborn, of Boston. James Sheldon, of New York, treasurer of the National Cathedral Association, also spoke of the stained glass needs of the structure.

At 4 p. m. members of the council attended evensong in the great choir, which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. William L. DeFries, canon and precentor of the Cathedral. Special intercessions were made for the guidance of the council and all other individuals who have assumed positions of leadership in the Cathedral enterprise.

Those who attended the meeting of the council were: Bishop Freeman, the Very Rev. Dr. G. C. F. Bratenahl, Dean of Washington; Dr. DeVries, the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of the cathedral; the Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown, of Union Theological Seminary, in New York; Alanson B. Houghton, David A. Reed, senator from Pennsylvania; Alexander B. Trowbridge, former dean of the College of Architecture at Cornell University; James Sheldon, of New York; Dr. Warren P. Laird, dean of the School of Fine Arts at the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. John R. Mott, Undersecertary of State William R. Castle, jr., C. F. R. Ogilby, the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, chaplain of the United States Senate and rector of Epiphany Church; George Wharton Pepper, former United States senator from Pennsylvania; Philip Hubert Frohman, of Frohman, Robb & Little, the cathedral architects; Lawrence B. Acrobatic Offer Wins Freedom for Accused

United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran's court at Marlboro might have seen some gymnastics.

Frank Bassford, of Waldorf, Md., offered to stand on his head and raise both feet to clinch his oath that he was innocent of moonshining.

"I'll raise my right hand, raise both hands, stand on my head and raise my feet," he said.

The case was dismissed.

Boy Makes Second Effort at Suicide

Pens Note to Father and Swallows Poison; Condition Not Serious.

John Tucker, jr., 13, of 717 Sixth street northeast, was being treated at Gallinger Hospital last night for the effects of a quantity of poison he is said to have swallowed in an attempt to end his life yesterday.

The boy had written a note to his father telling him he wanted to die, and then is said to have bought the poison. Although his condition is said not to be serious, he is being held at the hospital for observation.

Three years ago the boy is said to have tried suicide by gas. The boy's mother died when he was 4 years old.

EEL GRASS DISEASE IS MENACE TO GAME

Washington Man Reelected Secretary-Treasurer at New York Parley.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Starvation faces Canadian geese and brant, the American Game Conference was told today, as a result of a disease which has attacked eel grass along the Atlantic Coast.

The situation was described in a paper written by Harrison F. Lewis, chief federal migratory bird officer of the Canadian department of the interior, and read before the conference by Hoyes Lloyd, supervisor of wild life of the same department.

Artificial feeding may be necessary to save the birds unless the situation improves, the paper said.

Before adjourning, the conference elected officers for next year's session and adopted several resolutions. E. Lee Le Compte, State game warden of Maryland, was chosen chairman of the 1933 conference and the following were elected vice chairmen: Hoyes Lloyd, of Canada; Aldo Leopold, of Wisconsin, and Guy Amsler, of Arkansas. Seth Gordon, of Washington, D. C., was reelected secretary and treasurer.

LOTTERY TRIAL CASE IS NOW 3-CORNERED

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Trial of Conrad H. Mann, Kansas City business leader; Frank E. Hering, Eagles Magazine editor, and Bernard C. McGuire and Raymond Walsh, promoters, of Federal lottery charges became a three-cornered conflict today as the Government neared the end of its case.

Attempt by attorneys for Mann and Hering to show their clients were unaware of the details of the alleged lottery when Mann entered into contract with McGuire, brought Max D. Steuer, attorney for the promoters, to his feet.

Joseph R. Kelley, Kansas City attorney, while cross-examining Eugene J. Balsiger, auditor for the Fraternal Order of Eagles, asked him if McGuire had not told Mann that the plan he had for making awards in an enterprise known as the "Charity Frolic and Dance" had the approval of United States Senator James J. Davis.

The witness answered in the affirmative, and added that McGuire thought Mann ought to be satisfied with Davis' approval. Prosecutor Louis Mead Treadwell told the court he could not see the propriety of this line of cross-examination.

"I am trying to show," Kelley told the court, "that the defendants Mann and Hering did not know what the plan was."

With this Steuer stepped forth, indicating for the first time that the two sets of defendants, Mann and Hering on the one hand and McGuire and Walsh on the other, were without common defense.

Balsiger has thus far been the only witness in the case. Through him the Government introduced most of its physical evidence. He testified, with his books at hand, that a total of $1,759,273.69 was taken in on the "charity frolic and dance" enterprise, in which local aeries sold tickets for dances, the holders of the tickets participating in a grand distribution of prizes.

BRITAIN SENDS U. S. NEW NOTE ON DEBTS

they must travel before they can see daylight again in the matter of international financial obligations."

Mr. Bidwin pleaded that discretion and restraint be exercised by the British press and by individuals in discussions growing out of the war debts negotiations.

"Any unwise words," he said, "may do a great deal of harm to relations between our two countries."

King Receives Simon.

The impression that King George might be taking a hand in developments, or at least that he was keeping in close touch with them, was deepened today when he accorded an audience to Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary. In the last few days Prime Minister MacDonald and Mr. Chamberlain also discussed developments with the king.

The new note, it was understood, runs about 6,000 words. Mr. MacDonald and his foreign secretary are leaving tomorrow for Geneva to participate in disarmament negotiations.

Paris, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—France will insist in a new war debt memorandum to the United States that the $20,000,000 payment due December 15 must be postponed, it was learned today on high authority.

The note, which will present France's reasons for this contention, was definitely outlined at a meeting of the cabinet presided over by Premier Edouard Herriot. The text still must be approved by the cabinet council, with President Albert Lebrun in the chair, which probably will be called into session tomorrow.

Position on Reparations.

One of the points inculcated in the memorandum, an authoritative source asserted, is that France has served as the monetary and financial supporter of many European countries and that in consequence payment of the December installment would provoke general difficulties.

The government also will outline to Washington the French conception of the consequences of the Hoover moratorium on the payment of reparations by Germany, and will describe the state of the French budget and treasury. Members of the Chamber of Deputies opposed to making the December payment have taken the position that France should remit to the United States no more than she receives from Germany.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Glory guards with solemn round
—O'Hara.

TRITE lines by now, perhaps, but America does herself proud in guarding the resting place of the Unknown Dead.

From 7:30 a. m. t i l 1 6 p. m., weather c o m e what may, a Fort Myer soldier is the sentry who adds the final touch of fitting dignity, the silent guardian against vandalism.

Take your stop-watch along on the next visit to Arlington. Notice the sentry goes through h i s paces as though timed. Twenty-eight steps, right-face, no more, no less.

John T. Dooner, Company D; Frank J. Gallagher, Company D, and Howard A. Ellinger, Company F, all Thirteenth Engineers, bore the honor Armistice Day on two-hour shifts.

Old Swarmi Fedd,
He left Port Said
To read from crystal balls.
He packed his grips,
Pressed tight his lips
Till he received some calls.

Said he, "I'l wage
I'll tell girls' age
And how they spend their time.
I'll peer and cheer
The folks, all dear,
And thus complete this rhyme."

And so, at great expense, Swarmi Fedd has come to Washington all the way from Guilford, Me., via Port Said. Knows all, sees all—and MIGHT tell all—under certain conditions.

THIS morning we see Swarmi Fedd, eyes fixed on the big ball, dictating these lines:

There is something about the words "Internal Revenue" that draws us—or is it that charming smile of Nina Burns? We do all right in the summer time when Nina dons that abbreviated blue bathing suit at the Airport Pool, but who is that fellow with the big, yellow roadster, radio-equipped and everything, who is monopolizing Nina's time? The only thing we know about this guy—or dare tell—is that he is left-handed and plays a rotten game of golf on the East Potomac course, at least . . .

And while we're in one of Uncle Samuel's most modern buildings, let's pause by Margaret Colpoys' desk. John Colpoys, Margaret's father, has become quite prominently mentioned as a result of his efforts in behalf of Franklin D. Roosevelt during the recent presidential campaign, but the only thing we could get Margaret to tell about was the law studies in which she is indulging some time between 4:30 p. m. and the following 9 a. m. . . .

We wonder if Agnes Golden, also of Internal Revenue, was ever late in arriving at her desk? We happen to know that it takes only about fifteen minutes for her to get from home to the office, yet she invariably leaves home at approximately 8 a. m. Is that a complex or an inhibition, or just plain ambition?

Let's get a new focus on the crystal ball. . . . For no reason at all, that reminds us of Fred Lyons, Internal Revenue—yes, they do have a large number of employes there—who at present is "somewhere on a boat." No one was able definitely to tell us whether it was on an ocean liner or a "drive-it-yourself" in the Tidal Basin, but it was the consensus that he is bound on a Panama Canal cruise. Until the picture postcards begin to come in we'll have to let it go at that.

All the deer in Maine hereby are warned to crawl into a hole—and pull the hole in after them—because Wesley L. Huntress, Airways Division, is somewhere in the Pinetree State with a gun—maybe two guns—and it will mean stark tragedy for our antlered friends and their orphans if he fulfills half of the promises to provide venison steak dinners for fellow employes.

Which reminds us that Edgar R. Ryan, of the same office, also has nimrodic aspirations and murderous intentions on the feathered population in the vicinity of Parris Island, S. C., where he is visiting.

In our most peering and prying mood we attempted to look into the private life of the stars—and we don't mean the motion picture stars—but found the instruments of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, which are used for observation of celestial bodies to correct navigation instruments, carefully locked away in the garret section of the southeast corner of the big Department of Commerce Building.

Going and coming, we passed through an office section on the seventh floor of the building, which for quiet, concentrated industry we have never seen paralleled. Some day we will gain courage enough to interrupt some one just long enough to find out what weighty affairs are handled in this busy department * * * It might be some branch of the Weights and Measures Bureau, also of the Commerce Department—but it isn't * * * Then down, but never out, to the Patent Office, where we were greatly intrigued by a new boon to the motoring public—the double footfeed accelerator pedal, serial No. 587361 * * * When your car is equiped with this interesting device and your right foot gets cramped, just press your left foot on a duplicate pedal at the other side of the clutch and brake pedals. Ah, just what the world has been waiting for. Let us be the first to acclaim a new Edison!

Roy Chapin, the big boss of the Commerce Department, has just returned from several days' trip to Florida by airplane. We understand that Mrs. Chapin went along. Time was when she used to think airplanes were a dangerous method of transportation for the father of six children. Probably the system of airways radio beacons and other improvements fostered by the Commerce Department has merited this evident approval of aerial travel by Mrs. Chapin.

What a tragedy that we had another engagement Monday evening when we encountered Hilda (Mrs. Bill) Ring, Iron and Steel Division, and found that she was bound for the bowling alleys with a strong determination to vanquish all of the other members of the Commerce Girls Bowling League, which gives us the idea of seeing Mrs. Lena Miller for further "dope" on this league. . . . And don't you just love those big blue eyes? If we were a duckpin we would just have to fall when they flashed their brilliance in our direction!

IT'S all in a day's work for Miss Charlotte Crabb, secretary to J. Leland Acuff, chief of Coordination and Special Agency, Prohibition Bureau. And so it was when George Barrows introduced me to Friend Acuff.

"Just tell him a couple of bootleggers are calling," suggested George.

"Yes; what names shall I tell him?"

"Tell him we don't go by name—just phone numbers," I suggested.

And so, smiling, we walked through the doorway of Mr. Acuff's office. If she suspects us, she hasn't said so.

Have you sent your contributory paragraphs to the Federal Diary?

"I think the column for Government workers is especially good." This is the comment from George C. Billard, chief clerk, administrative division, Prohibition Bureau.

C. T. TAYLOR, guardian of the $250,000 rock crystal globe in the National Museum, seldom gets farther than whisper range from his prized charge. Perched beneath its glass case atop a pedestal midway of the room in the center of the areaway, the ball forms a magnet for visiting eyes. "They value the crystal at $250,000," said Mr. Taylor, "but if I had my choice between the crystal and the money, I'd——." And the sentence went unfinished.

"If there is anything I dislike it is to try to play bridge with some one who insists upon carrying on a conversation across the board during the game." This is the view of Miss Frances Skelley, room 534, Prohibition Bureau. Miss Skelley hails from Missouri—Mexico, Mo., to be exact.

Federal workers eat more during rainy or cold weather, or at least more Federal workers eat in the department cafeterias, if the business noted by Miss R. B. Barnes, manager of the Interior Department Building cafeteria, is an index.

THIS is the bicentennial of another event aside from George Washington's birth. In 1732 A. DeBalz, a Frenchman, artistically inclined, drew sketches of a village of the Acolapissa Indians in Louisiana. They were the forerunners of the Choctaws. The drawings, in French archives these 200 years, have just been brought to light and are the guide for William H. Egberts, chief preparator in anthropology, Smithsonian, who is restoring the village in miniature for the institution. Asparagus ferns will supply the "pine trees."

Twenty thousand visitors inspected the recent chrysanthemum show at the Department of Agriculture greenhouses, J. Wise Byrnes, superintendent, finds after a check-up of his records on attendance. The greenhouses produced "mums" as large as 10 inches this year. As a matter of information, Mr. Byrnes adds there are 200 varieties of the large chrysanthemums and 500 of the small. Attendance this year was somewhat in excess of that for last season.

Fred G. Orsinger, aquarium director, Bureau of Fisheries, says he expects a shipment of white fish eggs soon from Lake Erie. They will be displayed and hatched in the Aquarium lobby. The Chinook salmon hatching display has been the chief attraction of the aquarium the last two weeks.

The Smithsonian Red Cross Auxiliary recently completed and sent to the District of Columbia twelve girls' dresses and twelve boys' shirts made from cotton donated to the Red Cross by the Government. Miss H. Munroe, Smithsonian, and M. B. C. Shuman, Natural History Museum, are receiving Red Cross subscriptions.

Congratulations to H. I. Rothrock, radio division, airways, Department of Commerce. The bride formerly was Miss Evelyn Folsom. When? Thanksgiving Day.

"It may be of interest to know," says W. M. Hiley, personnel office, Panama Canal, "to know that our office is numbered among those having representation in the newly organized American Federation of Government Employes, sponsored by the American Federation of Labor. About 36 members are enrolled, or about 50 per cent of the personnel of this office. The constitution of this local lodge was adopted at a meeting Monday."

No, Oswald, they still don't give away samples at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

SIMS AND KARN HOLD TO LEAD IN TOURNEY

Ely Culbertson Is Far Ahead in Foursome Section With 36 Match Points.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—P. Hal Sims and Willard S. Karn showed no disposition to give up their national pair championship at the second session of the American Bridge League tournament tonight.

They led their section, one of six in the huge field of 188 players doing a four-day marathon for the Cavendish Club Trophy Sims and Karn won at Philadelphia last year.

The only out-of-town twosomes among the other section leaders were O. S. Emrich and E. M. Baker, and Maurice Maschke and Samuel Rockwell, both of Cleveland, and R. E. Horner, of Ottawa, and Mrs. Louise Bright, of Detroit.

Ely Culbertson's team, composed of himself, Oswald Jacoby, Theodore A. Lightner and Michael T. Gottlieb, maintained its lead in its section at the end of the second session tonight with 36 match points on 56 boards. Hugh W. Jackson substituted for Culbertson in the first session yesterday, but Culbertson played today and will continue throughout the tournament.

In the other section of the team championship, which has played 52 boards, a foursome composed of H. P. Jaeger and E. C. Wolfe, of Cleveland, and W. J. Pray and Joseph E. Cain, of Indianapolis, took the lead with 30 points.

Twenty-one teams are playing in this tournament for the Chicago trophy now held by Commander Winfield Liggett, jr., Mrs. Norman N. Newman, George Unger and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Banfield, all of New York. The event will end after a third session tomorrow. The pair tournament runs through Friday.

Horner and Mrs. Bright confessed that their lead might partly be accounted for by a top on one hand which they won on a fluke—Mrs. Bright failed to hear a bid.

"Substitute" Defendant in Gaming Case Freed on $1,000 Bond.

Alleged to have attempted to impersonate a man who was to have been tried on a gaming charge, Stanley Herbert Ball, of 1316 Park road northwest, yesterday was released on a $1,000 bond after the alleged attempted substitution was discovered by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon.

Two men, William Sachs and Richard Allen, were to be tried on a gaming charge, and when the case was called Sachs and Ball appeared before the bench. The officers in the case, Detectives C. D. Schamp and Kenneth Pratt, identified Sachs, but they declared the man who was supposed to be Allen was not the man they arrested under that name.

Judge McMahon immediately ordered Ball arrested, and, after a conference between Frank Adams, assistant United States attorney, and Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, it was decided to book Ball for trial on a charge of false personation with the intent to defraud.

A bond of $500 that had been posted by Edward Buckley for the appearance of Allen, was ordered forfeited by Judge McMahon. Meanwhile, the trial of Sachs and Allen was postponed indefinitely when police were unable to locate the latter.

Seals Sale Nets $6,000 During First Three Days

More than 600,000 Christmas seals, representing $6,000, have been sold in the first three days of the sale by the Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, president of the organization, announced last night.

Mrs. Grant said the result was up to the records of previous years and a splendid start on the goal of $50,000 with which the association will finance its protective health work during the coming year.

A.F.L. NOW INDORSES IDLENESS INSURANCE

Former Stands Reversed; Convention Also Asks for Early Repeal.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Completely reversing its former stands, the American Federation of Labor today declared its support of a system of unemployment insurance.

It accepted its executive council's plan for compulsory unemployment insurance, paid for by industry and administered by the State.

As they did in calling for the six-hour day and five-day week, delegates backed their plans with threats of strikes and boycotts.

"We will go out and fight for our program," President William Green had declared, and other speakers had urged that "just as our president threatened 'force' in gaining our other 'demands,' so we can resort to force in the interest of unemployment relief."

Green had explained in referring to his threat of "force," that he meant "economic force"—strikes, boycotts and picketing.

In Favor of Repeal.

The federation convention then supported "immediate modification of the Volstead act" and "repeal of the eighteenth amendment as rapidly as that can be brought about."

Just one year ago the federation threw out three resolutions for unemployment insurance.

Today, motivated by what leaders called "Needs of the hour," it rallied to fight along a national front for such a plan.

But its recommendation was not expressed unanimously. In lengthy and often heated debate, several delegates declared the costs would only ultimately fall on labor, and some preferred to "use economic power (strikes and boycotts) to make industry furnish jobs, rather than to have it provide insurance." William Green, president of the federation, defended the plan but agreed "employment would be better."

Will Work in States.

"But," he shouted, "if denied the opportunity to work, from a social point of view, what are we going to do with the unemployed? Unemployment insurance is the answer."

Labor now is to work in every State for unemployment insurance legislation. Its ideal plan would be compulsory; would create reserves from assessments on employers, suggesting a minimum of 3 per cent of annual pay rolls; have those funds administered by State commissions, and would pay benefits to all unemployed even granting partial benefits to those not working at full time.

Reaffirming its nonpartisan political stand, the convention rejected without opposition a resolution for a "labor" party.

Four resolutions concerning banks, all declaring for closer Government supervision and one proposing "Government ownership of banking institutions," were referred to the executive council.

Assistant Janitor Held For Jury in Fire Death

A coroner's jury held James T. Nesbit, colored assistant janitor at the Alzarado Apartments, for grand jury action at an inquest yesterday in the death of William M. Scott, colored, who lost his life in the five-alarm blaze at the apartment building Sunday.

Testifying at the inquest, Nesbit said that he had been drinking with Scott before the fire started. The jury ordered police to make a further investigation of the events leading up to the fire that left 40 families homeless. Scott's body was discovered in a dumb-waiter shaft which had been covered up by debris, after police had searched several days for him.

U. S. ARMS DELEGATES PLAN FOR TEMPORARY AGREEMENT

Uniter States offered to take the first step.

The gesture of the American delegation has not been taken up. Some improvement has been noted in the general atmosphere and it was authoritatively stated in high official quarters yesterday that "some things have been already agreed upon—and they seem to be quite a number and quite important ones."

However, the hopes for effecting anything like the President's proposition are believed still remote of accomplishment, despite the heroic work of Norman H. Davis, who has been in almost constant communication with the Italians, the French and the Germans on the problems that more acutely concern them.

Franco-Italian Progress.

Secretary Stimson did, however, disclose what "encouraging progress" has been reported to him by Mr. Davis on the Franco-Italian naval agreement as well as on the participation of Germany in the disarmament conversations.

Germany left the conference in a dramatic door-slamming exit last summer, because of the opposition of the French delegation to the claims of the Germans for armament equality. In this the French thesis was somewhat supported by Sir John Simon, but subsequently there was a reversal of British public opinion, and this fact is believed to have aided considerably in the bridge-mending activities of Mr. Davis. Germany is now believed ready to cooperate on some basis yet to be announced, and the hopes for eventual success are based on that fact.

The disarmament delegates will meet next week to consolidate the gains they have already made in the shape of arms reductions. As a prominent official of the State Department expressed it yesterday:

"Every one will keep their original stake and whatever they have won in the arms poker game."

Negotiations to Continue.

This does not mean, however, that all negotiations will cease until the Roosevelt administration takes up the matter of disarmament where President Hoover has let it down. In the interim diplomatic negotiations will be continued on the basis of the gains already made and when the subject is again formally brought forward it is hoped that important gains that have been quietly achieved behind the scenes, will then be announced.

The original delegation of disarmament delegates consisted of Hugh Gibson and Norman H. Davis who are still in Europe, and Secretary Stimson. Miss Mary Woolley and Senator Claude Swanson now in this country.

The experts to the preliminary meeting of the world economic conference included John H. Williams, Edmund E. Day and Herbert Feis, the economist of the Department of State. They have returned from their meetings in Geneva and yesterday gave a report of their findings to the three Cabinet officers and Allen T. Klotz, Assistant Secretaries of State H. V. Bundy and James Grafton Rogers, and E. A. Goldenweiser, economist, of the Federal Reserve Board.

They first explained at great length the technical results of their explanations with the delegates of the other nations and emphasized the inability of reaching any agreement on any definite agenda in the face of the international uncertainty in almost every country. Certain technical points were developed, such as the gold exchange standard, exchange itself, tariff quotas, embargoes, gold shipments, but no definite result could be achieved in the reluctance of any delegation to commit itself to a program which was not assured of governmental support.

Uncertainty Delays Accord.

No formal statement of the result of this conference was made available, but it disclosed the inability of the American delegates, and indeed the delegates of Great Britain, France and Germany to mention only four, to arrive at any definite understanding in the face of the general international situation.

It is believed that the experts will reconvene some time again after the first of the year to draw up the definite agenda. At that time the date will be fixed for calling the plenary conference itself. The date and the place have not yet been fixed, although for some time it has been tentatively suggested that the economic meeting be held in London. The experts met in Geneva and broke up without having made any definite plans for getting together again. It is believed in authoritative circles that there is small hope of the world conference being called before the middle of next year when the administration policy of the United States, France and Great Britain will be more amply developed with regard to all international cooperation.

It is understood that one of the great obstacles that the delegates encountered in their exploration of the subject at Geneva was the matter of war debts. From all discussion on this point the members of the American delegation were expressly enjoined and the total effect on the conference was decidedly pessimistic. When the delegates meet again, it is believed that the new administrations in this country and others will be able to give a more ample mandate to the delegates for discussion and inclusion in the agenda.

U. S. Will Propose End Of Conference on Arms

Paris, No. 30 (U.P.).—A scheme to dissolve the present disarmament conference, replace it with a permanent arm commission, and afford the nations of the world a "breathing spell" in which the existing armament problems may be given rational consideration, will be put forward by the United States this week.

Norman H. Davis, American banker and diplomat, who has been prominently mentioned as the next Secretary of State, will advance the plan when representatives of five powers gather Saturday at Geneva for disarmament discussions.

The project is of his own creation and has been approved both by President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson. One of its aims, it is understood, is to get control of world problems back into the hands of the great powers. Davis believes that any attempts to settle world questions in a conference where dozens of powers are represented are futile.

revenues will be determined almost entirely by the extent of the economies realized under the President's budget recommendations. For this reason, there is a general expectation that tax legislation will be passed over until after the Christmas holidays. In the first weeks of the session leaders will be able to determine the extent of the 1934 budget reductions, after which the first accurate estimate of new revenues to balance the budget will be possible.

Meanwhile, Treasury experts have indicated to House committee members that additional sales taxes offer the only possible source of new revenues, and that such recommendations will be inescapable unless drastic budget slashing is realized from the outset.

President Hoover has indicated a prospective reduction of $550,000,000 in the 1934 budget as compared with 1933, but House and Senate leaders frankly question whether any such curtailment will survive the legislative mill.

Organized opposition to reduction in nonservice connected allowances to veterans is developing among both Democrats and Republicans. An effort to end the furlough pay-cut for Federal employes also has gained headway in the Senate during the last week. A third attack on the projected balanced budget has come from the House postoffice committee, which will meet later this week to consider a measure repealing the 3-cent postage.

Secretary Mills recently estimated a fiscal deficit of $500,000,000 for the 1933 fiscal year. The deficit to date aggregates some $725,000,000, but the income tax returns to be filed after January 1 are expected to reduce this figure appreciably by next July.

On the other hand, more recent surveys by House committee members have described the prospective income tax yield as "shocking" and have placed the 1933 deficit at approximately $700,000,000. These surveys point out that the Treasury estimates last December were based on an assumed business activity this year at an average 75 per cent of normal. Instead, the actual rate of activity has averaged only a little better than 55 per cent. It is this consideration which has caused the revenue experts to abandon all hope of additional funds from income taxes in the revision scheme.

Nor have recent developments in the prohibition discussion on Capitol Hill enhanced prospects for an immediate beer tax. With the repeal measure now slated for first consideration, beer is regarded as perhaps definitely sidetracked until the first Roosevelt Congress, at least so far as possible revenues are concerned.

Thus, even the most optimistic budget slashers do not anticipate that sufficient savings can be realized in the short session to pull Federal operations out of the red in 1934.

Confronted by this situation, the Treasury will be ready with its recommendations for new revenues on 24 hours' notice from the House ways and means committee.

Commissioners Abolish Post Maj. Brown Held

The rank formerly held by the present superintendent of police, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, when he headed the Traffic Bureau, was abolished yesterday by the District Commissioners. The position will henceforth be under direction of an inspector instead of an assistant superintendent.

The change will save the District Government $500 a year, the respective salaries of an assistant superintendent and an inspector being $5,000 and $4,500. B. A. Lamb, who succeeded Maj. Brown as head of the Traffic Bureau, becomes an inspector under the new setup.

of cavalry and motorized infantry began Tuesday. Striking overland north of the Chinese Eastern Railway, by way of Kannan, the Japanese vanguard surprised forces of Gen. Chang Tien-Chu, Gen. Su's lieutenant, in the rear. This facilitated the main infantry advance.

The Japanese claimed that wherever encounters occurred the enemy retreated. The frozen snow-covered plains facilitated the rapid sweep of the cavalry and motor trucks, although subzero weather intensified the hardships.

Although Gen. Su recently released a third group of the Japanese hostages he was holding at Manchuli, this time about 50, it was estimated that nearly 150 Japanese were still in his hands. Gen. Su recently agreed to meet negotiators from the Manchukuo government, but the Japanese command announced that the rebel leader's attitude, which they described as stubborn, compelled them to take steps to punish him even though endangering the lives of his Japanese hostages.

Gen. Su Ping-Wen is leading a revolt in northwest Manchuria against the new Manchukuo government. He had been holding several hundred Japanese and Koreans as hostages at Manchuli, near the Soviet border. In behalf of Japan, the Soviet government negotiated for release of women and children, but Gen. Su refused to release the men prisoners and to negotiate directly with Japan.

The Japanese military attempts to crush his revolt had been held back for three reasons—damage to their prestige in case they should fail, fear for the fate of the prisoners, and danger of friction with Russia.

On the day the League of Nations resumed its most recent debate on the Manchurian question, dispatches from Mukden said Japanese troops and air forces were flowing northward, preparing to attack Gen. Su's well-armed forces, estimated to total 5,000 men. Under winter conditions, the insurgents were expected to enjoy great tactical advantages.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES CATHEDRAL PLANS

Bishop Freeman Addresses Gathering; Reports on Progress Heard.

The story that the Washington Cathedral is to tell through its architecture, stained glass and iconography was the chief topic of discussion at the autumn meeting of the Council of the Cathedral held yesterday at Mount St. Alban under the chairmanship of Bishop James E. Freeman.

Bishop Freeman expressed the keynote of the gathering in his introductory address when he said: "We are seeking to build in the Capital of the Nation the most beautiful cathedral which human devotion can erect to the glory of God in our day and generation."

Reports were heard from Lawrence B. Saint, director of the Cathedral stained glass studio; Philip Hubert Frohman, representing the Cathedral architects, and Earl Edward Sanborn, of Boston. James Sheldon, of New York, treasurer of the National Cathedral Association, also spoke of the stained glass needs of the structure.

At 4 p. m. members of the council attended evensong in the great choir, which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. William L. DeFries, canon and precentor of the Cathedral. Special intercessions were made for the guidance of the council and all other individuals who have assumed positions of leadership in the Cathedral enterprise.

"I'll raise my right hand, raise both hands, stand on my head and raise my feet," he said.

The case was dismissed.

Washington Man Reelected Secretary-Treasurer at New York Parley.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Starvation faces Canadian geese and brant, the American Game Conference was told today, as a result of a disease which has attacked eel grass along the Atlantic Coast.

The situation was described in a paper written by Harrison F. Lewis, chief federal migratory bird officer of the Canadian department of the interior, and read before the conference by Hoyes Lloyd, supervisor of wild life of the same department.

Artificial feeding may be necessary to save the birds unless the situation improves, the paper said.

Before adjourning, the conference elected officers for next year's session and adopted several resolutions. E. Lee Le Compte, State game warden of Maryland, was chosen chairman of the 1933 conference and the following were elected vice chairmen: Hoyes Lloyd, of Canada; Aldo Leopold, of Wisconsin, and Guy Amsler, of Arkansas. Seth Gordon, of Washington, D. C., was reelected secretary and treasurer.

CIVIL SERVICE PROTECTION.

Political plums are not so plentiful as they once were. Most Government employes are protected against spoils hunters by civil service regulations. Politicians have to resort to all manner of tricks and strategems to obtain jobs for their loyal supporters. When a sweeping victory is obtained and the hungry job seekers swarm around Washington drastic measures are often contemplated.

Under this stimulus Representative McClintic, of Oklahoma, devised a plan for opening loopholes for the job-seeking swarm. He thought that the jobs of 10,000 Government workers might be challenged. But the Civil Service Commission informs him that only 5,816 employes have been taken into the classified service by executive order since 1913. Many of these are Democrats. President Wilson "covered" 1,276 employes into the civil service system. Since that time Democrats as well as Republicans have obtained the benefits of the civil service by executive order.

Hundreds of employes who were taken into the civil service ranks by executive order have left the Government and gone into private industry. Their places have been filled during the last 19 years by other employes who have obtained their positions by competitive examination. To throw open to competitive examination the few remaining jobs that have been satisfactorily held by the present incumbents for many years would be such an obvious injustice that Congress probably will not even consider it seriously.

It is not practical to require civil service examinations of employes in every agency of the Government. When new branches of the Government service are created the necessary qualifications of the prospective staff may not be sufficiently understood to warrant a formula for examinations. In setting up an emergency bureau or commission there is no time to await the results of competitive tests. Yet it is proper that the personnel of agencies created in this way should later obtain civil service protection. There is nothing abnormal in extending such protection to them through executive order.

It may be advisable to require all employes thus taken into the civil service to pass an examination on their qualifications at the time that the transfer is made. This would not mean throwing the jobs open to competition, unless the incumbent failed to qualify. But any scheme by the chairman of the patronage committee to open classified jobs to the spoils hunter merely because there is to be a change of administration is unworthy of serious attention.

A LARGER ARMY.

By calling attention to the inadequacy of the United States Army, in view of the powerful armies maintained by other nations and the present unsettled conditions of the world, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff, has performed a distinct service. He does not recommend an immediate increase in the American armed forces, but he thinks that the Army's strength should be advanced to 165,000 men and 14,000 officers as soon as the status of the Treasury permits.

Congress probably will not act upon this recommendation in formulating the next budget. But the warning from the Chief of Staff will stand as an obstacle to the attempts of pacifists to reduce the present force of officers. At the last session of Congress a bitter fight was waged to cut 2,000 officers from the Army's staff. Gen. MacArthur reminds the country that this is no time to destroy the nucleus around which an army of defense would be built in time of emergency.

In other quarters this advice from the Chief of Staff will have a salutary effect. The disarmament conference at Geneva has accomplished nothing. The United States has tried in vain to induce other nations to disarm. They persistently refuse, except on terms that are advantageous to themselves. President Hoover recently served notice that the United States will build up its Navy to a point equal in strength to the most powerful fleet in the world, unless effective steps toward disarmament are taken. It is also well for foreign nations that are quibbling about the terms of arms reduction to note the increasing sentiment in behalf of strengthening the United States Army.

Even though the United States is the most powerful nation in the world, its influence in disarmament circles is not great because this country is already disarmed to a greater extent than any other major power. Further reduction of the military and naval forces would increase the apathy toward disarmament at Geneva. In any circumstances the United States ought to maintain its present strength. If actual disarmament should be achieved, then this country could adjust its policy accordingly. If other nations refuse to disarm, then a comprehensive expansion program in both the Army and Navy will be imperative.

BEER PROBLEMS.

Senator-elect McAdoo serves notice on Speaker Garner that there will be decided opposition to the beer bill unless provision is made for legalization of light wines. The grape-growers of California are said to be in a desperate condition, which can be relieved only by creating a market for wines.

Many thorny problems are springing up in connection with beer legislation. The advocates of legal beer are opposed to the return of the saloon, and they acknowledge that if a bill should be proposed leaving a loophole for the return of the saloon it may not pass, and would be vetoed if it should pass. Moreover, an attempt to revive the saloon would arouse opposition to the repeal amendment, which is scheduled for an early vote in the House.

The biggest brewers are not satisfied with the plan to confine legal beer to bottles. Consumption would be greatly restricted if beer were available only in bottled form. A pint bottle would cost about 6 or 7 cents, revenue tax included, and its sale at 10 cents would yield only a small profit to be divided between the manufacturer and the retailer. There would be no 5-cent beer, which in old times was very profitable on account of enormous quantity production. If the price of beer should be fixed at 15 cents a bottle it would be beyond the means of the day laborer, who formerly was a good customer at 5 cents a glass.

If the law should require the marketing of beer in bottled form, and should prohibit consumption at the place of sale, it is believed that the return of the saloon could be made difficult if not impossible. Some provision of this kind is therefore favored by legislators who wish to avoid a collision with anti-saloon and anti-repeal sentiment. On the other hand, some doubts have been expressed as to the sufficiency of revenue from bottled beer, especially if the price must be 15 cents a bottle. Brewers hold that revenue from 5-cent beer, dispensed by the barrel, would be much greater than the revenue from bottled beer.

Since the Democratic platform declared for immediate legalization of "other beverages" as well as beer, Mr. McAdoo's notice to Speaker Garner may gain force in Congress as the subject is scrutinized. The grape-growing States may form a bloc in the House capable of making mischief unless their demands are granted. At any rate, opposition in the Senate to a bill restricted to beer alone might greatly delay legislation.

The amount of tax to be levied upon beer is open to debate. If beer is to be restricted to bottles, thus holding down consumption, the amount of the revenue tax may give rise to much discussion. Students of revenue are beginning to doubt that a tax on beer would yield enough to make it unnecessary to impose new taxes, especially if ambitious economy plans fail to materialize.

HOME LOAN BANKS OPEN.

Approximately four months were required to get the Home Loan Bank system into operation. Its board has been severely criticized for delay, but Franklin W. Fort, chairman, points out that the Federal Reserve system did not make a loan until 11 months after it had been created by Congress. The setting up of a new banking system is extremely complicated. It is far better for the board to take sufficient time to perfect its organization than to plunge into business on an insecure basis.

For the most part, the public has misunderstood the function of this new banking system. It is not a second Reconstruction Finance Corporation devoted to the welfare of home owners. It is a permanent institution more comparable to the Federal Reserve system. Senator Couzens attempted to substitute an amendment to the R. F. C. act for the Home Loan Bank bill, but his measure was defeated. Congress set up a permanent home loan banking system chiefly for the purpose of discounting real estate mortgages.

It is true, of course, that the Home Loan banks are designed to give relief to home owners in the present critical situation. But such aid can be given only on a sound financial basis. Some applicants are seeking from 80 to 90 per cent of the value of their property on fourth and fifth mortgage loans. If the new banks were permitted to advance money on terms of that kind they would collapse before their work got under way. The fact that this banking system is sponsored by the Government does not mean that it can lend money indiscriminately. On the contrary, every precaution must be taken to safeguard the Home Loan banks.

Individual home loans may be made on the basis of 40 per cent of the unencumbered valuation of the property. This provision will not relieve distressed home owners who signed mortgages when property values were unusually high and can not now keep up their installments. No institution for relief of this kind could be created without incurring enormous losses for distressed taxpayers to make good.

Considerable relief can be extended, however, through building and loan associations and other agencies entitled to membership in the Home Loan Bank system. The central banks may lend these institutions up to 60 per cent of the value of mortgages offered as collateral. In this way real estate credit can be loosened, thus encouraging a more lenient policy on the part of mortgage holders in dealing with home owners. The board has adopted a policy of compelling borrowing institutions to pass on the benefits of such loans to home owners. Special attention will be given to loans to finance repairs or otherwise create employment.

Any one who expected the Home Loan banks would rescue borrowers from improvident and excessive mortgages will, of course, be disappointed. There are indications that a few members of Congress thought they had created a panacea for all the home owner's difficulties. But the majority, who understand the nature of the Home Loan banks, and the necessary limitations imposed on them by law, are satisfied with the organization work that has now been perfected. Several years may be required before the system functions fully, but it has every promise of becoming one of the most important units in the American financial system.

WASHINGTON'S WALTER.

Walter Johnson has heard the cheers of his Washington admirers many times. He has seen the grand stands and the bleachers rise en masse to hail his triumphs on the mound. He has read columns of praise for his long record of splendid service for baseball in the Capital. Tonight he will be tendered a complimentary dinner at which plaudits coming across the banquet board will be a new experience.

It was back in 1907 that the prowess of a young pitcher with the Weiser, Idaho, team attracted attention in the east. A representative of the Washington club journeyed out to see him, and signed him before leaving. Young Walter did not know how he would stack up against major league batters, so he demanded a guarantee of fare back home. But he never needed it. For twenty consecutive years he occupied the pitcher's box for Washington, establishing a record in that along with many others that are unmatched.

It was in 1928 that Johnson concluded his pitching career and went to Newark as manager. The very next year, however, he was called back to Washington to manage the Nationals, a position he has just concluded after four years. It was not without good reason that a popular vote a year ago acclaimed Walter Johnson as the greatest pitcher baseball has ever known. Washington knew that long before the vote was taken. The testimonial banquet for him tonight is not by any means simply a reunion of baseball fans. It is an offering of good will and admiration from the citizens of Washington, not only to a great athlete but a man of fine character who has had a wholesome influence upon the youth of the whole country.

House enthusiasts who think a vote for repeal on the first day will settle everything have little conception of the careful distillation processes of the Senate.

Early adjournment of the disarmament conference is rumored, but whether it is a threat or a promise is not disclosed.

LAKES OF KILLARNEY

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Some foreigners have been known to complain that Americans are trying to buy up all the beauty, both natural and artistic, of the Old World. Such a sentiment will surely give way to one of gratitude in Ireland, however, as the result of a very handsome gesture on the part of an American citizen, William Bowers Bourn, of San Mateo, Calif. He has recently presented to the Irish Free State the huge tract of land containing the Lakes of Killarney, long famed in song and story.

From the time of Queen Elizabeth's reign the Killarney estate belonged to Lord Kenmare's family, whose ancestral seat was Killarney Castle. In 1913 the ancient castle, with its famous collection of art and historical treasures, was swept by fire and left in ruins. By 1930 the property had gone the way of so many of the finest English and Irish estates—the owners were no longer able to support the expense in the face of staggering taxes, and Killarney went up for sale on the auction block. It was purchased by Mr. Bourn, who now returns it to the Irish government for its own use.

All the legends of the island seem to gather about the name Killarney. Here are relics of many passing phases of Irish civilization, from prehistoric remains through relics of the days of Druid worship when the priests built crude altars in the forests by the lake shores, and down through the early Christian era, that dim age when the culture of western Europe was preserved from destruction in the monasteries of Ireland. There are three lakes at Killarney, all possessed of a melancholy loveliness that seems the very distillation of poetic thought. On the shore of the middle lake is the Colleen Bawn Rock, from which the villainous Danny Man in the old story flung the innocent Lily of Killarney to her death in the waters far below.

To the Irish, the Killarney Lakes are very dear, being a part of the national tradition that speaks so strongly to the Gaelic heart. To them, the gift of this glamorous stretch of countryside means more than the return to the State of what Wordsworth called "the most beautiful spot in the three kingdoms." It means the preservation of the myths and legends that lie just beneath the surface of modern Irish life.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE VERY PLEASANT MAN.

He thought by pleasing people he could walk an easy way,
And so a word which might offend he never dared to say.
And when there rose an argument of any consequence,
Instead of taking sides he chose to sit upon the fence.
When asked for his opinion, since in peace he wished to live,
He always answered with a smirk that he had none to give.
While other men became embroiled in fights o'er right and wrong
He kept a grin upon his face for all who came along.

But life is not so simple. Even lap dogs sometimes growl.
Though smiles are often welcomed, there are times a man should scowl.
Though courtesy's a virtue and 'tis good to be polite,
There's many a grim occasion when a man should start a fight.
He hoped to keep from trouble, but he found, to his dismay,
Life daily gave him burdens which he couldn't smile away;
And seeking all men's friendship, he discovered at the end
Most folks prefer an honest foe to such a doubtful friend.

You Can't Slap a Tiger and Call the Incident Closed

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If you plant grains of wheat your harvest will be wheat. That is a truism, yet ignorance of it causes the greater part of the world's woe.

Nothing in nature is more certain than the law of reactions. Effect follows cause as regularly and as inevitably as the planets follow their orbits. It is the law.

Cause and effect are not separate and distinct phenomena. They are not isolated facts. They are the two halves of a whole, inseparable by nature. To imagine one without the other would be to imagine ice without cold or light without heat.

The plan of the universe is a continuous performance. There are no isolated acts, complete in themselves. Each fact is the result of one that preceded it and the cause of one that follows. All are links in a chain.

A foolish man, having killed a neighbor and thrown the body in a ravine, may say to himself, "That is finished." But it is only begun. There follows the search for the missing, the circling scavengers in the air, the discovery, the suspicion, the arrest, the trial and the execution. Each event follows the one before it in logical sequence to complete a pattern. The hand that pulled the trigger tied the noose. Hanging and assassination are parts of the same event.

Every ill we suffer is a result of our stupid inability to see cause and effect as inseparable parts of a whole.

The tyrant abuses his subjects and thinks the matter ended, but his cruelty sets in motion the machinery of hate and retribution that overthrows his house and leaves him dead in its ruins. His assassination completes a circle.

A man cheats and defrauds his neighbors and feels secure in the possession of riches, but every fraud makes an enemy and every broken word leaves a score to be paid. When the day of settlement comes he has neither credit nor friends nor any hope of mercy.

The effect may vary, for many causes contribute to it, but this much is certain, it appears in due season and it matches the cause as ripe corn matches the seed.

Punishment isn't a matter of chance or a special provision of heaven's wrath. You make the first half of a pattern and natural law makes the other half to complete it.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Nepotism in Congress.

Houston Post.

The practice of nepotism in Congress has been given two severe blows. Several months ago so much clamor was raised against keeping relatives of senators and representatives on the pay rolls of the Government that many of those officials dismissed the relatives and hired clerks who were no kin to them. The agitation against the practice came after some one took the trouble to tabulate the number of relatives employed in congressional offices.

In the recent election 60 members of Congress who practiced nepotism were defeated. How much exposure of their practice of hiring relatives had to do with bringing about their defeat one can only guess. It is rather certain that it contributed materially to the defeat of Senator Brookhart for renomination in the Iowa Republican primaries, Brookhart's opponent, Henry Field, assailed the senator vigorously for keeping relatives on the public pay roll.

Baker vs. Gladstone.

Houston Post.

Newton Baker, who was Secretary of War in the Wilson Cabinet, wants to change the Constitution in such a way as to give us the British method of party control and responsibility for national policies, on the ground that the present situation is one of "completely irresponsible party government."

If Mr. Baker will take the trouble to read the tribute paid to our institutions by Mr. Gladstone he will find that the Grand Old Man, as some call him, pointed out that we would be foolish—his opinion amounted to that—to adopt the British method because we had no king to fall back on in the event some great emergency should arise.

Millions Are Hoping So.

Ohio State Journal.

Offhand, one would expect a lame duck Congress to be wet.

Things to Worry About.

Wonder what radio beer program will have the stein song for its theme tune?

Postage Tax.

Brooklyn Eagle.

The Mead subcommittee of the House of Representatives investigating postal conditions puts itself on record for the immediate abandonment of the 3-cent stamp nuisance tax and a return to the 2-cent stamp, to increase revenues and work opportunities. It holds that the decrease of returns is responsible for the dearth of substitute employment in postoffices.

Repeal Uncertainty.

New York Times.

Speaker Garner's plan to secure a vote in the House on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment under a suspension of the rules on the opening day of the short session is straightforward and courageous; but whatever its fate in the House, how can a two-thirds majority in the present Senate be expected, even if the deliberative methods of that body don't put the measure to sleep? And what sort of repeal resolution will be offered? Is repeal to be straight or with a string, as proposed by the Republicans and interpreted by Mr. Hoover and substantially accepted by Senator Glass? So long as this uncertainty continues, we shall not know whether, so far as Congress is concerned, the people are some time to have the opportunity to abolish Federal prohibition or to retain it in part.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Says Jobs Should Be Given to Property Owners—Local Residents Aid Their Community, While Outsiders Hoard Earnings and Take the Money to Foreign Countries.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why not give jobs to those who have property? I know of some who bought homes and live like good, clean Americans, paying each month for thirteen years promptly, with a $60 school tax that must be paid. Struggling to pay for these homes, with only a few years to finish, they are asking for justice. Yet these loyal citizens have been out of work for months, while outsiders come here with no intention of ever buying a home and obtain work, save and hoard a large roll, and then turn back to the old land. We who have lived here for 50 years, with a clean, reliable record of punctuality, must face a hard winter with many bills.

In order to operate our city, State and national governments with taxation so that our budget be balanced, we should be allowed to carry on these few remaining aged years with promptness. OTTO CAPP, SR.

Home Brewer Objects to 2.75 "Slop" and Predicts It Will Not Raise Revenue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the face of actual conditions it is ridiculous for any one to pretend that legalization of a lot of slop, masquerading under the name of legalized beer of a 2.75 per cent alcoholic content, is going to yield the Government any large amount of revenue.

I can make, and do make, beer of a higher alcoholic content, and it is of a fairly good and constant flavor. Just what is the alcoholic content of my brew I am not certain. That isn't the point involved. The point is that I object to the prohibition law and shall continue to object to such silly continuation of the spirit of prohibition as 2.75 per cent beer.

Let the breweries make beer of whatever alcoholic content they will, so long as it is brewed naturally and is not fortified. The breweries and the beer drinkers will take care of the alcoholic content, the one from considerations of cost and the other for considerations of taste and effect. Prewar beer was not of very high alcoholic content, as a rule. Beer was not a high-balling wagon of Bacchus. Those who wished to get drunk sought other and quicker means. The means still are available to them and will continue to be.

Neither Congress nor the country should be deceived by false promises of large revenues to be derived from legalizing wishy-washy, pseudo beer. Is it reasonable to suppose that I shall buy brewery beer which is inferior to my own, and pay a heavy tax and large profits, when I can make better beer for a few cents a bottle?

I am skeptical of all the lame-duck drys suddenly become wets. No sincere antiprohibitionist can, in my opinion, afford to support any of the ridiculous beer bills which have been advanced as a sloppy sop to public opinion. Beware of Greeks bearing gifts. ANTISUMPTUARY.

Congress Should Simply Legalize Beer and Leave Details to the States.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress might simplify its consideration of the beer question if it would vote merely upon the matter which properly comes under its legislation—to legalize or not to legalize the sale of beer! As for how, when and where beer may be sold—those points might be safely left to the rights of States and municipalities. As beer could not be sold without the usual trade permit or license, it would be up to each State and each town in that State to formulate their own restrictions, as they did before the days of prohibition.

And why need Congress specify the alcoholic content? Why not permit the sale of real beer, carrying the same alcoholic content used by brewers when the manufacture of beer was legal? If those debated points be left where they properly belong, to the decision of the State, the work of Congress would be simplified, and there would be hope of sufficient revenue from the sale of beer to improve the state of our Treasury.

As one correspondent stated in The Post on November 28, the people would not buy 2.75 per cent beer, and the bootlegger would still flourish. He would still get all the revenue, and would collect it with greater ease and less expense to himself. For he would have no difficulty delivering his real product if the delivery of cases of 2.75 per cent beer were permitted. There are not enough policemen in Washington to test the alcoholic content of each case delivered. The bootlegger would have a wonderful opportunity. Even the congressmen would prefer his brand.

AVERAGE CITIZEN.

Says Hunger Marchers Complicate National Business—Probably Not Taxpayers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our Government now is confronted with great national and international problems, and it is no time for special groups to attempt further to complicate matters. For patriotic reasons, if nothing else, hunger marchers should be discouraged. If funds and transportation are given them to march on Washington, they can stay at home with less expense on the same funds.

The people have spoken, and the men they have put in charge of our Government will do all in their power to relieve our present depression and suffering without citizens being perched on the Capitol steps. Doubtless those who comprise our hunger marchers are nonvoters and it is a safe bet they are not even taxpayers.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THE underweights can rejoice at the declaration that winter is weight-gaining time, but for most of us this isn't good news. The cry, "Hold that line," so familiar to football fans, had best become a beauty maxim. Yes, hold that line, that beautiful line, graceful, smooth, sans bumps. Hold that figure that you worked so hard for during active summer months. Hold that "just right" curve at the hips. Don't let it spread. It's so quick to take on bumpety bulges, you know. Hold that perfectly beautiful line your dressmaker has been complimenting you on. Wasn't it only the other day she said, "Why, Miss Young, you can wear the new fashions beautifully—they show your figure off to such advantage."

What's that you say? It's not so easy. Of course not, but all the more satisfying, isn't it, to achieve the not-so-easy?

To be sure pounds are prone to accumulate during the winter months. We exercise less. We should not. We eat richer, more nourishing foods. The body needs them to some extent to store up fuel to fight the cold. It's bad business, however, to get too friendly with sweets and starches. Bad for that line. Eat more vegetables. Less tendency to accumulate pounds and inches then.

Simple and Wholesome Foods.

Simple, wholesome foods are best. Avoid rich desserts. Avoid fried foods. Avoid the pretty, pretty, dainty dishes that don't do a thing for you—aside from encouraging bulges. Choose foods that require thorough chewing—exercise for the teeth and digestive tract. Have your diet include plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. Be sure your diet is balanced. Eat enough food to sustain you, but don't overload your system. I have a general well-balanced diet that I should like every reader to have. It was compiled with the aid of a physician and dietitian and lists the foods that are good for most of us, and the foods to avoid.

Keep Active.

And keep active. Hold that line by exercising the muscles. Swell way to say "no" to those added bulges.

Try to accustom yourself to outdoor exercise, and get outdoors for a while no matter what the weather, except, of course, in severe storms. If you dress properly and keep moving, circulation will keep active. Cold won't bother you then. When the weather permits, take a brisk walk or indulge in winter sports. When the weather is bad, go through a set of simple exercises at home. Exercise to music if you like. Exercise in a group. Join an exercise club as well as a bridge club. I'll send you a complete set of exercises if you wish, or a reducing regime if you are having trouble "holding that line." Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for the diet, reducing instructions or exercises.

The Book of Knowledge
Will be a life-long beneficial influence on your children

During December the Palais Royal is pleased to announce a special exhibit of the Book of Knowledge in our Stationery Section, Main Floor. You may see the sets, examine them closely—and judge for yourself.

The parents in three million homes can't be wrong! Children who have the privilege of consulting the Book of Knowledge find their curiosity and imagination stimulated. They make better progress in school. They develop the vital self-reliance of thought essential to every one.

ANGELO PATRI says:
"The child must do his own thinking, make his own friends. He must find and develop the self or he will never amount to much. Always choose the best for your child." And again, "The Book of Knowledge is the best work of reference I have ever seen."

PRESIDENT HOOVER says:
"None of the problems before us is greater than the problems of the home and the children."

HON. ALFRED E. SMITH says:
of the Book of Knowledge: "Parents of children, Boards of Education and Librarians can not make any mistake in the purchase of this wonderful set of books, and I cheerfully recommend them."

A SMALL INITIAL PAYMENT WILL PLACE THIS SET UNDER YOUR CHILD'S CHRISTMAS TREE.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF DECEMBER 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 3:45 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date would seem propitious for the carrying out of any transactions from which financial gain is anticipated. If you have any problems that seem difficult of solution, regardless of their nature, the chances are that you will see them take a turn for the better on this December 1.

The child born on this December 1 will have a great abundance of nervous energy. The child will be inclined toward extreme nervousness and restlessness. Possessed of an active brain, his not too strong little body will be under somewhat of a handicap trying to keep up with all the things this youngster would like to do. These children will have very sweet and loving dispositions, and will like to be petted.

If your birthday is on December 1, you are a very unemotional person. You never show your feelings. This quality is generally advantageous to you, but at times it reacts to your detriment, for it gives you the appearance of not being interested, and splendid opportunities that would otherwise come before you are simply passed on to some one else. You have a good head and you know how to use it. You take great pride in the fact that you can always make money whenever you need it. You do not know how to spend it wisely. You have great confidence in your own abilities, but this confidence is built largely upon the fact that you have never met with failure in anything you have undertaken. You devote most of your time and thought to your business and do not seem to take great interest in your family. It is your attitude that they are there for your convenience.

If your birthday is on December 1 and you are a woman, you are a very natural person. There is no artificiality in your make-up. Guard yourself against a tendency to nag and scold your family. You should derive great pleasure from the serious study of music or art. You are a good dancer and you have a fine sense of rhythm. You do not care particularly for children.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT will be heard at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon over WRC and a national network as she presents the "National Smiles Award" to the winner.

An effort is also being made to have Mrs. Roosevelt speak in behalf of a charity cause in Rudy Vallee's hour over WRC at 8 o'clock tonight.

These are strenuous days for Mrs. Roosevelt. Following her first radio address Monday night in New York she was obliged to address a meeting in Town Hall, barely having time to get back to the radio studio to make her second broadcast of the evening.

APPARENTLY the National Association of Broadcasters is still entertaining the idea of establishing a radio "czar," a superman who could do things for the association which it could not do for itself. According to reports, the broadcasters are endeavoring to raise a fund of $150,000 for this purpose. The name of Newton D. Baker continues to be mentioned, and lately that of Owen D. Young has been heard.

If the idea persists, it has been suggested that the name of Herbert Hoover may be added to the list of eligibles after March 4. When an industry is looking for a "czar" no names are too big to conjure with.

With three directing heads—"Hollywood" McCosker, of Newark, new president, who promises to be very active; Oswald F. Schuette, who has been given a free hand in dealing with the matter of fees for broadcasting copyrighted music, and Phil Loucks, executive secretary—the National Association of Broadcasters seems very well supplied in that line. There are those who wonder what more a "czar" with a big name could do.

A feminine listener declares the daytime programs are better than those at night.

"The music, at least, is of a higher class," she added.

THE Aborn Light Opera Company will be the Five Star Theater attraction tonight (WJSV, 10 o'clock). Famous for its repertoire of Gilbert and Sullivan works and popular operettas, the company will present a condensed version of "The Merry Widow," Franz Lehar's Viennese musical production.

Milton Aborn will direct the light opera company, and the cast to be heard in "The Merry Widow" will include Gladys Baxter, Vivian Hart, Roy Cropper, Edward Nell, William Philbrick and Hal Ford.

A portion of the entertainment in connection with the Walter Johnson testimonial dinner at the Shoreham Hotel tonight will be broadcast by WJSV at 10:30 o'clock. The air portion will include an introduction of the notables present by Frank J. Hogan, a tribute to Walter Johnson by M. Hogan, Walter Johnson's response, solos by Dorothy Davenport, soprano, and Edwin C. Steffe, barytone; Fred East and Bill Raymond, harmony duo, and music by Maxim Lowe's fifteen-piece orchestra, directed by Barnee.

Eddie Cantor (in an aside): "You're as crazy as a bass singer."

THURSDAY is now, in the minds of many WRC listeners, the outstanding radio show night on the local air. The three big attractions are the Rudy Vallee program, Capt. Henry's Show Boat and Jack Pearl as the modern Baron Munchausen in the Lucky Strike Dance Hour.

Tonight Rudy will have as guest artists Francis Lederer and Patricia Collinge, who will present a scene from "Autumn Crocus," the dramatic success in which they are now appearing; Ethel Merman, star of "Take a Chance," a new musical comedy, and Moran and Mack, blackface comedy team.

"Ploddin' Along" and "Great Day" will be sung by Jules Bledsoe, barytone, when the Show Boat docks tonight (WRC, 9 o'clock). Lanny Ross' solos will be "Alone Together" and "Poor Pierrot." Solos by Annette Hanshaw, selections by the Hall Johnson Choir and the band directed by Don Voorhees, complete the program.

WILLIAM SWEETS, now a pioneer radio producer, is back with the N. B. C. production department in New York. Bill got his start writing a radio column in Washington and later became connected with WRC. He went from here to the N. B. C. in New York.

Later Sweets was in charge of the radio department of a New York advertising agency producing such important programs as "Collier's Hour."

Mildred Thompson, dean of Vasser College, continuing the series of talks on the romance of great women's colleges, will talk on "Vassar College—Yesterday and Today" over the WEAF-WTAM network at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The program will not be heard locally because of the United States Navy Band concert at that hour.

WMAL will present regular dinner concerts every night except Sundays from now on. Arrangements have been completed to broadcast the Meyer Davis Orchestra from the Willard Hotel at 6:45 p. m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, alternating with Abilio Martin's Washington Orchestra.

Milton J. Cross is doing his first Metropolitan Opera announcing this season. He was pioneer mike man on the first opera broadcast from Chicago years ago. At the Metropolitan this year he works in the observation box, high above the diamond horseshoe.

Thus far he has done beautifully.

ANF street radio store has for sale miniature microphones, which can be connected with an electric light socket and which really work. They are displayed in the window and bear the sign, "Step in and be your own radio announcer."

Stalin and former Kaiser Wilhelm are among the outstanding European figures whose voices have never been heard in this country over an international hookup. Politics has blocked several attempts to have Stalin address an American audience.

EDDIE EAST: "Mahatma Gandhi was once a lawyer."

Ralph Dumke: "I'll bet he wasn't so hot in court."

East: "Why?"

COALITION UNIT RAPS SOVIET RECOGNITION

Debt Cancellation Also Is Opposed by Board of 95 Groups.

Several reactionary resolutions, including one which opposed any recognition of Soviet Russia, were adopted yesterday at a meeting of the advisory board of the American Coalition of Patriotic, Civic and Fraternal Societies, composed of 95 representative groups.

Other resolutions adopted opposed cancellation of foreign debts, urged outlawing of persons and groups advocating the overthrow of government by force and violence, urged maintenance of an adequate national defense, favored early passage by Congress of the Dies bill which seeks the deportation of alien Communists and urged enactment of legislation permanently reducing immigration.

The resolutions were drawn up at a morning session of the resolutions committee headed by Judge Josiah A. Van Orsdel. Members of the committee are Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Col. John Thomas Taylor, Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Admiral R. E. Coontz, William Tyler Page, Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, Demarest Lloyd, Mrs. Charlotte C. Ayerigg, Mrs. R. M. Evans, Miss Beatrice Tyson, Miss Helen Cummings, H. A. Jung, H. A. Miller, H. Ralph Burton, Maj. Edwin S. Bettelheim. John B. Trevor presided at the advisory board session which confirmed the resolutions.

Norman Thomas to Talk In Washington Dec. 11

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President in the recent elections, will speak at one of the lectures being planned by the District of Columbia branches of the Socialist party for the winter months. Mr. Thomas will speak on December 11.

Further plans for the lectures and the selection of a place for the lectures will be made at a meeting tomorrow night in the offices of Marx Lewis, 907 Fifteenth street northwest.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

As one looks back across the years, it is possible to recall many instances in which attempts have been made to embody a wide range of episodic incident in a single feature-length film. Although the titles have largely forsaken what I still laughingly refer to as my memory, I seem to recall that Owen Moore made one, 'way back in the days of his stardom in Selznick Pictures, and that Mickey Neilan, at the height of his career as a director of sure-fire box-office hits, also undertook one of these many-barreled narratives with more or less—mostly less—success. Then, of course, there was Paul Muni's "Seven Faces," an intricate composite in which all of the work fell upon the strong and willing shoulders of the star.

Richard Bennett

All of which is merely background for the statement that of all these many motion picture mosaics, by far the most cleverly devised and most entertaining, within the reach of this recollection, is "If I Had a Million," opening at Loew's Fox tomorrow. This is not so much due to a dozen writers, seven or eight directors and a majority of all the stars and featured players on the Paramount lot's having had a finger in its making, as to the fact that a topic of unfailing and universal interest has been selected about which to spin a whole flock of partially isolated, but nevertheless interdependent, playlets.

By the time Richard Bennett, in the role of a crotchety multimillionaire, has finished his self-appointed task of distributing certified checks for $1,000,000 each to a succession of beneficiaries, all strangers to him, chosen at random from the city directory, and each has put the money to the uses nearest his heart, there have been unfolded qualities of drama that range all the way from sheerest farce to deepest tragedy and back again.

It is an experience that any judicious amusement seeker may contemplate with the thrill of eager anticipation, for during the 90 minutes of its unwinding there is bound to happen along something that will hit him, full force, right where he lives.

Incidentally, Richard Bennett does some very elegant roaring in the early sequences and some A-1 Good Samaritaning a little farther along, surrounded at all times by more stars than there are in the Milky Way!

Which was all that was needed to bring back to mind that no sooner had we got it in the paper that Will Fyffe had been supplanted by Bob Hope on next week's stage bill at the Fox than the harassed and giddy Mr. Eddy Gilmore fell off his merry-go-round long enough to give us another ring and announce that on the next mail Bob Hope had been deleted and Jimmy Savo, once of the "Vanities," put in to take his place. By the time you see this there is no telling who will have been substituted for Mr. Savo!

It is probably a good thing that Carter Barron, accompanied by Mrs. Barron, got back to town yesterday afternoon to relieve old Col. Harry Long of the anxiety of trying to get a stage bill to stay put two hours in a row. Mr. Barron, you will recall, has been holidaying in his native Atlanta, and points adjacent, over the turkey-and-cranberry-sauce season. Having driven both ways, it will probably not be more than a fortnight until he has completely recuperated from his vacation!

Other arrivals in our comparative midst yesterday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Bosworth, who reached Washington at 5 p. m., approximately two days in advance of Mr. Bosworth's first stage appearance as coheadliner of next week's vaudeville bill at the Earle.

Mr. Bosworth has been in pictures since 1905 and had a long and distinguished stage career to his credit before that, but beginning Friday is making his first personal appearance in the Capital. He will be seen four times a day at the Earle in a sketch bearing the title of "Now and Then," which concerns itself with the evolution of the movies from 1905 to the present. Today is being devoted to sightseeing.

The same bill that will afford the public its first glimpse of Mr. Bosworth in the flesh will mark the return of Maxine Doyle to her accustomed post of mistress of ceremonies—from which she has been absent for a week taking a screen test at the Warner Brothers' Vitaphone studios in New York—and the beginning of her third consecutive year at the corner of Thirteenth and E streets. The good Doctor La Falce, of the Warner publicity department, drops the hint that Miss Doyle's dressing room is all cluttered up with new gowns, ensembles, evening wraps, sports togs, et ceteras, acquired during her romp through the fashion salons of Fifth and Park avenues.

The mellifluous Miss Doyle, by the way, was the first to enroll as a student in the new Clifford Brooke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts, soon to be opened in this city and already open for enrollments. Not content to await her turn in Washington, Maxine managed to find time between trips to the modiste's and the Vitaphone plant, while in New York, to hunt up Mr. Brooke and his associate, Maurice Greet, and place her name on the dotted line.

She is already, of course, a veteran of the Panchon & Marco forces and has been two full years at the Earle, but it has been known to her friends for a long time that a career on the dramatic stage has not been wholly outside her ambition for future greatness. Inspired, no doubt, by the astonishing strides made by Ona Munson under Mr. Brooke's guidance with the National Theater Players last summer, she lost no time in becoming No. 1 on the roster of the new Academy's initial enrollment. Mr. Brooke foresees a bright future for her in the more serious forms of dramatic endeavor.

Her first play, presumably, will be written for her by some one, or all, of the Davises.

For those who are just recovering from Thanksgiving, it may be news that Russ Columbo and his orchestra are at Wardman Park today, tomorrow and Saturday. Today and tomorrow—begging your pardon, Mr. Heinl—they will be on the air through WRC. In addition to his familiar work as a microphone canary, I am told that Mr. Columbo will add some ne plus ultra violin soloing to his usual repertoire, which should make his local programs no less than grand!

It is pleasant to report that greetings from Edgar Waite, formerly in charge of advertising and publicity at the Fox, but now in New York, are being relayed to his Washington friends by Irene Weber, a helpful Fox survivor, on the present office staff of Mr. Barron's F street cathedral, who has a way of keeping in touch! Mr. Waite, it seems, has gradually been working his way East from California, via Denver, in the guise of a big advertising agency man doing himself some good.

And the top of the morning to you, too, feller!

If ever a dramatic feast was spread before a hungry public, that grateful service will be performed by the Abbey Theater Players in the National Theater for the week beginning next Monday night, when an almost daily change of bill will be presented at a scale of admission prices considerably below what the merit of the offerings might be expected to command.

The company's repertory for the week will be found in some detail in the advertising columns of this family journal and from the list there printed it should be easily possible for any real lover of the theater to select a rich repast of satisfying histrionics not only for one afternoon or evening, but for many.

Among the impending week's other imminent diversions are Jose Iturbi's piano recital in Constitution Hall this Saturday night at 8:30, as the third attraction in Mrs. Wilson-Greene's evening series at that auditorium; Burton Holmes' illustrated travelogue on "Vienna," Sunday afternoon at 3, in the National, and on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30, in Constitution Hall, the first violin concert offered in Washington by Jascha Heifetz in something more than two years.

The screen fare for the new week, beginning tomorrow, will be as follows: Loew's Fox, fifteen stars in "If I Had a Million," and Irene Rich headlining the vaudeville; Earle, Loretta Young and George Brent in "They Call It Sin," and Benny Davis' "Future Stars" and Hobart Bosworth coheadlining the vaudeville; RKO-Keith's, Constance Bennett, Joel McCrea and Paul Lukas in "Rockabye;" Palace, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Tess of the Storm Country;" Columbia, Evalyn Knapp, Joan Blondell and Eric Linden in "Big City Blues;" Metropolitan, Richard Barthelmess, Bette Davis and Dorothy Jordan in "Cabin in the Cotton," second week.

In case you have figured out what to use for money, this is the month and there are only 21 more shopping days till Christmas!

Great Violinist Plays With Symphony Today

Paul Kochansky, one of the world's great violinists, will play with the National Symphony Orchestra at a concert this afternoon in Constitution Hall. The Polish Ambassador, Titus Filipowicz, and Wladyslaw Sokolowski, counsellor of the embassy, will occupy boxes in honor of their fellow countryman.

The program will include Beethoven's first symphony, Tschaikowsky's concerto, Debussy's "Afternoon of the Faun" and Liszt's second Hungarian rhapsody.

PSYCHOLOGY ILLUSTRATED.

WHILE most Bridge writers place considerable stress on the importance of the psychological element in the game, one usually finds that they deal only with its application to bidding. I do not recollect ever seeing an illustration of the effect of psychology on the play, and I therefore venture to draw attention to the following hand which occurred the other evening, and forms, I think, as pretty an example of psychological play as it would be possible to find.

Neither side was vulnerable. North dealt and bid one spade on this hand:

Spades	K J 10 6 4 2
Diamonds	A K 10
Clubs	7 6 4

East overcalled with two diamonds. South held:

Spades	7 5 3
Hearts	A K Q 10 6 4 2
Diamonds	Q

and bid six hearts, which East doubled. South redoubled, and there was no further bidding.

West's Opening lead was a diamond. South won with the Queen and then went into Dummy with the Knave of hearts to obtain two discards on the diamond Ace and King. These discards brought into play the psychological factor.

It was, of course, practically certain that East held the Ace and Queen of spades. The positions of the club King and Queen were not so clear, there being a good chance that one of them, at least, lay on South's left. While it was probable, however, that if West held either of these cards, South should be one trick light, there was still a chance of bringing off a successful "squeeze," and South set out to frame his plans accordingly.

Rapidly South looked ahead to the time when he should have four cards left, two of which would be trumps and the other two "losers," since he must part with the Ace of clubs in order to get the lead in his own hand. East would then, in all probability, hold, in addition to the Ace-Queen of spades, either King-Queen, King-x or Queen-x of clubs. What would he discard on South's next trump lead? This obviously depended on South's discard of the diamonds.

If South discarded two spades, East would in all probability discard the spade Queen. But would he carry his reasoning to its logical conclusion and discard the Ace also on South's last trump? It was clearly necessary to take into account East's "class" before proceeding. South knew him to be just a moderate kind of player, who, while making no bad mistakes, would be likely to fall short in a crisis such as this, and decided that, at the last, East would shirk parting with the spade Ace and would compromise a club. This would defeat South, since East and West must then make the last 2 tricks.

Clearly, therefore, South must discard a spade and the Knave of clubs and rely upon East keeping as his last three cards the Ace of spades and two clubs. It was possible that in view of South's discard of a club East might have a "brain-wave" and discard both his clubs, but here again South's knowledge of his mentality was of assistance. He knew that East was well acquainted with the wiles of false-carding and, without analyzing the position very clearly, he would probably, on seeing the club Knave, immediately say to himself, "Aha! Another of South's falsecards!" In any case, the risk had to be taken.

Everything worked out beautifully. South discarded a spade and the Knave of Clubs, led a club and won with the Ace, and then led five more trumps. On the last of these East, who held King-x of clubs, discarded the spade Queen, thus giving South his contract.

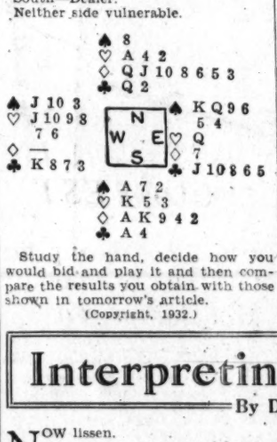
Of course, the whole point of the hand is that, had East been a first-class player, South's best policy would have been to discard two spades and to rely upon East discarding both the Ace and Queen. Or again, had the latter been one of "the world's 'ranking'" players, he might, when South discarded two spades, have argued that South was probably bluffing, and discarded two clubs. And in that case would not South's best plan have been to try a "double bluff" by discarding a spade and a club?

But enough!

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

NOW lissen.

I like to hiss my ssssss-es, it makes everything so much more impressive.

Today is the first of the month, and it is either raining or it isn't! But I'll tell you what let's do tomorrow, if it rains! Let's look through our entire wardrobe with needle, thread, soap, scissors and iron, and give ourselves one grand and glorious refurbishing for the month.

Maybe you have been so busy with exams, or clubs, or dates, that you have neglected your wardrobe shamefully. If so, you will only be able to wash, tint, mend and iron your lingerie. That is enough, if you do it thoroughly, and at the same time make a list of just what else you need to do, sartorially, before Christmas! Today buy your soap flakes, your tinting stuff, your pink silk thread and anything else you will need to take care of your wardrobe.

Now, how about the dainty little things you wear with your party frock? A box, cherie, a box! And put in the bottom of it a good, thick pad of cotton with your favorite sachet.

Box upon box, won't that be peachy, to have a box for gloves, another for nighties, another for teddies—all marked on the outside and lined with a scented cotton pad? And, if you have time, your boxes can be as decorative as you wish, covered, perhaps, with cretonne or wall paper, or pretty wooden of lacquer boxes.

Umm, come on, let's! I'm quite excited about it myself and am going to put fresh cotton and sachet into all my pretty boxes tonight!

We have made you a leaflet with suggestions in it for making a lot of toys for the children. All inexpensive, all things that you can very easily make at home. And in it some new oilcloth animals that the kiddies love better than do the grown-ups! Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet right away, as it is just the right time to start making these toys. And you won't have to buy many things, either—really, just a few hunks of oilcloth, and then find all the rest of everything right in the scrap bag. A lot of suggestions for the kinds of toys children like are in this leaflet, too, 'cause you don't want to make 'em, but just buy them.

School Addition Contract Is Let

$6,000 Fund Transfer Is Made to Cover Work at Bancroft.

The District Commissioners yesterday decided to transfer $6,000 from another fund so as to award a contract for construction of an 8-room addition to the Bancroft School to the Mass Construction Co., of Baltimore, on its low bid of $93,900.

The contract price is $2,740.32 above the amount remaining of the appropriation for the project, but Auditor Daniel J. Donovan advised the Commissioners that $6,000 could be transferred from an unobligated balance of $14,174.81 on the Keene School.

The Buy-in-Washington Council had recommended that all bids be rejected in the hope that the next lowest bidder might be a Washington concern. Harold W. Baker, director of construction, pointed out that the original bids "are very reasonable" and that additional expense would be incurred by remodeling the plans to meet the amount available. The more than $3,000 additional, it was explained, is needed for various contingencies in the construction.

THURSDAY DECEMBER 1, 1932 SPORTS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

IT HAS arrived. The first movement to bring together the George Washington University and Catholic University football teams in a postseason charity game rears a hopeful head out of the mass of local football fans. The project takes the form of a letter to this department:

"Inclosed you will please find a petition containing approximately 200 signatures which I have gathered among my Washington friends and acquaintances. I think it will give sufficient evidence of local fans' interest in the proposed George Washington University-Catholic University postseason football game.

"Such a game unquestionably would prove to be a large drawing card and the gate receipts could well be devoted to our Community Chest needs.

"I am hoping that you will be disposed to persuade the authorities of the two universities that such a game should be played. I understand that Catholic University is in a very favorable mood toward staging the game and that you would only have to induce Coach Pixlee and other George Washington University officials that local charities and local devotees of the gridiron should thus be served."

The letter is signed by Bryan Coe, of the United States Patent Office.

The petition was inclosed as duly noted and is an impressive scroll of exactly 193 names. This department is pleased to publish the request, but frankly I believe that the movement to bring G. W. and C. U. together on the football field is foredoomed to failure for the simple reason that George Washington has outlined its policy and intends to hew to it.

However willing Catholic U. might be to play the game, G. W. has indicated in the past that it does not choose to compete in local athletic circles. There is also the ever-ready excuse that "the team has been thrown out of training and the boys have jobs and it would be impossible to assemble the squad at this time."

The game is the one contest that would fill Griffith Stadium's 35,000 seats and would indeed be the choicest spectacle of the local grid season. Both teams, by scheduling the game, could show their gratitude for local patronage this season. But it will be a gratifying surprise to this department if they play.

Bob Dunlap, Oklahoma University's hero of the Thanksgiving Day battle with George Washington at Griffith Stadium, has been named captain and quarter back on the All-Big Six team of the Associated Press and District fans are not surprised.

Dunlap's work here recalled the scintillating play of other backfield stars of lower-crust teams, which have played in the Capital, particularly Gyp Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan and Clark Hinkle, of Bucknell. It seems to be a foregone conclusion that teams which visit Washington boast at least one outstanding back whose All-American fame is clouded only because of his presence of a so-called minor college.

Among the players of this type who have appeared here are Hansen, of North Dakota State; Haswell, of Chattanooga, and Sullivan, of Duquesne.

Virtanen Accepts Bid Of A. A. U. to Run Here

Helsingfors, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Lauri Vitanen, outstanding young Finnish distance runner, has accepted the invitation of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States to compete on American tracks this winter.

Invitations also were extended to Lauri Lehtinen, victor over Ralph Hill, American star, in the Olympic 5,000-meter run, and Volmari Iso-Hollo, Olympic steeplechase champion, neither of whom has yet accepted. The trio will have to receive permission of the Finnish Athletic Union to make the trip.

Cubs Trade 4 To Reds for Herman

Hemsley, Richbourg, Smith, Moore Go to Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, announced tonight that Babe Herman, his hard-hitting right fielder, had been traded to the Chicago Cubs for four players and a cash consideration.

The four players who will come to Cincinnati, are Bob Smith, veteran pitcher; Johnny Moore, outfielder; Lance Richbourg, outfielder, and Rollie Hemsley, catcher.

Herman came to Cincinnati after a trade with Brooklyn March 14 of this year. The deal also brought to the Reds Wally Gilbert, third baseman, and Ernie Lombardi, catcher.

In exchange, Brooklyn received Tony Cuccinello, second baseman; Joe Stripp, third baseman, and Clyde Sukeforth, catcher.

Trade No Surprise To Fans.

The trade was not a great surprise. Fans had anticipated that Donie Bush, the Reds' new manager, would use Herman in an effort to bolster weak spots in the tail-end Cincinnati club.

Weil disclosed "we could have made a great deal" with Chicago for Chick Hafey, another of the Reds' big hitters, but added Hafey would not be sold or traded under any consideration. He declined to name the amount involved in the Herman deal.

"My only hope is that today's deal will help our ball club," Weil commented. He said it gives the club added strength and more players for possible additional trades.

Weil tonight sent a telegram to Herman in Glendale, Calif., informing him of his transfer and wishing him luck.

Herman's batting average the last season was afound .325.

Michigan Rose Bowl Bid Hinges on Ruling

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Prof. Thomas E. French, of Ohio State University, president of the Western Conference, said tonight he expected a decision Saturday on a proposal that conference rules prohibiting postseason football games be amended to permit the University of Michigan to meet Southern California in the annual Rose Bowl game at Pasadena.

The proposal was made by the Big Ten Club of Los Angeles which requested an informal poll of conference members to determine if they would favor rule changes if Michigan is invited to play the game. Prof. French said the club sent a letter to Big Ten members requesting that they send their replies to him.

Hickey Wins Verdict In Suit by Ex-Umpire

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Circuit Judge Otto H. Breidenbach late today instructed a jury to return a verdict in favor of Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Association Baseball League, who was being sued for $25,000 by James Murray, former association umpire.

Murray's suit was based on the charge that Hickey had prevented him from obtaining employment as an umpire in organized baseball.

Cy Young to Coach Washington-Lee Five

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Washington and Lee's basket ball varsity this year will be coached by Harry K (Cy) Young, one of the university's most outstanding athletes of all time.

Coach Young succeeds Ray Ellerbe as head coach of the quint. Authorities said that Ellerman's coaching was as satisfactory as could be expected in every way, but it was unable to pay the former Wisconsin star without jeopardizing other sports appropriations. Young returned to his alma mater in 1930 as freshman coach. He has good prospects for the team this year.

D. C. Fans Honor Johnson Tonight

Dinner, Entertainment and Dance as Testimonial at the Shoreham.

Washington baseball fans will turn out en masse tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Shoreham, when Walter Johnson will be honored with a testimonial dinner. A committee of more than 100 has been working like Trojans to make the affair a success, and all indications point toward the greatest gathering of diamond fans ever seen here at an occasion of this kind.

Frank J. Hogan will act as master of ceremonies, with Joseph E. Kaufman, chairman of the entertainment committee. The former promises no speeches other than an introduction of Johnson and a response by the latter, who will be presented with an engraved set of resolutions, while Kaufman promises many entertainment features by radio and vaudeville stars. In addition, Altrock and Schacht will put on a show and movies of the final four innings of the 1924 world's series game, in which Johnson faced the New York Giants, will be shown.

The dinner is open to public subscription at $3 per plate, and Mr., Mrs. and Miss Fan are invited to pay homage to one of the outstanding figures in the national game.

In addition to the dinner and entertainment features, there will be dancing.

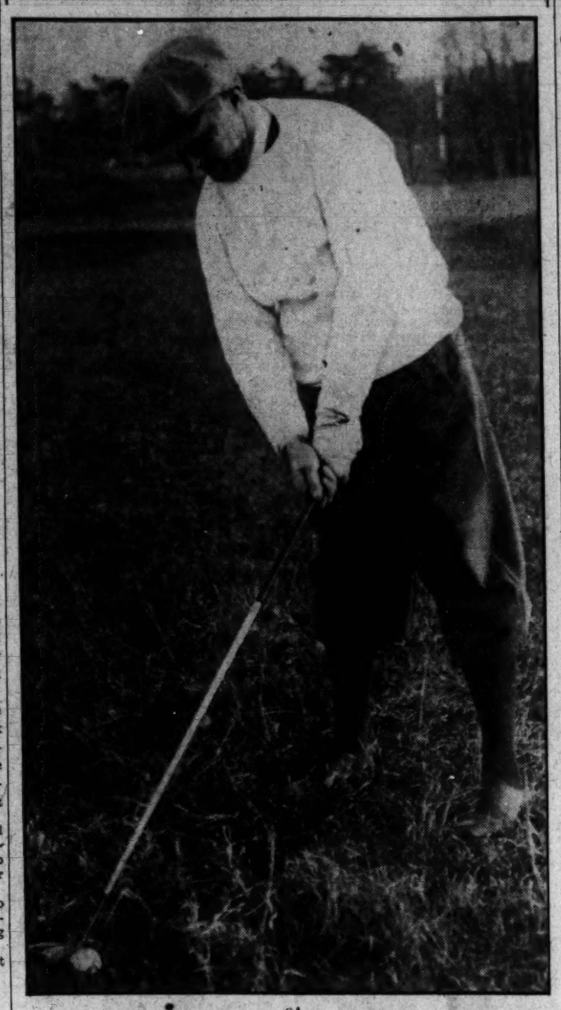
George Diffenbaugh Says Swing Is More Upright Than With Other Wooden Clubs



George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring professional, whose mastery of the spoon shot is recognized in this section, illustrates in the above photograph his form at the point of contact with the ball. Diffenbaugh plays the shot with his hands close to his body with the left hand controlling the swing of the club and the right hand providing the punch.

Pro at Indian Spring Urges Club's Use by Beginners.

By GEORGE DIFFENBAUGH (Indian Spring Club Pro). As told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Golf Writer.

A SPOON is really a long iron. Rather than see a golfer force an iron, I would suggest using a spoon. In my opinion the spoon is a decidedly better club through the fairway than a brassie.

When instructing novices, I prefer having them use a brassie off the tee as a starter, and advise them to substitute the spoon for the brassie in the fairway or rough. Between the two clubs there is possibly a difference of 10 or 15 yards.

The added loft of a spoon has the tendency to give beginners more confidence in getting the ball into the air. In using the spoon out of a close or bad lie, one is afforded a better chance of getting the ball out and away than if you took a chance with a brassie.

The swing in the spoon is much more upright than in the other woods. The ball should be played from a spot opposite the left heel. Hold the elbows close to the body, but not touching. Stand close to the ball.

Start the club and hands back at the same time. I take no more than a three-quarter swing. Remember that the weight at the top of the swing should be on the right foot. Just bear in mind that in the spoon shot the left hand controls the club and the right hand supplies the punch.

The turn of the body should come natural and easy, never forced. Don't forget to "cock" the wrists at the top of the swing, and when ready for the downward swing, don't "uncock" them too quickly. It has been my exxperience to notice that if "uncocked" too hurriedly, you will find yourself digging or scooping the ball.

The right hand snaps the clubhead through without any tendency of the left hand quitting, but both must be kept straight at the moment of the impact.

In following through the shoulders should be square to the hole at the finish of the swing. There should be no pronation, and do not let the hands turn too fast. Let there be a natural rotation of the arms, and be sure that the left leg is straight when the clubhead crashes with the ball.

In analyzing the shot, it might be noted that by keeping the left arm straight pivoting is made easier. Using the right shoulder as leverage, the weight is shifted to the left foot on the down swing and the speed of the club is thereby increased.

Notre Dame Called Better Than in '31

Los Angeles, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—University of Southern California's special Notre Dame football investigator returned to the walls of Troy today with a report the Ramblers have a "little stronger team" than in 1931. The two teams meet here December 10.

"Notre Dame has plenty of individual brilliance," quoth Aubrey Devine, who scouts the South Bend aggregation year in and year out. "What the team seemed to lack until it hit Army was an enthusiastic spark, but that was touched off in the Cadet game.

"I would say Hunk Anderson's squad has a smarter offense than before." He thumbed through a fat notebook of diagrams and added: "The team has a great collection of plays. In almost every game I scouted the opposition used a different defense, but the Ramblers seemed to have the right combination of formations to fit the situation.

Auburn's Regulars To Face S. Carolina

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—South Carolina's offensive, as depicted by a freshman eleven today, was bottled up by the Auburn varsity in consistent fashion.

The Auburn forwards tore the freshman line to shreds and stopped the backs before they could get under way. Chambless, Senn and Johnson, in the line, looked better than they have this season.

Burger to Captain '33 Virginia Eleven

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Ray E. Burger, of Covington, was chosen captain of the 1933 University of Virginia football team at the team's annual banquet at Farmington Country Club tonight. Twenty-two letter men attended the banquet.

Burger, who has played tackle through two seasons, holds a certificate of intermediate honors for unusual scholastic attainment during his first two years at the university. This is the highest academic award made to an undergraduate.

New Low Average Scoring Record Set on 1932 Grids

By FOSTER HAILEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—With added rules hampering offensive play, competition growing keener every year in the big conferences, and the inclination growing to avoid set-up games, football scoring records for the 1932 season tumbled to a new low average of 12.83 points per game, a compilation today of the records of 159 representative teams showed.

It is the lowest total of the eleven years such records have been gathered by the Associated Press, being 1.17 points under the previous low of 14 last year.

One reason for the decrease in scoring may be found in the more even competition in the various big conferences and the scheduling by both big and little schools of teams in their own class.

Nebraska, which held the mighty Pittsburgh machine to a scoreless tie and lost only to Minnesota, 7-6, scored only 84 points while allowing 34, in 8 games.

Yale, with one of its poorest seasons in years, finished its 7-game schedule with an exact stand-off—scoring 41 points and yielding the same number.

The champion Southwest Conference team of Texas Christian took the scoring honors for the season, rolling up 283 points to 23 for their opposition in 11 games. The average high, however, went to West Liberty Teachers. The little West Virginia school, playing schools of its own class, scored 258 points in 8 games for a game average of 32.2 against

G. U. Reveals New Signs Of Power

Coaches Elated Over Workout for Game With Carnegie.

Skibos Taking Game Lightly, Is Word From Pittsburgh.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

AS rare as a discontented cow in the joyous herd of the Carnation Milk Co. is a football coach whose face is covered with smiles. But when you run into three coaches, all smiling, it's a cinch that something bordering on the miraculous has happened. Something resembling a miracle did happen yesterday—Georgetown looked swell.

It is very annoying to the writing gentry for such a thing to happen, because since Gallaudet closed its season the boys have had no college team to hop on with a few of the more vituperative nouns, except Georgetown. The present crop of Hoyas were generally credited with being the most hopeless team in the 57-year-old history of football at the Hilltop. In fact no less an authority than one of the Jesuits attached to the school pronounced it "the dumbest football team in the history of football, not Georgetown's, but football at large."

And then on top of all this the team looked like the best in Washington yesterday in the most satisfying workout of the year.

Condescend To Block.

They even blocked, a method of removing obstacles which no Georgetowners have stooped to this season. Three complete back fields blended perfectly together, and the line charged, tackled and shifted with first-rate excellence.

All these things, and latest dispatches from the camp of Carnegie Tech tend to make next Saturday's game a dramatic spectacle with which to end the District collegiate grid season. From Pittsburgh comes word that Coach Bob Waddell is haing troubles trying to convince the Skibos that they are in for a tough afternoon Saturday. Carnegie players can't get very steamed up over their impending game. Waddell believes that one of the reasons may be the fact that they played Pittsburgh and N. Y. U. in a five-day period, a task which few if any teams would care to tackle. Carnegie showed its greatness in losing only by a single touchdown to each club.

Comparative Scores Reveal Strength.

Comparative scores say that Carnegie is better than Notre Dame, for Pitt beat the Irish, 12 to 0, and Carnegie, 6 to 0. Carnegie lost to N. Y. U., 13 to 6, after leading, 6 to 0, for 50 minutes. Georgetown lost to N. Y. U., 43 to 0, early in the year.

Washington will see a real football player in Tommy Coulter, Carnegie half back. Coulter is supposed to be a substitute back, but his play in the New York University game has ousted a couple of veterans. Kavel, Carnegie's triple-threat back, is an All-America nominee, but he is said to be overshadowed by the Coulter man.

Everybody looked good at Georgetown yesterday, and there was more pepper in the work-out than is owned by the Sanitary. It will be the final game of their collegiate grid careers of Capt. Ray Hudson, end; Louis Dee, Al Kelly, Johnny Shimmens, Russ Danieu and Bernie Donoghue, backs; Larry Sullivan, tackle; Dick Danner, guard, and Gunnar Anderson, tackle.

Carnegie won't get here until late Friday night.

Bancroft to Pilot Minneapolis Club

Minneapolis, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Managerial talent trained under the big top again was assured the Minneapolis Ball Club today with the signing of Dave ("Beauty") Bancroft to pilot the 1932 champions of the American Association.

Like his predecessor, Donie Bush, who goes back to the majors as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, Bancroft formerly was one of baseball's shortstop celebrities, having starred particularly with the Philadelphia Nationals and the New York Giants. As a big league veteran, Bancroft played with and managed the Boston Braves. Later he was with Brooklyn for two years.

COLGATE DECLINES BID.

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Graduate Manager of Athletics William A. Reid today declined an invitation for Colgate to play a Pacific Coast team in Los Angeles December 17, under auspices of the Salvation Army. In declining the invitation Mr. Reid expressed reluctance, but stated the unsettled status of the Rose Bowl conflict influenced the decision.

Hitchcock and Zimmerman, Triple-Threat Backs of Auburn and Tulane Draw Most Praise; Cain, Feathers Also Named.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Jimmy Hitchcock and Don Zimmerman, triple-threat backs from Auburn and Tulane, drew most praise from coaches and sports writers who selected the eighth annual Associated Press All-Southern Conference football team for 1932.

For the first time in several years there were no unanimous choices, but Hitchcock and Zimmerman were named on a vast majority of the 50 ballots by football experts.

Six teams, representing every section of the conference, placed athletes on the first squad, while seven have men on the reserve eleven.

Five Star Backs in Running.

One of the features of the balloting was the close race between the five star backs—Beattie Feathers, of Tennessee; Clyde "Dixie" Roberts, of Vanderbilt; John Cain, of Alabama; Zimmerman and Hitchcock.

Feathers was third in the tabulation as Cain won place over Roberts by a handful of votes. Although a half back, Hitchcock received more votes for quarter back than any other and was named at that post. Ralph Kercheval, Kentucky's fine back and kicker, polled a heavy vote, but was crowded off by the landslide in favor of the other ball carriers.

The closest duel of ballots among the linemen came at tackle and guard. Charles Leyendecker, of Vanderbilt, and Fred Crawford, of Duke, finished with a small margin over Bill Grinus, captain of Virginia Tech's fine team. Tom Hupke, of Alabama, and John Scafide, of Tulane, topped the guards, but the race for second-team positions was spirited.

Pete Gracey, of Vanderbilt, had little competition for center, and David Ariail, of Auburn, and Virgil Raburn, of Tennessee, were easily the choice at ends.

Quintet Repeaters From 1931 Team.

Five players—Zimmerman, Cain, Gracey, Scafide and Leyendecker—were repeaters from the 1931 honor team. Feathers, Hupke and Ariail are juniors, while the others are seniors. Joe Rupert, of Kentucky, and Harry Rossiter, of Duke, named on the second team as ends, are sophomores.

The second team: Rupert, Kentucky, and Rossiter, Duke ends; Bill Grinus, V. P. I., and Malcolm Aitken, Tennessee, tackles; Marion Talley, Vanderbilt, and Eugene Hite, V. P. I., guards; Howard Neblett, Georgia Tech, center; Lowell Mason, Duke, quarter back; Clyde Roberts, Vanderbilt, and Norman Mott, Georgia, half backs; Ralph Kercheval, Kentucky, full back.

LONDOS TOPS FINE MAT CARD

Meets Garibaldi in Feature Tonight at Auditorium.

BLUE bloods from the stockade of grassling will gambol about the creaking stage of the Washington Auditorium tonight to present the latest and perhaps greatest of Prof. Joe Turner's revues de guet. The leading role is to be taken by Jim Londos, and his accomplice will be Gino Garibaldi, rated high among the country's rasslers.

Londos, rich, handsome, powerful figure in wrestling—champion since early in 1930 and winner of some incredible number of successive victories, has not shown here in several months, during which time he has piled more fame and fortune in the Londos scrapbook. Garibaldi was the hero of last summer's build-up and beat everybody in sight except Londos.

Tonight's battle brings together two almost similar rasslers. They are cautious at the start and ribald at the finish. If any one is stronger, it is Garibaldi, who is more reckless because he does not have to carry wrestling around on his shoulders.

Preliminaries May Steal Show.

Two preliminary matches promise to steal the show, either collectively or individually. Jim McMillan, who scored an important victory over Hans Kampfer in Chicago two nights ago, meets Everett Marshall, hefty collegian, who is being boosted into eminence. Johan Richtoff, Sweden's own Frankenstein, who stands 6 feet 5 inches high, weighs 235, and holds two Olympic titles, waltzes with Milo Steinborn, a circus strong man, who took the Curley cure.

Rudy Dusek, Washington's favorite matman, bangs around with Frank Judson, former Harvard athletic coach, who is making a name for himself in rassling. Last Tuesday, in Baltimore, Judson dumped Berto Asseratti in jig time, or thereabouts.

Bullet Joe Cox trades nose tweaks and bone-bends with George Vasell in an effort to make a vassal out of the big Italian, and Jim Heslyn tackles George Zarynoff in other bouts, bringing the total to six, the biggest card in months.

Women fans are charged 25 cents.

Fields Fights Tonight After 6 Months' Lapse

San Francisco, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Making his first start since he was afflicted with eye trouble six months ago, Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will face Tommy Herman, of Chicago, in a 10-round nontitle fight here tomorrow night.

Despite the long layoff, the title holder will go into the ring a strong favorite. In his workouts here, Fields showed flashes of his old-time form and, although he is a few pounds over the welterweight limit, he convinced spectators he had lost none of his speed. He will weigh around 151 pounds. He has completely recovered from the eye affliction.

Fields has been tentatively asked to meet Young Corbett, of Fresno, in a championship battle here next February 22.

HYATTSVILLE VICTOR.

Hyattsville A. C. trimmed the Lustine Nicholson Junior cagers last night, 38 to 27. McCann and Kitchen starred for the victors.

SHOLL'S PLAY TONIGHT.

Sholl's Cafe Five meets the Reconstruction Finance Corporation team tonight at Central High at 8:30 o'clock. The former team is looking for games at Decatur 0032.

3 C. U. STARS IN CHARITY CONTEST

Whelan, Sheary and Fraatz to Play at Baltimore.

THREE Catholic University football stars who concluded their college grid careers last Saturday, yesterday received invitations from Dick Harlow, famed Western Maryland coach, to play with the All-Southern grid team which will meet an All-Northern combination December 10 in Baltimore for charity. The All-Northern team will be coached by Jock Sutherland, of the University of Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals are Tommy Whelan and Buster Sheary, star half and full backs, and Vinny Fraatz, sterling end. They immediately accepted the invitation to play and will report several times to Harlow before the day of the game.

They swell to four the representation of the Washington district in the game, Al Woods, Maryland back, having been chosen Monday.

The game will be played at the big Baltimore Municipal Stadium and its backers are expecting a crowd in the neighborhood of 50,000 fans. It is the first time Catholic University players have been asked to play in such a contest.

U. S. BOXER DISQUALIFIED.

Sailor Squad In Fighting Condition

Coach Miller Making No Predictions as Game Nears.

Teams to Take Last Drill Today Before Departure.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—For the first time in years, Navy will enter its football game with Army in Philadelphia Saturday without a number of its varsity players on the injured list.

Every man on the squad, coaches reported today, is in fighting shape and every man should be able to give the best he has in the final game. If Navy loses, there will be no alibis that injuries hampered the team.

Despite the excellent shape in which the squad is closing the season, there are few optimist reports from the banks of the River Severn. Coach "Rip" Miller is doing little talking and is making no predictions.

The team today was put through a light drill, starting off with signal practice and following with rehearsal in all the fundamentals. Chung-Hoon and Clark, the triple-threat aces, were kept busy kicking and passing as they alternated on the first-string back field. Miller, who replaced Pray at end yesterday, retained his position.

Final Practice At Home.

The team does its final bit of practice on home soil tomorrow before entraining for Philadelphia. One rehearsal is scheduled there, either on Franklin Field, where the game is to be played, or at the Manufacturers Club, where the team is staying.

Spirit and enthusiasm in the regiment reached a semiclimax today and all along the line there is growing confidence in the outcome of the game, and that it is Navy's turn to win. Feeling generally is that a desperately fought, close battle is in the offing, no matter which way the pendulum of victory may swing. The Middies are up to all sorts of capers in venting their enthusiasm. A rousing "pep" meeting was held in "Smoke Hall" tonight, and another is booked for tomorrow night, following the demonstration that will mark the departure of the gladiators. And the decks of Bancroft Hall, dormitory building, are strewn with banners and placards containing legends and slogans bearing upon the game.

All of Army Cripples, Except Vidal, Return

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 30 (A.P.). Their ranks increased by the return of Abe Lincoln and Pete Kopcsak, Army's cripples hobbled along the sidelines today, observing the workout and trying to pick up the new plays being developed for the Navy game.

Lincoln and Kopcsak did not get into action at all and Ken Fields and Tom Kilday were kept out of a scrimmage. It is expected that all the men who have been released by the doctors so far will be able to play at least part time Saturday. Pick Vidal is the only player who has not yet reported for action.

Navy plays were put on by the

FIELD HORSES WINNERS IN THREE RACES AT JEFFERSON PARK

Form Players Get Rough Jolts

Grand Union, Southco, Bounding Deep Win for Field.

Making Bubbles Is Winner in Feature Race on Card.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Making Bubbles, the 3-year-old gelding owned by Mrs. A. Burkett and ridden by A. Beck, accounted for Audubon Purse, a 6-furlong dash that topped a well-filled program at Jefferson Park this afternoon. Coming from behind under a strong ride, Making Bubbles wore down Leo Clous' Indicative and won by a short neck. H. Stelle's Full Up was third.

Full Up and Indicative dominated the early running, Full Up tiring slightly after half a mile, when Indicative took a good lead and looked the winner until well in the last furlong, when Beck brought Making Bubbles up with a steady rush.

Making Bubbles paid $12.80 for $2, being among the many winning outsiders of the day. Full Up was favorite.

Though summerlike weather and perfect track conditions attended, the crowd was small and the betting light. Many other races on the program furnished thrilling finishes. Another feature was the success of "field" horses.

Field, Made Choice, Wins Opener.

Form players backed the mutuel field into favoritism in the six-furlong dash that opened the program and were rewarded when Bounding Deep and Jockey Lee Hardy brought the colors of F. D. McElroy home in a handy victory over Too Much Talk. Bold Robin was third. The field paid $6.80 for $2.

Premeditate, a heavily backed choice, scored in much the same handy fashion in the second race, another sprint. Apprentice Chinn had the Herendeen filly away well and won from flagfall to finish. Jeff O'Neil and Pan third. The winner paid $4.80 for $2.

Another victory for the field came with the running of the fourth race which brought out a big field at a mile and 70 yards. Grand Union, owned by the Blue Star Stable and ridden by Willie Garner, followed My Hobby into the stretch then swept to the front and easily drew away from My Hobby in the last furlong. Kelso was third. The field paid $38.20 for $2.

The field also scored with Southco in the seventh.

Another Hawk Game Is Sought by Celtics

Determined to settle their differences with the Mohawks on the field of battle, St. Mary's Celtics continues to drill nightly in anticipation of a third and final game with the Indians. The Celtics triumphed in the first game, 12-6, but the Hawks evened matters with a 6-0 victory in the second.

Buck Grier, Celtic pilot, last night stated that his team is willing to meet the Hawks, or the Fraters, at any time or place, on a winner-take-all-basis. Thus far, the Indians have given no indication of their willingness to meet St. Mary's.

Catholic U. Courtmen In First Scrimmage

Catholic University's first basketball scrimmage of the season took place yesterday, with the seven letter men left on the squad teaming up against the newcomers and non-descript players available. On the first team were Capt. Spinelli, Russ Cheary, Ed White, Joe Canizzara, Bob McVean, Dick Galiher and Ed Darowich.

Much aid to the varsity is expected to be rendered by a quartet of sophomore players—Gerald Gearty, Pat Montague, Gene Augusterfer and Reds Fleming. Fleming, who stands 6 feet 2, is being groomed for center.

First settlers in the region of Catholic University brand this year's prospects as the best since 1927.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, NOV. 30.

Haven't seen them run here as yet, but they tell me there were more touts at Laurel and Havre de Grace than there were customers here. I'm going to get out early tomorrow morning and see if I can't dig up a hot thing or two. This is new territory for me, but I'll get acquainted soon. At any rate, give me a chance, big boy. By the side-door route, I had a $38 mutuel winner today. I'll have to explain it. In the fourth I named Elkhart, Hal Riley and Skidmore. The first two were scratched and Skidmore went in the field. Grand Union, another field horse, stepped down in front.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—WATCH GIRL has won her share of purses this year and may provide the winning punch in this. The daughter of On Watch and Crugie is reported in splendid shape. CHIEFS CAMILLE and MASTER OGDEN for the rest.

SECOND RACE—GRAND PRINCE, provided he gets in action, will have his favorite post position on the outside and may jolt the boys. PANCHIO looks like the one to beat. JAZ AGE is far from the little horse that starred at Bowie last spring, but still good enough to be third.

THIRD RACE—BLACK FLASH, a Coventry filly, is cheap but a fairly consistent sort. Won several races around Chicago last summer and has worked well since coming here. NUHAT is the likely favorite. OTTIE M. for the show.

FOURTH RACE—LILLYBET'S best didn't get much in Maryland this fall, but things are better suited here. This mare shipped well and may be the medium of a killing tomorrow. SURELY and HARUM SCARUM are best suited of the others.

FIFTH RACE—SANDWRACK seems up to a winning effort but has picked a tough spot. Must take care of STARBOARD LIGHT, which looms as the public choice. FINNIC looks like a cinch to take the show end.

SIXTH RACE—JUDGE LUEDERS will draw a lot of play tomorrow and may prove worthy of the backing. Has stepped lively in the morning, I've been told. MOZART and WILD DREAMS to give the top one a battle.

SEVENTH RACE—EVER FAITHFUL takes off a pound after winning at the same distance yesterday and I see no reason why this one can not repeat. CHAUMONT and DUNNY BOY are the other threats in this field.

JACQUES NEW U. S. G. A. LEADER

Ex-Harvard Track Star Follows Footsteps of Father.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Herbert Jaques, of Boston, a track star in his college days at Harvard, today was nominated to succeed H. H. Ramsay as president of the United States Golf Association. The formality of electing him will take place at the annual meeting here January 7.

Jaques was named in place of the late Robert M. Cutting, who died last week, in a supplemental report of the nominating committee, headed by Melvin A. Traylor, made to President Ramsay today.

The nominee has been a member of the executive committee since 1925 and at the time of the nomination of Cutting was selected as the senior vice president for 1933. To fill the latter position, John G. Jackson, of New York, was moved up from junior vice president and Prescott S. Bush, present secretary, was named for junior vice president. A. M. Reid remains as the selection for secretary, with Livingston Platt, counsel of the U. S. G. A., slated to take Cutting's position on the executive committee.

Jaques graduated at Harvard College in 1911. In his senior year he was captain of the cross-country team. As a sophomore he was on the Harvard team, which won the I. C. A. A. A. meet.

His father was active in golf affairs in the New England district and served two years as president of the U. S. G. A. in 1909 and 1910.

D. C. Water Poloists Meet Baltimoreans

A bit of natatorial assault and battery will be committed at the Shoreham Hotel Pool on the night of December 10, when the first indoor water polo game in recent Washington sports history will be played between the Washington Canoe Club's team and the combination of the Baltimore Y. M. C. A.

Rated by many as the roughest game in existence today, water polo is an almost total stranger to Washingtonians. Among the pleasantries which the officials let slip by without notice are strangulation.

'BAMA GETS 1ST FRISCO WORKOUT

Eleven in Good Shape for St. Mary's Contest Saturday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30 (A.P.). Alabama's Crimson Tide rolled into San Francisco today and the first visit of a football team from the Old South was the signal for a reception that began at the railroad station and was still going on when it came time for the boys to hike out for opening practice.

The football players who will face St. Mary's Gaels here Saturday, Head Coach Frank Thomas and his assistants and a quota of newspapermen, making up the Southern party, went through a round of receptions.

The Alabamans arrived during a torrential downpour. Representatives of the police and fire departments were on hand to extend the first official greeting. They assured Coach Thomas and his proteges this was "unusual" weather.

Weather All the Same To 'Bama.

Thomas, a Chicagoan, 33 years old and a quarter back at Notre Dame from 1920 to 1922, acknowledged the turn in the weather and informed the civic authorities his boys could play football under any kind of conditions.

A parade up Market street ended at the City Hall, where another reception took place. The mayor being absent due to an emergency, his secretary handled the welcoming duties. The secretary hadn't brushed up on his football as he introduced the Alabama mentor as "Brother Thomas, our famous coach of St. Mary's."

Alabama's candidate for all-American full back honors, John "Hurry" Cain, came in for most of the attention among the players. Those surrounding him wanted his prediction as to the outcome of the game. He said he thought it would be "a tough one." A big transplanted Alabaman boomed:

"Give us the low down. You're going to beat them, aren't you?"

"Sure," shouted Cain, "do you think we're traveling for nothing?"

The Alabama squad finished the long trip in excellent condition. A two-hour practice was held this afternoon at Kezar Stadium, where the game will be played. The players kicked and passed the ball around and ran through some formations.

30 Courtmen Seek Alex. High Berths

Prospects Seen for Best Team Twins Have Had in Years.

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 30.—Prospects for one of the best court teams ever developed at the Alexandria High School are bright, according to Maurice Given, athletic director of the local institution.

Thirty players are seeking berths on the varsity squad and fourteen will be carried during the season. A manager will be appointed within two weeks.

So far the Twins have played two practice games and rolled up 114 points to 27 by their opponents. The Alexandrians won from Company E at Fort Humphreys and then turned the same trick on Lee-Jackson High Club.

A new member of the squad who is displaying great ability is John Nugent, a freshman forward. Others who are showing signs of promise are Jack Moore and Reds McMenamin, forwards; Ben Burrell, center, and Dick Clift, Reds Jackson and Embrey, guards. These boys performed with last year's championship quintet.

Given is faced with the loss of Jimmy Bruin, Snubby Schreiner, Mal Carr and Horton, four of his varsity stars, and out of the above players he will form the nucleus for his varsity quintet.

ARCHERS GET GOLF LINKS OF OWN

Chicago Club Turns Over Course to Toxophilites.

By BASIL G. WYRICK.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Once upon a time law banished golf to promote archery.

That was back in 1457 under King Henry VI, when Joan of Arc and the War of the Roses had decimated English bowmen and many surviving Britons preferred the brassie to the crossbrow.

Now comes a modern invasion of the links by toxophilites, who, although they do not ban golf, scour the course with bow and arrow, instead of mashie and ball, and supplant a 4¼-inch gold bull's-eye in a straw target for a 4¼-inch can in a grassy green.

Olympia Assigns Links To Archers.

The innovation has grown apace sporadically for some time, but, with cold weather coming, the world's largest golf club, Olympia Fields, where Bobby Jones lost the famous playoff for the national open title to Johnny Farrell in 1928, turned over one of its four courses to archery golf for the winter.

Through the narrow fairways lined with woods, the toxophilites wend their way after firing an arrow as far and as straight as they can from the golf tee grounds. Reaching the spent shaft, they take their stances where their first arrows fell and shoot what would in golf be a brassie or iron shot. Thus they continue until they get within 10 yards or less of the target, placed near the golf putting green. Then the shaft is embedded in the matted straw and the hole is finished.

The score is kept hole by hole in golf by counting one for each shot and every penalty. There are several penalties, such as out of bounds, lost arrow, lifting from water hazard, or falling on a putting green. In fact, the rules are about the same as for golf, and one may have caddies to carry extra bows and the quiver with assorted arrows. As many as ten persons may play together.

Toxophilites Present Queer Sight.

Golfers have been described as looking queer with their knickerbockers, blazers and variegated head gear, but as a bevy of archers approaches a tree circled green from various angles with bows twangling and arrows whizzing, an onlooker reverts to pioneer days and seeks to determine which tree may conceal a Natty Bumpo or other hero of Cooper's Leatherstocking tales, beset by Redskins.

The decision of the winter sports committee of Olympia Fields Country Club to turn over one course to the archers was made in an attempt to keep activity at the club alive during the cold months. One links is kept open for golfers who do not suffer from cold fingers, a bowling club is active indoors, trapshooters bang away at three traps, skaters swirl about a pond on another side of the vast clubhouse, hikers scout the woods and rills, tobogganers enjoy a big slide and equestrians cavort about the large grounds.

But the toxophilites are a tribe by themselves, gaining recruits and predicting it will prove better than golf in winter, can be played in deep snow, and will train the eye for summer golf.

FINAZZO AND KIRKWOOD TO CLASH

Middleweights Will Battle in Portner's Semiwindup.

JOE FINAZZO, of Baltimore, and Walter Kirkwood, of Washington, both middleweights, yesterday were matched to fight eight rounds in the semiwindup of the program at Portner's Arena in Alexandria next Tuesday for the benefit of the Day Nursery.

Heading the preliminary bouts will be Henry (Popeye) Irving, pride of the Northeast, and Lloyd Phelps, brother of Cowboy, who will fight Joe Knight in the main ten-rounder, with the Dixie light-heavyweight championship at stake.

Promoter Frankie Mann plans to add two four-rounders to the card, and expects to complete arrangements today.

Phelps, the rugged Arizonan who recently plastered Billy Strickler, opened an intensive practice campaign yesterday at the arena in Alexandria. His manager, Jimmy Erwin, is throwing against him in daily workouts four tough scrappers, Bob Tow, 195-pound giant from Bifmingham, Ala.; Billy Schwartz, 180-pounder; Lloyd Phelps, his brother, and Joe Fino, colorful little bantamweight champion of Mexico.

Knight, the Southerner with the dynamite left, is expected to arrive in Washington over the week-end, and will probably pitch his camp at Frankie Mann's gym. He will be accompanied by his manager, Bill Duckworth, and chief trainer, Ray Swanson.

Gallaudet to Play 18-Game Schedule

Season Opens Dec. 10; Brown Captains Team; Many Others.

Tech High gymnasium will be used as a home floor for the first three home games.

George Brown, veteran sharpshooter, will captain the team. Other last-year regulars back in action are Jimmy Rayhill and Heimo Antila. Two promising new men are John B. Davis and Joe Burnett. Burnett is 6 feet 3 inches tall. In all 27 men are working out for places on the team, which again is coached by Wally Krug.

The schedule:

TULSA'S MAGIC.

Among the unnoticed facts of the football season just passed is one of peculiar interest. In the George Washington-Tulsa game, at Tulsa, Tulsa was leading 14-0 in the second half, despite the fact that its running attack, up to to that point, had shown a 6-yard loss!

THRILLER TO CALVARY.

The Calvary Drakes barely managed to nose out the Tremonts in a basket ball thriller last night, 13-12. It was a battle throughout, with both playing nip and tuck. It was 6-all at the half, with the Drakes forging into a slight lead in the waning minutes of the game.

Young Is Named Coach Of W. & L. Courtmen

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Washington and Lee's basket ball varsity this year will be coached by Harry K. (Cy) Young, one of the university's most outstanding athletes of all time.

Coach Young succeeds Ra Ellerman as head coach of the quint. Authorities said that Ellerman's coaching was as satisfactory as could be expected in every way, but W. & L. was unable to pay the former Wisconsin star without jeopardizing other sports appropriations.

Young returned to his alma mater in 1930 as freshman coach. He has good prospects for the team this year.

Stocks Continue Declines Under Professional Deals

Average Loss Is 1.8 Points as Trading Mounts to 1,093,071 Shares.

New York, Nov. 30 A.P.).—While the British pound was making a vigorous recovery, the stock market flopped out of its recent narrow groove today and rolled a couple of points nearer the October lows.

Sterling's early strength caused enough nervousness among stock exchange shorts to give a firm tone to opening quotations, but the market turned downward after about fifteen minutes of activity on the buying side. Selling was fairly brisk at times the forenoon, and although offerings eventually dried up the list's recuperative powers were feeble and closing prices were around the lows. Net losses ran from 1 to more than 4 points in many leaders and sales reached 1,093,071 shares, about double yesterday's turnover.

The market had a professional appearance. Floor traders had doubtless grown restive during the sidewise movement of prices over the last week and with business statistics emphasizing the seasonal reaction of trade it probably seemed that the line of least resistance was downward. Sterling's swoop to well above $3.20 was assumed to be a reflection of short covering based not only on the currency's so-called "technical position," but also of news that London was shipping gold to New York. French francs ruled steady.

U. S. Steel preferred dropped 3 points on selling which presumably originated with those who doubt indefinite maintenance of at least the full dividend rate. Steel common was down about 2 at the worst.

Industrials generally dropped; American Can, Allied Chemical, Case, Westinghouse, National Biscuit, Union Carbide, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Du Pont losing 1 to 2 points or so. Rail shares noted the reaction in carloadings that usually occurs in Thanksgiving week, and also Burlington's announcement that dividend action on its shares, mostly held by Northern Pacific and Great Northern, had been postponed until later in the year. Wall street recalls that such a decision has, in the case of other roads, usually meant unfavorable action. Northern Pacific and Great Northern both lost more than a point, while Union Pacific sagged 3 and Santa Fe 2.

In utilities, American Telephone was soggy, with a net decline of more than 2. American Tobacco "B" and Safeway Stores were especially soft, the former off 4¾ net, the latter 3. Coppers made slight response to a shading of the domestic price by at least one seller or to reports of a snag in the international conference.

English pound's recovery failed to inspire stocks. The market continued to drop under professional trading. Sales volume mounted to 1,093,071 shares. The average loss was 1.8 points.

Bonds.

The market failed in a feeble attempt to rally and sank two-tenths of a point. Sales dropped to $7,306,000. The sterling rally aided some foreign bonds. United States issues were dull.

Curb.

Professional selling sent prices down. The turnover increased to 170,000 shares, compared to Tuesday's 140,000. Electric Bond & Share deals were heavy.

Wheat.

Corn and oats dominated the market, and their flurry of losses handicapped wheat. The latter grain managed to close unchanged to ⅜ higher. Oats sank to 14¼ cents.

Cotton.

Trade buying reduced heavier losses early in the session, and the market closed 3 points down to 1 point higher. March contracts sold at 5.93. Liverpool reported a small market.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the Stock Exchange again was cheerful. Rises of about 1 to 2 points were registered in gilt-edged securities on covering and strength in sterling exchange. The improvement spread to other sections except oil shares, which were easy in sympathy with the Anglo-Persian issues. The closing was firm.

Paris—Prices were firm on the Bourse following the improvement in the pound sterling despite month-end liquidation. Rentes, however, showed further losses. The market closed firm.

Berlin—After the pound sterling had improved, prices on Boerse steadied and the closing was firm.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for November 28 were $4,273,832.25; expenditures $11,008,383.07; balance, $597,348,327.40. Customs duties for 28 days of November were $22,813,-361.24.

BONDS SINK LOWER AFTER FEEBLE FIGHT

Dull Trading Marked Drop; Sales for Day Totaled $7,306,000.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The bond market made a feeble attempt to steady itself today, but with substantial support failing to appear prices generally slipped back to lower levels.

It was another dull session and the only real activity was displayed by a few specialties on the downgrade. Sales totaled only $7,306,000, par value, and the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate loans lost .2 point.

A rally of the British pound sterling apparently encouraged some foreign bonds which firmed moderately. The Australians and Canadians recovered a point or more, while lesser gains were recorded by obligations of Great Britain, France, Italy and Poland. Both German government 5½s and 7s closed unchanged, although some German corporate issues improved. Kreuger & Toll 5s lost a point and Japanese bonds were heavy in sympathy with the yen.

The principal sufferers in the domestic fields were semispeculative rail liens, a number of which were off 1 to 3 or more points. Among these were some loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Central of Georgia, Burlington, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Northern Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash. The Burlington directors postponed action on the common stock dividend. The bulk of these shares is held by Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

News developments were none too cheerful so far as the utilities and industrials were concerned. Electric power output for the week ended November 26 was off, freight car loadings were reported to have declined and business indices were sagging seasonally. Losses of a point or more were recorded by some loans of International Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Columbia Gas, Dodge Bros., Goodrich, International Hydro-Electric, Paramount-Famous-Lasky, Paramount-Publix, Pathe Exchange, Portland General Electric, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron, Postal Telegraph, Studebaker, United States Rubber and Western Union. The oils steadied and some of the higher grade power and light company loans improved fractionally.

U. S. Savings Accounts Cut $3,925,898,000 During Year

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Savings account depositors in the United States tapped their "rainy day" backlog of money by $3,925,898,000 in the twelve months ended last June 30, it was revealed today, but they still had $24,281,346,000 left on deposit, which was approximately $3,000,000,000 more than the total of ten years ago.

In its annual savings compilation for 1932, the American Bankers Association Journal reported that on June 30 there were 44,352,106 savings accounts, or 7,047,340 less than the year before. This decrease was said to be due in a degree to hoarding, and to the increased use of postal savings facilities, but it primarily was "caused by withdrawals for support, including the payment of that burden which has become so grievous—taxation."

"Of greater social significance than the decrease in savings deposits is the loss of 7,047,340 in the number of depositors, which dropped from 51,399,446 a year ago to 44,352,106," the publication said. "This decrease is in the face of a population increase of 752,400. The high record of 53,188,348 depositors in 1928 has now dwindled to 44,352,106, a loss of over 8,800,000, despite a population increase in the United States during this time of 4,809,000. Three States showed an increase in the number of despositors: Colorado, more than 34,000; Tennessee, almost 9,000, and Missouri, near 100."

Three years' average loss in savings per capita of population was placed at $33. In some areas the decline ran as high as $50 per inhabitant.

"Drastic as has been the recession," said the Journal, "there is hope that a solution of some of the problems which now vex the world will restore industry, agriculture, trade and commerce to a more favorable basis. Savings are yet $33 greater per inhabitant than ten years ago, and $106 greater than in 1929."

Brokers Reduce Branch Offices

New York Stock Exchange Year Book Is Issued; 1,375 Members.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange today published its official year book which showed, as of October 1 last, that the total number of branch offices of member firms were at their lowest level since 1928.

There were 1,178 such offices, of which 188 were in New York City and 990 in other cities. This compared with a total of 1,347 on January 1, 1932, of which 208 were in New York and 1,139 in other cities, and with the peak figures of 1,658 on January 1, 1930, of which 294 were New York offices and 1,364 were in other cities. In 1928, the total number was 1,394. The figure did not cross the 1,000-mark until 1927.

The five States in which the stock exchange members had the greatest number of branch offices were New York, 297; Pennsylvania, 106; Massachusetts, 85; Illinois, 80, and California, 58. The exchange membership reached its highest total to date this year. There were 1,375 members against 1,357 at the start of the year and 1,349 on January 1, 1931.

CURB PRICES SLUMP UNDER SALES DRIVE

Professional Activities Cut Profits in Turnover of 170,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Selling, largely of professional origin, continued to trickle into the curb market today and prices lost further ground. The day's sales totaled 170,000 shares against 140,000 yesterday.

Electric Bond & Share transactions accounted for more than 20 per cent of the total volume, and with selling orders the preponderant element the stock suffered a loss of nearly 2 points, dropping below 20 for the first time in several weeks. Cities Service issues were also under active pressure, the common breaking through the three level, while the preferred issues gave up a point or more. American Gas & Electric was well supported and closed a shade higher.

Dullness went hand in hand with weakness in the industrial group. Aluminum Co. of America dropped more than 3 points and Clinchfield Coal, an inactive issue, suffered a similar loss. Pan-American Airways, and Great Atlantic & Pacific registered losses of 1 to 2 points.

Mining issues showed a sagging trend but their losses were narrow, and oils followed a similar course.

Alberta Wheat Pool Extended for Year

Legislature Will Be Asked to Amend Act for Legalizing Unit.

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The Alberta wheat pool will carry on for another year under the present marketing system, it was decided at yesterday's sessions of the annual meeting. The present contract, which expires July 15, 1933, permits the farmer to sell his grain through the pool on a pooling basis or on the open market prevailing prices.

To continue the present system after the contract's expiration, the pool will ask the Alberta legislature to amend the wheat pool act. The amendment would enable signers of the present five-year contract to continue to vote as they now do, notwithstanding the fact the contract will have expired.

"The plan is to continue on the optional marketing basis for a year after July 15, 1933, with control in the hands of the signers of second series contracts," the pool statement said. Under the present contract, farmers also are permitted to sell through the pool, receiving street prices in place of the pool's initial payment.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN AS OATS SINK LOWER

Latter Touches Bottom Price of 14¼ Cents; Corn Also Records Loss.

Chicago, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Corn and oats played the mischief with grain markets today, oats especially making a spectacle of themselves by tumbling to bottom prices never heretofore seen.

Unusual efforts to settle December corn and oats accounts in advance of expected large deliveries tomorrow put a strain on both of these grains and did much to spoil a promising advance of wheat values parallel to lively upturns in British exchange.

December oats today reached an extreme low price of 14¼ cents a bushel, outdoing the previous all-time bottom record, 14½ cents, established in 1896. Corn for December delivery fell to within 2 cents of the all-time low, 19½ cents, another 1896 black mark.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ of a cent higher; corn, ⅛@1⅜ down; oats, unchanged to ⅝ off, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents decline.

Wheat Revealed Strength.

Until handicapped by extraordinary bearish action of corn and oats, the wheat market showed decided strength, helped primarily by sharp gains of the English pound sterling. Contributing to the upward trend of wheat were railway and Government crop reports, pointing to much curtailed yields of domestic winter wheat. There were also disconcerting advices of unseasonably hot weather in parts of Argentina with suggestions of crop damage affecting some of the country's largest wheat-producing provinces.

Eager buying of December delivery of wheat at times today contrasted with recent fears that the market would be swamped tomorrow by huge tenders on contracts, tomorrow being the first day that December accounts could be settled with offers of actual wheat. The fact, however, that the Chicago December open interest today scored a big new reduction of 6,016,000 bushels, with a further slash expected overnight, changed the picture to a material extent. Final liberal deliveries were still expected to be made tomorrow, but they promised to land in strong hands.

Severe weakness of corn and oats was most apparent just at the end of the day. No reason developed beyond increased pressure of December liquidation.

Provisions sagged as a result of packers' offerings of lard.

Output of Power Less During Week

Rate of Decrease Slower Than for 1929-30, Association Says.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Electric power production in the week ended November 26, which included Thanksgiving Day, decreased somewhat more than at the same time a year ago, but at a slightly slower pace than in either 1929 or 1930, the National Electric Light Association reported today.

Last week's production was 1,475,-268,000 kilowatt hours against 1,581,-584,000 in the previous week. For the corresponding 1931 weeks, the figures were 1,599,900,000 against 1,655,051,000.

Production for the week was 7.8 per cent below the corresponding 1931 rate. The week before, the margin of decline was 7.5 per cent, which followed two weeks when the decrease stood at 6.3 per cent.

DIVIDEND IS REDUCED BY LEHIGH CEMENT

Colorado & Southern Road Omits $4 Payment on Preferred Stock.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The annual dividend rate of Lehigh Portland Cement Co.'s 7 per cent preferred stock was cut in half today with declaration of a payment of 87½ cents a share against $1.75 previously disbursed in each quarter. The dividend is payable January 3 to stock of record December 14.

Colorado & Southern Railroad today omitted the $4 annual dividend on the second preferred stock. The payment on the first preferred was passed some time ago, so that action on the junior stock was regarded as only a formality.

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Line Co. today declared a dividend of $1, payable December 31 to shareholders of record on December 15.

Copper Yield Curb Plan Facing Fight

Proposed 20 Per Cent Cut Appears to Hang on Storke's Decision.

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The outcome of the present agreement among copper producers to hold output of the metal at 20 per cent of production capacity appeared today to hang in balance as the international conference of producers held its second session.

Delegates said a temporary stalemate on a 1933 production agreement had been reached, which probably would not be broken before the expected arrival here next week of Arthur D. Storke, managing director of Roan Antelope Co. Mr. Storke is now in London. It was said that he probably held the key to one of two snags which were encountered in the conference today.

The difficulties centered about curtailment of output. Some producers were reported insistent upon raising the present limit. The other was a suggestion that American copper men abandon the European market in favor of foreign producers. This suggestion was advanced on the theory that the new 4-cent American tariff had barred foreign producers from this market and that, therefore, American producers should be willing to leave the European field to European copper interests.

Copper Prices Decline On Conference Reports

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Coincident with reports that difficulties had been encountered at the international copper conference, an easier tone developed in the domestic and foreign markets for that metal today.

Some electrolytic metal for domestic shipment was available at 5⅛ cents a pound for December, duplicating the former low made several months ago. This price compared with the recent quotation of 5¼ cents. Copper for January and February delivery, which had been quoted at 5⅜ cents, was offered by at least one seller at 5¼, although most custom smelters held to the higher price. The price range abroad was 5.275 to 5.325 cents, off slightly from recent levels.

France Plans Two Loans.

Paris, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The City of Paris is about to offer two loans, one a public issue of 1,250,000,000 francs at 4½ per cent, priced at 960 francs, and another for 216,000,000 francs at 4 per cent, priced at 840 francs.

Y., Surrogate's Court, it was learned.

It was learned last night that Mr. Sanger resigned his Government position in October and is in Bermuda for an indefinite stay.

CAPPER SAYS RENTS REDUCED $1,500,000 SINCE INVESTIGATION

Lusk Will Testify Today on Survey of Situation Made for Realty Board.

Washington's rent bill has come down at least $1,500,000 "and possibly two or three times that amount" since the Senate District committee launched its rental investigation, Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, estimated at a meeting of the investigating subcommittee yesterday.

The subcommittee will meet again at 10:30 a. m. today. Rufus S. Lusk, who has been making a survey of the rental situation for the Washington Real Estate Board, will testify. Chairman Capper hopes to hurry the hearings through in time for a report to the Senate by December 15

The chairman's statement yesterday listed a group of 350 apartment buildings, where reductions of no less than $783,542 have been made. On the basis of this partial list, he estimated that total reductions would exceed $1,500,000.

Cites Salary Reductions.

"It is quite evident from the data that has been compiled for the use of the subcommittee that rent scales have been moving in the right direction—downward," he said.

"Salaries and other incomes have been materially lowered since 1929, and the prices of food and other commodities were adjusted to lower levels some time ago. Rent is usually the biggest item in the family budget, and when the income of the people dropped, it was only natural and just that they should expect a corresponding reduction."

Senator Capper said some of the reductions have been as much as 10 per cent or even more, while others have been very small.

"In some cases, there have been no reductions at all, and in a very few cases there have been increases," he said. "However, these are vastly in the minority."

Will Continue Efforts.

He said the total cost of the inquiry will not exceed two-tenths of 1 per cent of the known actual reduction of rentals made thus far this year. He added that the committee will not lose interest in the question after making its report to the Senate, but will continue efforts to remedy any evils that might exist in the housing situation here.

"The necessity for balancing the Federal budget may make it necessary to continue the furlough plan of salary reduction, and it is highly desirable therefore to make sure that the people who work for the Government, as well as the other residents of the District, are not saddled with unreasonable rent expense," he said.

Charles J. Rush, secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board, testified briefly at yesterday's hearing, introducing a number of pamphlets and documents containing information bearing on the inquiry.

Home Owners Discuss Program for Congress

Policies and methods of procedure to be adopted by the Home Owners Protective Enterprise, an association of private home owners, who will seek the enactment of laws favorable to the owners of self-occupied real estate at the forthcoming session of Congress, were yesterday discussed by the policy committee of the organization around a luncheon table at the Brookings Institute.

Dr. Charles P. Neill, Dr. George Otis Smith, Dr. Boyd Carpenter, Raymond Crist, Mrs. Bertha Nienburg, Dean K. Brundage, William F. Goddard, M. A. Rattigan and Miss Marie L. Obenauer comprise the committee which was appointed a week ago during a meeting of the association at its Barr Building offices.

She will be assisted by Miss Francis Brunt and Arsenio Ralon, violinist of the National Symphony Orchestra. The offering will go for mission work.

Old Seaman Climbs Rigging On Visit to "Old Ironsides"

who sailed on the U. S. S. Constellation in 1878, is seen through the rigging of her sister ship, the Constitution, which he climbed in a manner belying his 73 years.

R. E. Seely, 73, Sailed on Constitution's Sister Ship in 1878.

Firmly planting his sea legs on the deck of the U. S. S. Constitution yesterday, Robert E. Seely, of 125 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, Md., gazed on the tall masts of the historic "Old Ironsides" for the first time since the winter of 1878, when he sailed on its sister ship, the Constellation.

Mr. Seely, a retired chief cable testman of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., was greeted on board ship by Commander Louis J. Gulliver.

Small, wiry and remarkably active for his years, the 73-year-old former seaman surprised a small gathering by scampering up the rigging of the ship to prove his agility.

Standing in the center of an interested group, he confided that he had always loved the sea, running away from his home in St. Johns, New Brunswick, when he was 14 years old to ship on a lumber vessel bound for Valparaiso, Chile. From that point he knocked about the world, winding up in London, where he joined the American Navy, shipping out of Portsmouth on the flagship Trenton when he was 21.

He then explained that after serving his three-year enlistment, he, with nearly 400 other seamen on board the Trenton, then anchored at Gibraltar, were transferred to the Constellation which had been sent with a relief crew. Warming up to his subject, he went on:

"The crews were transferred. A nor'easter blew up and we drifted seven miles toward the African shore. Next morning the flagship signaled us back to anchor. It was blowing a gale of wind with our anchor laying seven miles under us. While heaving anchor we got an order to lay aloft and loose the topsails. We hoisted the anchor and played off on our port tack. Then we went under way.

"An English tug hove into sight; they offered to tow us. Capt. John Lee Davis, who was commanding us, asked him how much he wanted. He wanted 100 pounds, which was about $485 at that time. Well, after coming in stays and standing back on our starboard tack, the tug made it 50 pounds to tow us. Well, sir, the captain let out a yell, 'I won't give you 50 cents.' We came about dead abeam of the Trenton and the crew manned our riggin' and gave us three cheers and a tiger as we came back to anchor. We let go and furled our canvas the next day, homeward bound."

Mr. Seely came to Washington in 1902. He is married and has six grandchildren.

BRICKLAYERS UNION BUYS FORMER HOME OF F. H. SMITH FIRM

Fifteenth St. Structure Sells for $355,000 After Spirited Auction.

The Smith Building, nine-story and basement brick, steel and limestone office structure at 815-817 Fifteenth street northwest, former local headquarters of the F. H. Smith Co., has been acquired by the Bricklayers International Union. This was learned following its purchase for $355,000 at public auction yesterday by Robert T. Highfield, vice president and cashier, Mount Vernon Savings Bank, as attorney in fact for Richard J. Gray, treasurer of the union.

To Be Headquarters.

Mr. Gray said later that the union would operate the building containing a handsome banking room, mezzanine, safe deposit vaults and 120 offices, as an investment and would move headquarters, now located at 1415-1417 K street northwest, to the building.

There was spirited bidding at the sale. W. Gwynn Gardiner, attorney, representing undisclosed interests; James O'Donnell, retired capitalist, representing himself; A. A. Laporte, representing the George E. Roosevelt committee formed to protect interests of certain bondholders in the property, and Mr. Highfield were the bidders.

Brisk Bidding.

Bidding lasted more than fifteen minutes, opening at $200,000 and advancing for the last half of the period $1,000 at a time. The sale of the building, located in the financial district, attracted a large crowd. The sale was advertised by the American Security & Trust Co., substituted trustee. Vernon G. Owen was the auctioneer.

The building was erected by the F. H. Smith Co. in 1922, J. H. De Sibour being the architect and the R. P. Whitty Co. the builder. Its original estimated cost was $700,000 and its current assessed valuation is $658,920, of which $273,920 represents land and $385,000 building. The structure has a maximum depth of 139 feet and a width of 49 feet.

Debt Collection Triumphs

Oxford Debating Team, Arguing Cancellation of European War Obligations, Defeated by American University Advocates of Payment.

American University, upholding the negative, defeated Oxford University, England, in a debate held last night on the American University campus on the question: "Resolved, This house would welcome the cancellation of the war debt."

Leon Elsberg, and Robert Marcus were the victorious speakers and A. J. Ervine and Geoffrey M. Wilson argued for Oxford.

Opening for the affirmative, Mr. Wilson stated that he would stress the economic significance of the issue. He began by saying that reparations and war debts were inseparable. He said America has erected the highest tariff wall the world has ever known, making it impossible for Europe to pay her debts.

Mr. Elsberg, who introduced the negative, said reparations are held to be unjust by all parties. He held they should be canceled, and pointed out that war debts and reparations are separate and distinct. He then said there was more than economics to the issue; that in the first place the United States has a full legal right to collect the war debts and this country is not morally obligated in any way to Europe to reduce the debt, but is obligated to the American people to collect.

Continuing the affirmative, Mr. Ervine pointed out that reparations had crippled Germany, whose prosperity is mingled with both Europe and America. He said payment of reparations has been necessary in order for the debtor powers to pay the United States.

Attacking the economic argument, Mr. Marcus closed for the negative by showing that cancellation would be economically unwise. He upheld this view by stating European debtors had gained $47,000,000,000 in reparations and territory since the war, a surplus of $12,000,000,000 above their loss, thereby proving their capacity to pay, he said.

The judges were: George B. Woods, of American University; John H. McEvers, special assistant to the Attorney General; Randolph C. Shaw, chief counsel of the Prohibition Bureau of the Department of Justice, and William C. Van Vleck, dean of George Washington University Law School.

DECISION IN $100,000 SUIT OF D. C. AGAINST TRACTION FIRM NEAR

Case Submitted in Supreme Court After Long Delay; Bridge Use Involved.

The District government, hard pushed for money these days, stands a chance of collecting approximately $100,000 in cold cash if it wins a case pending in the District Supreme Court. After dragging along on the court calendar for three years, the case was submitted yesterday at the close of two days' argument.

Suit Against Traction Firm.

The suit is that of the District Commissioners against the Washington Railway & Electric Co. for collection of $75,000, plus penalties of 10 per cent a year, which the municipal heads claim is due for repairs and maintenance of the Anacostia Bridge. The amount sought constitutes half the cost of the work and is payable, it is contended, under the act of April 27, 1904, which provides for maintenance of the bridge.

The railway on four previous occasions has paid for half the cost of the bridge's upkeep, but at the larger sum it balked. The Commissioners through the corporation counsel's office secured certificates of indebtedness at once and so are in a position to sell the street car company's property at auction to satisfy the claims if the suit is won.

Opposing Contentions.

Arguments advanced by William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, are that the claim is but a small payment for the right to use the bridge and that the act of 1904 is still in effect. S. R. Bowen, counsel for the railway, contended that the act in question was repealed by implication in subsequent District appropriations acts.

Within the next few days it is expected that judges will have selected the best poster in the contest of the Troubadors, of George Washington University, in connection with their forthcoming musical production, "Oh Say Can't You See."

The contest closed yesterday and was open to students in the art classes of the city's five senior high schools.

2 Boys Held in Theft Of Yule Savings Check

Two youths were arrested yesterday in connection with the reported theft of a Christmas saving check from an apartment mailbox.

The charge of theft of mail was placed against Charles Bridges, 19, of 1118 C street northeast, and John W. Yates, 19, of 125 C street northeast, was held as an accomplice. L. A. DeWard, post office inspector, aided detectives in making the arrests.

Wig Stolen

Robbers Take Only Blonde Hair From Connecticut Avenue Shop.

Anita Loos said it was true, but later hedged. Therefore the question has never been definitely decided.

But apparently some one is either convinced or is determined to test this alleged preference to blondes.

A burglar broke into the Robert of Paris hairdressing shop at 1514 Connecticut avenue Tuesday night and made off with a blonde wig valued at $40. Nothing else was taken.

Policeman Reports Loss of Gun.

Lieut. Phillip H. Crook, of the Capitol Police, yesterday reported that some one had taken his service revolver from the hallway of the House Office Building.

FIVE D. C. TAX SUITS SPUR TO COLLECTION

Assessor Reports Owners of Intangible Property Are Filing Accounts.

The recent action of the corporation counsel's office in bringing suit against five alleged delinquent District taxpayers, some of whom claim to be nonresidents, is having the desired effect of bringing holders of considerable intangible personal property into the tax assessor's office for settlement, Deputy Tax Assessor Charles A. Russell said yesterday. A score of additional cases have been forwarded for similar legal prosecution.

Kingman Brewster, one of the defendents, attacks the law under which the suits were filed in a five-page memorandum citing his answer to the suit, filed this week in District Supreme Court. He has, however, filed the return and paid the court costs since the suit was filed.

Quoting the act of February 18, 1929, amending the manner of District tax assessments, Mr. Brewster said "It is my opinion, based upon experience with tax matters for some years, that there is little doubt that the act, making the District's tax on personal intangible property applicable on any person maintaining an 'abode' on July 1, or for three months prior thereto, in the District, is unconstitutional."

He also attacked the filing of mandamus proceedings as a matter of policy and asserted that "no taxes can long be collected by a sovereignty without the good will of the taxpayer."

Francis H. Stephens, assistant corporation counsel, who has charge of the prosecution said that the statute has not been challenged in court previously, and he expressed the belief that it would be sustained.

Collection of personal intangible property taxes has always been a problem to District tax officials. In previous years, since the passage of the act providing for the mandamus proceedings, threats of suits have been employed, but this is the first year that legal action actually has been taken.

District officials for the most part are admittedly dissatisfied with the workings of the intangible property tax and favor the proposed substitution of a local income tax. This proposal will be before the approaching Congress.

BEDELL CONVICTED IN ROBBERY OF SAFE

Verdict Returned After Two Men Testify He Did Not Take Part.

After deliberating more than three hours yesterday a jury in the court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, in the District Supreme Court, returned a verdict finding William E. Bedell guilty of complicity in the robbery of the Breyer Ice Cream Co.'s warehouse at 1850 Bladensburg road northeast, last July.

The safe in the Breyer plant had been broken open and $979 and some stamps were stolen.

Bedell's conviction came after two men, James C. Grove and August Pagliocchini, had testified that he was not with them when the Breyer company's safe was broken into. Both men were named in the same indictment as having participated in the robbery with Bedell.

William F. Cush, also named in the indictment, was acquitted on a verdict directed by Chief Justice Wheat. Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica prosecuted the case.

Grove, who pleaded guilty some time ago, denied Bedell was with him, and Pagliocchini, who entered a plea of guilty near the conclusion of the trial yesterday, also denied Bedell was there. Attorneys Harry Whelan and E. Russell Kelly plan to file a motion for a new trial for Bedell, who at one time was suspected by police of having assaulted the Salvadorean Minister while attempting to steal the legation's liquors.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Investigations of the accidents during 1931 disclosed the following leading offenders: Reckless driving and careless driving; driving while drunk, turning in street, failing to yield right of way, and defective equipment. Of 8,369 vehicles involved in collisions, only 334 were under proper driving control. All of these accidents could have been avoided with the exercise of care by drivers, both in operating their vehicles and in maintaining them in a safe mechanical condition.

There have been 43 more deaths and 231 more injuries to date than during the corresponding period of 1931. The number of accidents, however, has decreased by 411. The figures are:

Deaths	71	114
Injuries	3,359	3,490
Accidents	7,591	7,180
